

PLEASE VOTE

By JERRY LEONARD

We strongly urge all students to vote FOR the bond issue necessary for the survival of Charlotte College. The acceptance of this bond issue by the greater Charlotte community is a must. Every student should assume a personal responsibility to effect its passage.

You can aid the passage of this bond issue, not only by voting, but by encouraging others to vote. Contact relatives, friends and other acquaintances. Tell them what the college means to you as a student. You, the student body, can do what no other group can toward enlightening the voter about the need for our college.

Charlotte College is not just an institution; it is a part of us as well as a part of Charlotte. It is a living entity in which many have great faith. It is made of people and their hopes and ambitions.

If it were not for this school, many could not attend college at all. It serves a great need in giving the youth of this area an opportunity to gain a college education while living at home and to attend college while holding a full-time job.

Here a person can pursue the type of education he desires. Some will continue their education elsewhere; others will go directly into their vocations upon leaving the school. But all of us receive the school's benefits.

Let Charlotte know about our college. Point out the advantages of its continued growth to the student and community. You may be sure that if Charlotte College students and alumni will speak, the people of Charlotte will listen.

The whole future of higher education in Charlotte depends upon this bond issue. We need a four-year curriculum, and the people must be made to realize this. It is our job to open their eyes.

We sincerely hope the people of the Charlotte area will support us wholeheartedly on this important bond issue.

Let us all stand behind the goals of our school and its founders and make these goals known.

And remember on November 8th be sure to vote and to support the lifeline of Charlotte College.

Students Elections Tuesday

Election of Freshman Class officers and Freshman and Sophomore Representatives will be held on Tuesday November 8.

All members of the Freshman and Sophomore classes are urged to exercise their right to vote.

Candidates for Freshman Class president are: Paul Rudisill, Ronald Robinson, Marvin Henderson and Jonny Sayers.

Wendell Green, Robert Owens solicit your votes for the position of Vice President.

Candidates for Secretary-Treasurer are Judy Gable and Hugh L. "Bill" Ferguson.

The slate for Freshman Class representatives includes Brenda Allen, Francis Cline, Steve McIntosh, Rodney Love, Michael Sellers, Clinton Canady and Jim Flowers.

Candidates for Sophomore Class representative are Mayme Jo Parr, Jim Cornell, Bill Povey, Bob Thompson, Kay Combs, Nancy Miller, Emily Crabtree and Hoyle Hill.

CC Band Has Vacancies

CC's fledgling band is in their pitching. It is on the up-hill grade yet but has lots of spirit. Students musicians are asked to come forth and be counted.

The Collegian Salutes

Bill Ferguson for artistic ability, initiative and resourcefulness in his work on our bulletin board posters.

Writers Club Has New Constitution

The C.C. Writers Club has ratified a new constitution, which deletes the two quarter enrollment requirement for membership and qualifies artists for invitation to membership.

The new constitution, approved at the October 16th meeting at the Charlotte Public Library, includes the following:

1. to be eligible for membership, a student must be regular enrolled at Charlotte College and must indicate an interest in creative writing. Ability must be demonstrated by work submitted to the group.

2. The Vice President of the club will be editor of the Parnassian. The old constitution assigned the editorship to the president.

3. There will be a circulation-business manager added to the club staff. The new position was created to handle advertising which will be included in the 1960-61 publication.

4. Club officers for the coming year will be nominated by a special nominating committee in the spring. Nominations have been made from the floor heretofore, but under a recent Student Council ruling, The Parnassian editor and business manager will be subject to approval by the Student Council.

EVEN WITHOUT an alarm clock, any young American with ambition is able and willing to get up at six o'clock in the morning to earn money to meet the installment payment on his new car.

It's great fun to see a boss fumble on a job that you could do in nothing flat.

Oliver Rowe

Charlotte Educational Needs Cited

By JERRY LEONARD

Three cheers for Oliver Rowe a trustee of the Charlotte's Community College System. A couple of weeks ago Mr. Rowe gave the Chamber of Commerce Education Committee the real story on education in the Charlotte area. He said that this section has had a historical effort of 190 years in attempting to get a tax-supported college.

