Watch For Staff Meeting

BY SIDNEY T. STOVALL
Faculty Advisor

Six by-lines appear in this issue. Six students have worked hard to write the paper. Read their names, and if you have an extra nickel, buy one of them a coke. He may talk you into working on the paper.

Any spare cokes should go to Jerry Shields, who sold six of the seven ads, and to Tommy Estridge, who made the pictures.

Bert Allen's name appears alone on the mast-head. Other positions are open. Soon a staff meeting will be called. Watch your bulletin board for job categories.

Sigma Tau Sigma Taps

Social Science majors and students interested in the Social Sciences may qualify for membership in Sigma Tau Sigma, Social Science Honor Society.

Students who have taken six semester hours in Social Science with an average of 3.0 or better in these courses, in addition to a general average of 2.0 or better, may become members upon the recommendation of at least one instructor.

Students now enrolled for six semester hours of Social Science may be eligible for membership at the end of the first semester.

Marvin Henderson or Roger Huntley will be glad to check the qualifications of interested students and discuss membership with them.

After cramming...relax with a Coke.

The three students who accepted story assignments, but never returned, are directed to seek out a lonesome boiler room, there to dribble ashes each on his head with one hand while beating his breast with the other fist and exclaiming in anguished Latin: "Mea culpa! Mea culpa!" -- Fac. Adv.

Culture is twin brother to commerce. If a city would rise to greatness, she must adorn truth with beauty to stir the soul of her citizenry, but to survive for greatness she must maintain a fluent commerce, nourishing the citizen body.

Your Health, Your Choice

By Sam Lindeman

Students at Charlotte College were introduced to the views of the American Medical Association when its president-elect, Dr. Edward Annis, spoke on the controversial issue of federal medical aid to the elderly.

President Bonnie E. Cone presided at the lecture meeting, held in the library on Wednesday afternoon, October 10, and extended a cordial welcome to student guests from Mecklenburg College. Then she presented Dr. D. G. Welton, president of the local chapter of A.M.A., who introduced the speaker.

In a 45-minute speech, entitled "Your Health -- Your Choice," Dr. Annis used rebuttal tactics to explain that the A.M.A. is in favor of the currently enacted Kerr-Mills Act, rather than the new program proposed by President John F. Kennedy and recently defeated in the Senate.

While making it clear that the physician has no individual axe to grind in this matter, Dr. Annis went on to make it equally clear that the proposed program would result in duplication of effort in a great many instances, as well as inequities of administration that would be virtually impossible to avoid. The speaker kept emotional appeal to a min-holes and difficulties in the President's program.

Dr. Annis emphasized that the Kerr-Mills Act covers the situation adequately when allowed to function properly. His conclusion cited the need for more independence of action on the part of the individual as he summarized his arguments against the President's program.

A question-and-answer session lasted for an hour over coffee with interest students continuing the discussion. Conspicuously lacking from both the speech and the discussion was any direct appeal for "responsible financing," which has been the campaign rallying call of the Republican Party recently.

Although it appeared that the A.M.A. is conservative in its political thinking, there was no doubt that the chief representative of this organization recognizes that medical attention for the indigent aged is a real problem and that action should and must be taken.

Dr. C. Horace Hamilton of North Carolina State College has predicted an enrollment of over 10,000 students in Charlotte by 1970 if appropriate facilities are available.
