AT THE 1963 TRADE FAIR, EDUCATIONAL SIGHTS WERE LIFTED TO THE LAMP OF KNOWLEDGE SHINING IN A CRYSTAL SPHERE, A SYMBOL OF PROGRESS.

Students Help At Trade Fair

By Joyce Pressley

During the 1962-63 Trade Fair, held here May 4-11, Charlotte College was responsible for the Higher Education Booth.

The booth, designed in Raleigh, was assembled in the Coliseum by Mr. Hutchinson, Bill Thrift, and several others. It consisted of several raised outlines of North Carolina, on which were graphs showing the number of students in the past and noting the expected rise for the future. The names of all of North Carolina's junior and senior colleges and universities were also given.

Included in the booth was a model of the future Charlotte College, showing how the campus will look when it is completed.

Charlotte College students were responsible for manning the booth during the one hundred and twenty-eight hours that the Fair was open to the public. Among the hardest workers at the Fair was Miss Mildred English, who had to contact the students who worked at the Trade Fair and to make sure that the booth was manned at all times.

Botany Operations Expanded

By Sam Lindeman

For those who have been mystified, the egg-shaped curbs in our parking lot are meant as protection for trees, to be planted there in the fall. There will be no planting now, because of the lateness of the season.

The work on the new lake in front is on schedule. The dam is nearly finished; it only remains to clear the land, dig out the lake bed in spots, and put in ground cover, which will probably be rye grass. By Thanksgiving the lake should be filling from a spring, which will be underwater by the time the lake fills. The purpose in planting grass on the bottom is to hold down the mud effects experienced by Duke Power Company at Lakes Wylie and Norman. By the time the lake fills it will be a beautifully clear body of water and an attractive addition to the campus.

Planting in the Arboretum has been completed until next fall.

Awards Are

The Collegian.

The Bill Mitchel Award, which combines scholarship and leadership, was made to two members of the graduating class: Thomas Click Dutton and Sandra Louise Hodges.

There were three awards for highest scholastic average: in freshman chemistry, Roy David Bacon; in freshman engineering mathematics, Billy Ray Isley; and in sophomore engineering physics, Ray Everett Young.

Plants displayed by Charlotte College at the Southeastern Garden and Flower Show have been put in on the shores of the pond, in a "Bog Garden" display. During the summer, work will go forward on utilities and support facilities, as well as on the clearing and levelling of the access roads. Plants and trees presently in the Arboretum will be classified and tagged with specimen names and numbers. A cross file will be available for the serious student of botany.

Plans for next year also call for a second entry in the Southeastern Garden and Flower Show, once again to be held at the Merchandise Mart. The addition of a greenhouse to the campus will permit greater variety in the second entry, with more forced blooms and other stages in plants' life cycles.

The new greenhouse will measure fourteen by twenty-six feet.

Spring Dance Held May 11

The last social event of the year was one to be remembered. It was the beautiful Four Seasons Ball, held at Park Center, Saturday, May 11.

The evening began at 8:00 and terminated at 12:00.

The four seasons, spring, summer, fall, and winter, were represented by four lovely gardens against the walls of Park Center. The gardens were draped in blue crepe paper, giving the illusion of looking out a picture window onto the particular beauty of each season, further accented by revolving spotlights.

In the center of a dance floor bordered by large white columns hung a beautiful chandelier.