Now that two schools have been founded, it appears that the people of Mecklenburg are not aware of the great task remaining.

To quote Mr. Rowe: "Unless we can find some way to build . . . faster than we are now . . . many Mecklenburg citizens are going to find it impossible to get their children into college at all."

There is still a sore need for a continued growth of the two colleges. A two-year college does not solve our educational needs. Many talented students do not continue their education because the colleges do not offer the last two years necessary for the undergraduate degree.

The result is a loss to the student and an even greater loss to the community.

To make matters worse — this lack of concern toward education by grass roots government invites higher government to do the job. The educational needs of Mecklenburg and other similar communities should be resolved at the local and state level.

With Mr. Rowe's continued effort and the help of other leaders, Charlotte will surely grasp the challenge and will bolster our community college system in time to meet the pressing need.

Junior Colleges Flourish

Reprinted from NCPS Bulletin

Junior colleges are flourishing as never before.

Twenty-five years ago, reports Architectural Forum, there were 500 junior colleges in the U. S., most of them private, with a total enrollment of 100,000.

Today there are 667 junior colleges and 900,000 students, and enrollment is growing at a "fantastic" rate. These two-year schools will be needed badly because in 1965 an estimated 5 million boys and girls (60 per cent of all high school graduates) will be seeking to further their education at some kind of college.

In trying to find ways to meet this demand for more learning, educators look upon the junior colleges as a godsend. A particularly encouraging development is the explosive growth of community colleges—junior colleges for specific, local communities.

According to Forum, the junior college offers at least three things which other educational institutions don't: (1) two years of low cost education after high school for the less well-to-do; (2) a two-year pe-

EDITORIAL

By JEANNIE GLASGOW

THE COLLEGIAN, and our college yearbook, the SI SI, are dependent financially on the advertising space purchased by Charlotte businesses and industries. These ads, however, are seldom read or even noticed by the student body. Consequently, many local firms have ceased campus newspaper and yearbook advertising.

In a sense, they are entirely justified, for their investments in our publications are practically ignored, and therefore become only "tax-deductible contributions." Few efficiently run businesses can allow this unprofitable facet of their budget to continue, even though they sincerely want to support Charlotte College. No wonder all the members of our business staffs have circles under their eyes and holes in their soles.

The solution is for everyone to wake up and read the whole publication, including the ads. By remembering these names, and patronizing them when possible, our student body will be doing themselves a favor, for then the Charlotte College publications will have the necessary financing to grow and improve.

This area of school spirit is just as important as voting or supporting athletic teams. These publications are the voice of Charlotte College in permanent print. Remember to read everything — including the ads!

Leadership Class Is Formed

C.C. students do not depend upon the idea of "born leaders" alone. Student Council members and club officers have organized for leadership training.

Approximately 25 officers, council members, committee chairmen, and faculty advisors attended the first Leadership Conference on Monday evening, October 11.

After Miss English explained the purpose and procedure of the conference, the assembly divided for group discussions of problems and solutions of those problems. The group reconvened for reports and recommendations. Here are some of the results:

Upon the recommendation of each group, an Inter-Club Council to consist of club presidents and committee chairmen was formed. The Council will meet early in each quarter to schedule meetings. Conflicts in meeting times appeared to be the major problem of most organizations.

The student leaders expressed a need for instructions in parliamentary procedure. Mrs. Winingham, advisor for the Student Council, volunteered to conduct the sessions.

Help Mayday

The Collegian staff publishes a newspaper but—don't forget—it is your newspaper and will be just as good as the interest and support you give it.

The Collegian is published at student government expense. It is for your information and pleasure and is a record of the history of Charlotte College.

The Collegian wishes to be the mirror of student opinion. It would like to print all newsworthy items of student, faculty and staff activities. We could never organize a staff large enough to gather all the news—the reporters are students too, and academic work does have a habit of interfering with extracurricular activities.

We ask your help in gathering the material and news you want to see in the Collegian.

Items for the newspaper should be typewritten, triple spaced, and signed by the person submitting it. It may be addressed to the Collegian and placed in the mail slot at the college office.
