

PHARR YATES.

A Popular Society Couple Married in Charlotte.

The Charlotte Observer gives the following account of the marriage Thursday of Mr. Henry Neal Pharr, to Miss Bertie Yates:

"The ceremony was solemnized at 9 o'clock in the Second Presbyterian church, by the pastor, Rev. John W. Stagg, in the presence of an assemblage of friends that completely filled the large building. The only decorations in the church were the masses of ferns and palms most tastefully arranged about the chancel. The doors had been opened half an hour previous to the time set for the ceremony, and when 9 o'clock arrived the church was filled to such an extent that the ushers had difficulty in keeping a passage way cleared for the bridal party. Then the lights flashed up, flooding the scene with brilliancy, and as Miss Nan Owen, who presided at the organ, began the wedding march, the ribbon girls, Misses Adelaide Cartwright and Lizzie Eason, adorned in white organdis, walked down the aisle and took their places at the altar. They were followed by the bride, Miss Bertie Yates, who wore a gown of white silk and carried in France roses. The bride was dressed in white brocade, and her veil was caught back with a spray of pearls and diamonds. She carried bridal roses in her hands as she entered the church with her brother, Mr. Will J. Yates. The groom entered with his brother, Mr. John Pharr, joining the bride at the altar. Around them were arranged the ushers, Messrs. Will K. Yates, W. H. Twitty, James Bell and David Yates, of Charlotte; Dr. H. M. Stuckey, of Sumter, S. C., and Mr. George L. Patterson, of Concord. The groom is a prominent and popular member of the Charlotte bar. The bride is a daughter of the late William J. Yates, who was editor of the Democrat, and is a great favorite in Charlotte social circles. Among the many handsome wedding gifts was a trunk filled with silverware, from the members of the Charlotte bar. The county commissioners gave testimony to their good wishes in a silver tea set.

CONCORD IN PRINT.

HER WONDERFUL PROGRESS THE PAST YEAR.

Very Pictures of Our City as She is Today—Her Splendid Churches, Schools, Banks, Hotels, Newspapers.

—Her Immense Manufacturing Plants and Workshops, Her Flour, Her Lawyers, Doctors, Dentists, Etc.—Steady Advancement of a Thriving Community.

One hundred and four years ago Cabarrus became a county formed of territory embraced in Mecklenburg county. A county seat formed on small part of the vexing questions on which men differ. The location was a compromise and Concord was the name that it was hoped would carry reconciliation, peace and good will. Slowly but steadily she has forged her way to the front rank of prosperous towns in the State and with all her varied interest probably the name Concord was never more fitting than at this time. Her population seems to be in the enjoyment of peace and good will.

Without noting what the town has or has not been we propose to review her as she is today and what she has accomplished in '96.

A casual glance shows the town to be in the Piedmont section on the great Southern Railway which has learned her importance for outlying trade.

CITY GOVERNMENT. The town has a good and safe government with L. McKee Morrison as mayor, with L. D. Duval, A. M. Brown, R. F. Coble, J. C. Fox, J. K. Patterson and G. T. Crowell as aldermen.

Between the two extremes of burdensome taxation on the one hand and a neglect of improvements to meet the increasing demands of a growing town on the other these sturdy fathers look well to every interest of the town.

Concord has an bar rooms and therefore Mr. J. L. Boger and Mr. S. O. Fisher are able to hold down all the toughs in its 6,200 inhabitants, besides the immense number who gather here for purposes of business or pleasure, though additional police force might be good.

OUR CHURCHES. The great conservator in any community is the church, and Concord is not wanting.

On stated occasions the bells ring out the call to worshippers to assemble under the ministry of Rev. C. B. Miller at St. James', Rev. W. O. Alexander at the First Presbyterian church, Dr. J. A. Davis at All Saints, Rev. J. J. Payne at the Baptist church, Rev. H. A. McCullough at St. Andrews, Rev. McGee at Boyd's Chapel, Rev. J. D. Arnold at Forest Hill, Rev. A. K. Pool at Central Forest Hill, Rev. J. E. Thompson at Central M. E. Church, Rev. J. F. Davis at Trinity Reform, Rev. N. J. B. Kette at Grace E. L. Church, Rev. J. V. Logan at Westminster church, Rev. W. O. Vest at Allison Grove church, Rev. A. J. Gerban at First Memorial Temple, Rev. W. M. Mills at St. Mark's, Rev. Oliver Staudt at Holy Comforter church.

