Baubles, Bangles, Bright Shiny Books .....

Pencils, notebooks, fountain pens, and paperback novels — sounds like a bookstore, doesn't it. Well, that's exactly what it is; the Charlotte College bookstore to be more exact.

Not only is C. C.'s bookstore stocked with hundreds of textbooks ranging from La Moulins de Parole to Thermodynamics, but one hundred and one other articles can also be found here.

For the intellectually inclined, there is a collection of bestsellers in paperbacks which includes The Brothers Karamazov by Dostoevsky, Hemmingway's A Farewell to Arms, and Lord of the Flies by Golding. For the intellectually declined, there is always MAD magazine.

Show the world you're a Charlotte Collegian by wearing a C. C. pin, charm bracelet, or necklace. This jewelry is silver with the initials "C. C." on the front and "49ers" on the back. While you're at it, get a sweat shirt, pennant, mug, or piggy bank; all carry the Charlotte College emblem.

There is always music in the air from the popular albums played on the hi fi phonograph. Call it music to shop by if you like. It can also be music to "sit" by as the bookstore houses a comfortable lounge with stacks of current magazines available.

Judy Morgan has worked in the bookstore for two semesters. When asked if anything unusual or exciting ever happens, Judy replied, "No, nothing out of the ordinary. What I like most about my job is the opportunity I have to meet people. Sooner or later, I get a chance to meet everybody."

Judy is just one of several students employed in the bookstore. Managed by Larry Lynn, the rest of the bookstore staff consists of Jim Reynolds, Wally Overton, Charlie Helton, and George Simpson.

Vairo Speaks To Education Students

On Friday, March 27, students interested in teaching as a career met with Phillip Vairo, the head of the new Teacher Education Program. The new education program will become active this summer and will fit within the framework of the college curriculum.

The objective of the program will be to prepare students in the elementary and secondary teaching fields. To become a teacher a student must major in a field and take the required educational courses.

Qualified students will be admitted into the program in the second semester of their sophomore year. In the state of North Carolina a person who aspires to teach in either primary or secondary schools must have completed eighteen hours of education which will include practice teaching.

This new program is expected to graduate students in English, the social sciences, and the for-

Robert Hale In Concert

The chamber of the Great Hall in Myers Park Baptist Church rang with the brilliant baritone voice of Mr. Robert Hale Wednesday night of April 8, 1964. Mr. Hale comes out of the Southwest and his performance here was praised highly by all who attended. His visit is preceded by some of the most impressive reviews ever bestowed on a rising new opera star. Louis Nicholas of The Nashville Tennessean has written, "There is repose and absorption in his singing — a forgetfulness of self—which communicates powerfully to his audience. He sang everything with tonal beauty, muicianly phrasing, stylistic aptness, fine taste, and evident words fit aptly his performance here, also.

In the three years since Mr. Hale began serious voice study his awards have included the Wilson Award from the Bloch Young Artists Competition and the Amarillo Symphony Young Artist Award in addition to the winning of the Metropolitan Opera District Auditions in Tulsa and appearance as a finalist in the Metropolitan Opera Regional Auditions in St. Louis. In 1962 he won the annual "Singer of the Year" competition given by the National Association of Teachers of Singing.

Now studying in Boston, with Ludwig Bergmann, Mr. Hale recently appeared in concert at the famed Jordan Hall. "A baritone of magnificent richness," said The Christian Science Monitor. In February his outstanding rendition of the role Olin Blitch in the Boston University production of "Susannah," brought Rise Stevens of the Metropolitan Opera to Boston to view this young talent in action.

In the summer of 1963 he studied with Boris Goldovsky, Robert Gay and Arthur Schoep at the Denver Opera Workshop and in addition received his Master of Music Education Degree from the University of Oklahoma.

Dr. Harvey L. Woodruff, Director of Music at the college said, "We are indeed fortunate to get Mr. Hale at this stage in his career. I hope this is going to be the first of many such concerts to come to Charlotte in the future. However, man concerts which may appear here in the future I'm sure Mr. Hale's performance will be remembered among the best."

C. C. Chorus To Sing In Jewish Music Festival

The Charlotte College chorus will join with the Johnson C. Smith University choir and the Queens College concert choir for the Second Jewish Music Festival of the Carolinas. The concert will take place on Sunday evening, April 26 at Ovens Auditorium. The world famous Israeli singing troupe Genula Gill Trio will be featured along with the other choruses.

