for only one night a week; so he may be unfamiliar to many of you. He is 5'11" tall; has brown hair; wears brown very nicely. Look for him, if you will, and give him the hand of welcome to our school.

The whole chemistry lab might blow up, but the calm voice of Mr. Albert M. Thorne would assure the student at fault that all would be well. You say, "Your're exaggerating a wee bit, aren't you?" Well, maybe I am, but the fact remains that this chemistry instructor is a very easy-going, mild-mannered man, who is respected by each of his students.

An employee of Celanese Corporation, Mr. Thorne is assisting Dr. McColley (away on leave at present) in the chemistry laboratory.

Although he was born in Long Island, New York, and has lived in various northern towns, we like to claim him as a true Charlottean, as he has been with us in Charlotte for about eight years.

Lehigh University in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, is where Mr. Thorne received his B.S. degree.

A teen-age son and a pre-teen daughter claim a big part of his time, besides his hobbies of photography, camping, and scouting.

We wish to welcome Mr. Thorne to our college with the hope that he finds a source of real pleasure from his work here.

Her hobby is people—fat ones, slim ones, sweet ones, strange ones—all people; and to make this hobby even more real, she teaches people a course about people! That's Miss Florence Laslie, our sociology teacher. Besides her teaching activities, she is personnel manager for the National Carbon Corporation.

A Charlotte native and Central graduate, Miss Laslie attended Woman's College of Alabama and Queens College.

Medium height, short brunette hair, glasses—these are a part of her neat, well-groomed appearance.

In her family are two brothers (one coaches football at West Point) and one sister. However, they do not live nearby, so we would like to take this opportunity of welcoming and "adopting" Miss Laslie into our family of faculty and students at Charlotte College.

Ever hear rollicking laughter peal from room 315? Ever wonder about the blond (crew-cut) haired fellow who strides happily along the halls of CC? Let me tell you about him.

The laughter is from the English classes taught by Mr. Glenn Leslie Browne, who comments, "I believe in having a good time!" Surely, this is reflected in his bantering smile and dancing blue eyes.

Before coming to Charlotte (he presently is teaching Tenth Grade English at Myers Park), Mr. Browne was visiting lecturer at the University of North Carolina. (He hopes to complete his Master's there this summer.) Lenoir Rhyne College in Hickory, North Carolina, is his Alma Mater, although he claims Savannah, Georgia, as his home town.

A bachelor and amateur photographer, he is also an avid sports car fan. His dream is to own a new Thunderbird. We hope his dream comes true, but more than that we wish for Mr. Browne many happy quarter hours at Charlotte College.

Mr. Easley Bruce Barton (E.E. 201) is present in Owl Land on Monday night only, but on that one night he gives not only a degree of knowledge to his students but an ample serving of good-natured friendship.

Winnboro, South Carolina, is his home town (one, I'd say, he was mighty proud of these days!) and Clemson College is his school.

A Charlotte resident since '49, Mr. Barton is employed regularly in the P and T department of Duke Power Company. His spare (?) time is filled with family life—his wife and two healthy boys. Hobby?—Photography.

If you're around the new building some Monday 'bout 7:00, look for him (he's 5'10"—wears clear rimmed glasses—has dark hair) and welcome him to Charlotte College!

VARSITY SPOTLIGHT

Ray Phillips

FLASH—On the 29th day of November a new and exciting chapter will be written into the pages of the history of Charlotte College. On that day at 7 o'clock in the evening the CC basketball team touches off what could be the most successful season of basketball to date. This year the team has changed leagues. Charlotte College is now in the Jack Love League. Other members of the league are Queen City Trailways, Marine Reserve, Schwam, Faul & Crymes, and the Jaycees.

Last year all of CC's home games were played in the Piedmont Jr. High Gym. Those gloomy days are over. This year CC will be playing in one of the most modern arenas in the South, the Charlotte Park Center. Because of the added luxury a slight fee of 50c will be charged at the door. Each Thursday night all six teams will be engaged in three contests. In other words, you will see three games for only a half dollar.

In some aspects this new league is tougher than the one CC just dropped out of. Almost all of the other teams have had previous college basketball experience. Some of them were first string players for some of the big colleges. For the most part CC is a younger team and should be competition because of their speed and accuracy under the baskets.

Jerry Gaudet, leading scorer for Charlotte College last year, is not very superstitious. For the third straight year he is defying fate. He wears jersey number 13. . . . Question—If CC should win one of the three trophies the Jack Love League is giving away, where could we put it? At the moment there is not a trophy case at Charlotte College. . . . Almost all the basketball players in the Jack Love League are playing or have played on a college team . . . Coach Buddy Smith works for Carolina Veterinary Supply Company. He was overheard giving one of his ace players advice on what to take for his cold. Wonder if he is trying to sell his products off duty. . . .

Charlotte College has its full load of 15 men on the basketball team. Eleven of them are over 6 feet. . . . Any girl that wants to be a member of the CC cheerleading team please contact Gwen Daly or Judy Mauldwin.