schools. Educational advantages are rarely surpassed in a town of her size and embraces Scotia Seminary, a College for colored females and the presidency of Rev. D. J. Saterfield, D. D., with 16 students and 298 students; Concord High School for white males and females under the proprietorship of Prof. Holland Thompson, assisted by his brother, Prof. Walter E. Thompson, with 24 pupils, which is the full capacity of the building and marks a most satisfactory season of prosperity in the history of this academy; The Concord Graded School, under the proprietorship of Prof. J. F. Sifton, with eleven most efficient and accomplished lady teachers; (for the convenience of small children one branch of this school is taught at Forest Hill and one at Cannonville) the total enrollment is 514, which is greater than any previous enrollment; The Colored Graded School, J. F. K. Simpson, principal, with three assistants, 143 pupils; Grace E. L. parochial school, for colored pupils, Rev. N. I. Bakke, principal, and Prof. E. F. Rolf and Miss Mamie Pearson, assistants with 110 pupils.

Miss S. V. Elish, with 34 pupils. Miss Kate Gibson, with — pupils. Miss — Barrett, with — pupils.

The Holy Reform School, Rev. Oliver Staudt, with 63 pupils; Allison Grove school, Rev. W. O. Vest teacher, with — pupils.

FACTS. Our textile manufacturers are probably our leading interest and embrace 8 mills and 1 bleaschery. The O'ell Manufacturing Co., controls five mills. Mr. J. M. Odell, President, and W. R. Odell, Secretary and Treasurer. They manufacture sheeting, ginghams, domestics, plaids, seam and seamless bage. They employ 28,000 spindles, 1336 looms for plaids etc., and 12 looms for seamless bage. Capital $500,000, hands employed 900, with an output of about 24,000,000 yards per year and a monthly payroll of $13,000.

The Cannon Manufacturing Co., comprise 2 mills, J. M. Odell, President, J. W. Cannon, Secretary and Treasurer. This company has a capital of $200,000, 17,000 spindles, 500 looms, employ 400 hands and has a monthly payroll of $5,000.

The Cabarrus Mill, with D. F. Cannon President and J. W. Cannon Secretary, is our youngest cotton mill but like all the others is prosperous, running day and night. It has 4,000 spindles 278 looms, capital $100,000, number of hands employed 150 with a monthly payroll of $2,000.

These factories combined consume 14,000 bales of cotton yearly. The $30,000 paid monthly in cash for its equivalent and is not in scrip or tickets, limited to one place of redemption.

BANKS. The financial pulse of enterprises throbs from a center that is generally the bank. Concord has one named, or has been retained by, The Concord National Bank, since 1888. It has a capital of $50,000 with a surplus of $21,000. Mr. J. M. Odell is President, Dr. W. H. Lilly, Vice-President, D. B. Coitman, cashier and L. D. Coletano, assistant cashier. This bank practices no evasions of the law and lends money at legal rates. It has the proud record of never losing a loan and when it has money to lend, always lends without discrimination to whoever will make it a safe note. It has been in touch with the growth of our factory stock from $300,000 to $324,000.

The volume of business in the town and community has given birth to the Cabarrus Savings Bank with a capital of $50,000 that marks the enterprise of '96. This bank will probably secure its charter in time to present its sign and open its doors for business by the 15th of January, '97. Besides the usual banking business it embraces, as its name indicates, a savings feature for the benefit of small depositors. Its officers are: President, D. F. Cannon, Vice-President, Martin Boger, Cashier, J. J. Gibson; Teller, H. I. Woodhouse.

OUR MERCHANTS. The oldest inhabitant can scarcely recall the time when this firm did not control the leading dry goods and clothing of this section, having been in business continuously for about 25 years. Mr. D. F. Cannon, the senior member of the firm began business in '66. The other members of this staunch old firm are Messrs. P. B. Fetzer and J. W. Cannon. Every year has marked an increase in this immense business, until now it extends over all the adjoining counties and mounts high up in the hundreds of thousands of dollars yearly. It requires 16 to 18 salesmen to accommodate the trade, and they are kept busy every day and night. It is unnecessary to mention the lines of goods carried in stock by this firm, as every man, woman and child in five counties knows that they handle everything. Their double stores and warehouse are always packed to their utmost capacity. This firm commands the confidence and respect of all, and justly. It stands today a monument to the business integrity and sterling worth of its members.

J. V. ALLEN. One of Concord's most substantial business men. Mr. Allen succeeded his father, and hardly a former in the county but what at some time has been carried by this liberal firm. A full line of general merchandise and farmer's supplies is carried, and 25 years of continuous business has built up a trade of very large proportions. Mr. Allen employs three salesmen, all of whom are most polite and obliging.