The theme of the concert is "Brotherhood Through Music" and although the program is sponsored by Temple Israel of Charlotte, it is endorsed by civic groups, colleges, and the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The Geula Gill Trio will be featured in songs from Israel and the entire group of choruses will present Jewish life around the world through folk songs and chants.

The members of the trio are Geula Gill, Dor Seltze, and Michael Kagan. They have recorded on Columbia, Electra, and Folkways albums.

It is hoped that those listening to and enjoying this concert will become better acquainted with

"Dub" Graham Addresses YDC

By Bill Queen

William E. "Dub" Graham spoke to the Charlotte College Young Democrats' Club Wednesday night, April 8, at 8:00 p.m. Beginning with a monologue of political jokes Mr. Graham went on tell of the organizing of the North Carolina YDC.

Mr. Graham, former State YDC President, now among the top ten YDC'ers in the nation, was recently the floor manager of Al House's successful campaign on Al's being elected the national YDC President. Mr. Graham is a successful Charlotte lawyer and is called "Mr. Democrat of Mecklenburg County."

The Democratic youth movement in North Carolina, he said, began in 1894 when a small group of men got together and organized the young Democratic voters for Grover Cleveland, the Democratic presidential nominee that year. In 1908, with William Jennings Bryant on the Dem ticket, O. Max Gardner and present State Treasurer Edwin Gill formed together a group of young men to support the national, local, and state Dem slates.

In 1928, with the religious issue dominating the national scene, O. Max Gardner, the Democratic candidate for governor, again organized a group of young men and women and defeated the powerful Eastern North Carolina political machine headed by Senator F. M. Simmons who bolted the Democratic Party that year.

This victory encouraged the Dem youth movement state-wide with Ray Ferris at the helm. He organized young Dem voters in every county.

1930 was the year that the first YDC Convention was held nationally. This convention was organized by the North Carolina YDC and the YDC spreads nationwide.

At the Democrat National Convention in 1948, Strom Thurmond and the Dixiecrats bolted the Democratic Party but the N. C. YDC's held together under the leadership of H. Clifton Blue, who is presently speaker of the House and a candidate for Lt.-Gov. Because the YDC supported Harry S. Truman and Alvin Barkley, N. C. went Democratic nationally instead of going down the road with the Dixiecrats. And because of this, N. C. is rightfully called today the most progressive Southern state in the union.

Again in 1960, the religious issue came to a head at Democratic National Convention in Los Angeles. But North Carolina went to the convention and gave its electoral votes to JFK mainly because of a resolution by the N. C. YDC which stated: "The Constitution of the United States of America guarantees everyone the right to his own religion and he should have the right to serve his country as anyone else."

And now, the capstone of the North Carolina YDC movement has been the election of Al House to the national YDC presidency.

Almost everyone who is managing or helping to manage the gubernatorial candidates in the upcoming primary elections had their first start in politics by joining local YDC's. And Mr. Graham concluded by stating that the YDC at Charlotte College is getting a fast start in becoming respected by the other YDC's across the state.

lake. Two truckloads of shrubbery have been planted in the watershed, and the whole area will be sowed in grass.

An interesting feature of the lake, and one which shows the ingenuity of Dr. Hechenbleikner, is the trash guard on the overflow pipe. It is the nosecone from a jet fuel tank which was jettisoned on the campus a few years ago. Dr. Hechenbleikner has had some help in building the lake. This week, during their spring vacation, members of the college Circle K Club volunteered their help in preparing the banks to be sowed in grass. As the students of the future look over this picturesque scene, they should remember the many hours of hard work that went into this added scene of beauty for CC by Dr. Heck and the Circle K members.

the Jewish faith and its traditions.

Circle K At Convention

A Circle K Convention was held over the weekend at the University of South Carolina in Columbia, South Carolina. The event was the Carolina's District of Circle K International. There are twenty-five clubs in the district.

J. M. Spearman, president of Charlotte College Circle K, Ronnie Webber, treasurer Tommy Esteridge, Zeb Waid, and Roger Reynolds left early Saturday morning to be in Columbia before 9:30 a.m. They returned Sunday afternoon.

The purpose of the convention was to elect district officers: a Governor, one Lieutenant Governor from each district, and a Secretary - Treasurer. Another purpose was to exchange ideas on service and fund raising projects and on club organization and operation.
