BATTLES OF THE CIVIL WAR.

They Were on a Scale of Surpassing Magnitude—Some Impressive Figures.

The campaign and battles of the civil war were on a scale of surpassing magnitude. There were more than a score of single battles, sometimes extending over several days, in each of which the losses in killed and wounded on the Federal side were greater than the aggregate of all our losses in all our other wars combined.

In no other war in all time has such respect been paid to the dead. Immediately after its close the Secretary of War was directed by Congress "to secure suitable burial places and to have these grounds enclosed, so that the resting-places of the honored dead may be kept sacred forever."

In seventy-nine separate and distinct national cemeteries the bodies of nearly 300,000 soldiers who died during the civil war are interred, and the decoration of their graves with flowers on a fixed day has become a national custom.

Some of the cemeteries contain each a silent army of 10,000 soldiers, in serried rank marked by the white headstones, on nearly half of which is inscribed "unknown."

What Is Wealth. Does wealth consist in money, houses, lands, bank stocks, railroad bonds, etc., alone? We think not. The young man starting in life with no money but good digestion, good sleep, good health and ability to work in some profitable employment, has what the aged capitalist would be glad to exchange all his millions for.

Which brings the greater happiness—the glitter, show, jealousies and falsity of fashionable life, or the heartfelt friendships which prevail so largely in the homes of the industrious poor?

In how many of the palaces of our millionaires will you find greater happiness in the parlor than in the kitchen? How many millionaires will tell you that they are happier now than when starting in life without a dollar?

On the tops of mountains we find rock, and ice, and snow. It is down in the valleys that we find the vineyards.

Let no man envy those richer than himself until taking all things into account—age, health, wife, children, friends—he is sure he would be willing to exchange.—Geo. T Angell.