OLD MERCANTILE CO. The down-town dry goods and shoe store. This firm moved to Concord about two years ago and has done a very successful business. They have the reputation of keeping in stock a first-class line of dry goods, shoes and notions. The firm employs five salesmen, all of whom meet their customers in a pleasant and inviting manner, which goes to make any business a success. Old Mercantile Company also have establishments in several other North Carolina towns and in Virginia. The store is located in the very center of business, and their dull days are few and far between. Their business is in a healthy, growing condition, and we cheerfully commend them to the public generally.

GIBSON & MORRISON. Successors to Morrison, Lentz & Co. The members of the firm are R. E. Gibson and Baker Morrison. This firm is but three years old, but both of its members have for many years been closely identified with the business interests of the town in their firms. They carry a full line of dry goods, notions, shoes and everything strictly up-to-date at prices to suit the times. They have the reputation of never having lost a customer from any cause and more polite general accommodating gentlemen would be indeed hard to find.

LOWE & DICK. This firm has not yet been in business a year, but they have established in this time a solid footing in the confidence of the public. They carry in stock, dry goods, shoes, hats, notions, millinery, etc., and a full and complete line in each department. Their advertisements tell you that their goods are "the cheapest store on the globe" and they guarantee perfect satisfaction with every sale. The motto of this house is: "Quick sales and small profits," and they will not allow a sale to hinge on the difference of a few cents, and it is unnecessary to state that they get their full share of the trade, not only of this but of several counties. By putting the prices down low they never have to discount or over a sale. The firm employs five salesmen and they are always busy.

D. P. DAYVAULT. By superstitious people thirteen is considered an unlucky number, but here is one case, at least, in which it will not hold good. "Pat" Dayvault has been in business here 13 years, and the volume of his patronage has increased with each succeeding year. He occupies a double store-room right in the business center of the town, and ten salesmen are kept busy behind his counters from early morn till daway eve. There is probably not a better known or more generally liked business man in Cabarrus county than D. P. Dayvault. Quiet and unassuming in his manner, he is one of the solid merchants of Concord, and men of his calibre cannot fall of success in this community.

THE RACKET. The almost unparalleled success of Mr. D. J. Bestian, as proprietor of the Racket Store, shows what may be done in Concord by pluck and energy. He began business a few years ago on a very limited capital, and his entire stock could have been carried off at one load. By close attention to business and a careful study of the wants and needs of his patrons Mr. Bestian now ranks with the leading merchants of this section, and his large store is filled from cellar to garret with goods of all kinds. Proprietor and salesmen are the personification of politeness and treat the penny customer with as much consideration as the one who spends $15. The Racket this year has an unusually choice line of Christmas novelties and Santa Claus will no doubt make his headquarters there again this year.

SWICK & WHITE. This is a comparatively new firm, having been in business only about four months, but the personal popularity of the members has built up for them a substantial patronage. They carry an $8,000 to $10,000 stock of general merchandise, and employ six salesmen in waiting on their patrons.

DRY & WADSWORTH. Dry & Wadsworth, the leading furniture men of this section of the State, are successors to the firm of Cannon, Fetzer & Bell, and have, for the past fourteen months, accumulated an immense trade in this city, county and neighboring counties. They have received orders from the most remote regions of the State for furniture, as well as their business known and advertised. They carry a $12,000 stock, and do business to the tune of $35,000 per annum. They also handle undertakers' supplies in large quantities, from the cheapest plain coffin to the most elaborate steel and metal caskets. Messrs. A. E. Lentz and W. L. Bell are up-to-date in the embalming department and are known an appreciative public for their promptness and efficiency when called upon. The firm is enjoying a specially favored custom, which is due to the manner in which the business of the concern is conducted. They are obliging to their installment patrons also, who would be deprived of many serviceable pieces of furniture were it not for the easy terms which this firm allows them. Their business is of great proportion and is one of the most necessary establishments Concord has.

BALTIMORE CLOTHING HOGGER. J. Shapperio opened up a year ago, and has done a good business all alone. He carries in stock a full line of clothing, shoes, hats, furnishings, sporting goods, and musical instruments to the amount of $5,000. The firm employs three salesmen. Mr. Shapperio is closing out his stock at a very low figure in order to go exclusively into the wholesale business. He reports increased receipts every month, having built up a good and reliable trade on a strictly cash basis.

FAITHEBORN'S. This is the large wholesale and retail grocery and commission house of Concord, with G. W. Patterson as manager, Geo. J. Patterson as proprietor and a corps of efficient salesmen. This is one of our city's oldest established houses, and its patronage has grown to immense proportions, having kept pace with the growing demands of our city.

DOVE & BOST. J. Dove and D. Luther Boat are the members of this firm. They handle dry goods, shoes, hats, glassware, crockery and groceries. Their specialty however, is fancy groceries, fruits, etc. Everything here is kept neat as a parlor. They have a large and constantly increasing patronage, in both town and county, employing three salesmen and running a free delivery to all parts of the city, and the jingle of the bells of their delivery wagon can be heard at any time during the day.

A. L. SAPPENFIELD. If there is anybody in town who don't know and like "Doc" Sappenfield he must have come in on the last train, for he has been doing business at the "same old stand" for fourteen years, and a thriving business, too. You never hear "Doc" croaking about trade being dull, for he keeps his three salesmen bustling night and day filling orders. He has in stock some general merchandise, but his strong point is groceries, staple and fancy. Sappenfield has properly shipped more "wooly cotton tails" this season than all the other dealers combined.

LITTLE & CONYSLING. This is another of the many new firms established here during the past year, and one of the most successful of the whole lot. They have only been with us half a year, but they haven't let any flies light on them in that time, and they have succeeded in building up a first-rate custom in staple and fancy groceries. Mr. Conybling came from Mooreville, Mr. Little from Baltimore. Both are young men, steady, energetic and progressive, and by close attention to their patrons' wants, they continue to make new friends and customers every day.

STRICKEN & SON. T. C. Stricker and son, Louis R., do a strictly cash business in plain and fancy groceries. They are very modest and don't attempt to put on any frills. They have a satisfactory trade, and by paying cash for their goods, they can and do sell at rock-bottom figures. Mr. Stricker is an old-timer here and his friends are legion.

C. B. WAGNER. Carries a $1,250 stock of staple and fancy groceries, and has no reason to complain of lack of custom. His sales will aggregate $5,000 a year, and are increasing daily. Mr. Wagner is up to date in everything, and is one of Concord's most popular young business men and counts his friends by the number of his acquaintances.

H. G. RITZ. "Henry," as every one calls him, is one of the boys. He has a neat little store and a large stock—in fact he has goods to burn, and enough of them to supply the town, as long as the good city fathers will allow the boys to shoot fireworks. But this is not all he's got, for he carries a full line of groceries, canned goods and confections. He also runs a first class bakery, and has always on hand the best of bread, cakes, pies, etc.

JOHN C. SMITH. John has been here just one year, and has done a good business from the opening day. He started with a small stock, but has been steadily adding to it until he now has his shelves full to overflowing and increased custom has necessitated the employment recently of a delivery clerk. John has all the qualities of a successful merchant in his make-up.

ED HILL. Mr. Hill carries a nice line of plain and fancy groceries, which has been supplemented during the holidays with a large stock of fireworks and Christmas novelties. He is a popular young man with all classes, and has a thriving patronage.

LIPFARD & BARRIEA. These gentlemen are well known to the trade and use no economy from us. They carry a full line of dry goods, shoes, hats, and heavy groceries. Both are popular and command the confidence of all who know them. This firm has been in business a number of years and has a well established and reliable trade.

WARREN C. COLEMAN. Warren has been in business here for many years, and has accumulated an independent fortune by his close attention to business, and is classed among the wealthiest colored men of the South. He carries a complete stock of groceries, and has a custom which can always be depended on.

McBee has sold out his contract for the Bryan lectures to an Atlanta company for $75,000, making a bonus of $25,000. The first day's sale of tickets in Atlanta were 1,000. Bryan is to speak at Nashville and Memphis, Tenn. He will speak at seven places in Texas which have all been sold for $19,000. He is not to come to North Carolina, from the fact that no auditorium in the State is large enough to justify.

Mrs. Drayton married again. LONDON, Dec. 17.—Mrs. J. Coleman Drayton, nee Astor, was married at one o'clock this afternoon to Mr. George Haig, a wealthy whiskey merchant of this city.

Suffered Eighteen Years. Pains Deprived and Sleep Cured. Mrs. Julia A. Brown, of Covington, Tenn., whose husband and she were the electric light plant at that place, has been a great sufferer. Her ailments and speedy cure are best described by herself, as follows: "For 18 years I suffered from nervousness and indigestion. I tried every remedy recommended by friends and doctors, but I had no relief at all. Two years ago, while being treated by three local physicians, Dr. Barrett, Dr. H. H. Short, they informed me that I had become dropped, and that there was little hope for me. I then decided to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. I was then made to get to sleep until well on ground again, and during all this time I had a very heavy coat on my feet, and was very comfortable. I had never before had any relief of the kind. The Nervine is the only remedy that has ever done me any good. I think I shall never give up my life for Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine."
