MONEY.

NO. 8

(Concluded from yesterday.)
 It is, of course, immaterial how this matter be viewed. The important thing to keep in mind, is to look at it so that it may be seen as it is. Suppose that the corn was worth $1.00 a bushel when borrowed and $1.50 when payment was to be made who should receive the benefit of the rise in price? The party who lent the corn or the party who borrowed it? He borrowed $40 worth of corn, should he pay back $40 worth? It should be answered that the contract was not to pay dollars worth of corn, but bushels of corn. The contract should be fulfilled.

Willst we are on this subject of debt, suppose that A borrows one thousand dollars of B, to pay C for a tract of land. And suppose that at the end of five years when A goes to pay B, the value of the land has gone to eight hundred dollars, and suppose that the land decreased in value because money appreciated in value. A feels that he has been cheated out of two hundred dollars. Now at which end of the transaction ought he go to get his two hundred dollars? To B from whom he borrowed the money, or to C to whom he paid it? C has the thousand dollars which has appreciated in value, and A has the tract of land which has depreciated in value, B has neither the land nor the money, but has A's promise to pay him the thousand dollars. He is worth one thousand dollars, and if the money appreciates in value it is not just that the note he holds against A should appreciate in value, C has the money that has appreciated in value would it not be fair that he should restore the money which A claims he lost wrongfully? Why make B, who was no party to the transaction the loser on account of the appreciation of the value of money or the depreciation of the value of the land. It was A's and C's transaction, A received the land, and C received the money, now why should they combine to make B lose the two hundred dollars? A and C did the trading they received the benefit, why make a third party bear the loss? What kind of a country would it be that would for one moment listen to or tolerate such a proceeding?

The constitution does not provide for the appreciation or depreciation of values, but if it means anything at all with reference to the value of money it means that the gold and silver coins shall be honest coins. The word dollar does not appear in the constitution, but it is implied that if we call the coins dollars then any one dollar shall be equivalent in every respect to every other dollar. Such a thing as a cheap dollar or a dear dollar is not known to the constitution. If the constitution means anything at all it means that the legal tender coins shall bear plainly and truthfully the impression of the stamp which is designed to inform people what the weight and fineness of the coins are. The constitution was not constructed and adopted for the perpetration of dishonesty and fraud. The money of the constitution is honest money. The stamp of the government should be a truthful stamp. THE ODD FELLOWS.

In Line They March to the Picnic Grounds at Misenheimer's Grove—Speaking and Baseball.

At 10 o'clock this (Saturday) morning the Odd Fellows met at their hall on Main street and marched in line to the large and beautiful oak grove known as the Misenheimer picnic grounds. Several hundred people had gathered there for the occasion, and indeed the day was one round of pleasure.

At 11:30 o'clock the Odd Fellows were addressed by Mr. M H H Caldwell and Rev J R Moose.

This afternoon a game of baseball is being played between Concord and Forest Hill. The contest will be a good one.

The Forest Hill team challenged the Charlotte boys for a game Monday but they would not accept. Efforts are being made to get Salisbury to come down Monday.

Coming Mill Street.

Mr. M Luther Julian has about completed a handsome cottage residence on Mill street for Mr. P B Fetzer, and tells a STANDARD reporter that in all probability Mr. Fetzer will build at once, ten more houses on his property on that street. All of them will be built on the modern cottage home style with the necessary conveniences.

Mr. West Kestler Held Up and Robbed.

Everybody in these parts remembers Mr. V West Kestler, a former citizen of Concord and for a long time a clerk at Cannons & Fetzer's. He has been living in Texas quite awhile and he was married there. He is in the employ of Mr. T U Stricker, of this place, selling articles for household usage.

He writes Mr. Stricker that the other day at Eagle Lake, Texas, he was held up by three robbers and under Winchester and pistols was made to unload his (Kestler's) pistol and a purse of twenty five dollars.

He adds that he recovered his pistol, the next day, at a barroom and he believes that the bar men and the robbers are in "cohort."

Mr. Kestler is the father of Treasurer Kestler of Cabarrus county.

An Accident.

Cecil Foil was badly hurt this morning, while riding his bicycle down the sidewalk on Main street. He was coming at quite a rapid rate, and when in front of Mr. J W Cannon's, a small child ran out upon the sidewalk, and in trying to avoid a collision Cecil fell against the fence, striking his left jaw on a pointed paling, which cut a hole through to the bone. It was painful, but the hurt was better for him than it might have been for the child. But the bicycle riders and the city fathers say that children and women should stay off the sidewalks or defend themselves as best they can.

THE BICYCLISTS KICK.

A Moonlight Picnic—Absent 13 Years, Mr. Ramsey is Back on a Visit.

SALISBURY, N. C., Aug 5.—A delightful moonlight picnic was given last night at South River by the young men of the town complimentary to visiting young ladies. The following were those in the party: Misses Pauline Bernhardt, Maude Bernhardt, Lila Bernhardt, Blanche Bernhardt, Louise Neave, Beulah Barker; visitors: Misses Bertha Brown, of Washington, N. C.; Elizabeth Gibson, of Concord, Lila Wyatt, of Wadesboro, Messrs. Clarence Klutz, Warren Klutz, Gus Bingham, Thomas Sanderford, Archibald Henderson, Walter Woodson, Harold Tyler. Chaperones Mesdames Neave and Barker. Lunch was served at 10:30. Dancing and boat-riding added to fun and laughter made up the pleasure of the evening. The party returned at 12:30 this morning.

William, the little son of Hon. John S Henderson is on the sick list.

Some of the bicycle riders here are criticising the action of the city council in prohibiting riding on the sidewalks.

Salisbury will be well represented at the Centennial celebration at Lower Stone church tomorrow.

Mr. R L Ramsey, of Texas, son of Dr. J Y Ramsey, of Mount Vernon, this county, arrived Thursday night on a visit to his old home. He left here about 13 years ago and this is his first trip to North Carolina. Mr. Ramsey has been quite successful in Texas.

A Bad Tongue.

Every one knows the evil of a running tongue. It causes contamination, bad feeling and often a law suit. There is a case in town, and from what we can hear, trouble may be expected if there is not something done to stop it. It is not a woman's tongue, either. On East Depot street at Warren Coleman's stable, a wagon stands with its tongue out over the sidewalk, against which several parties have skinned their shins and no doubt it has brought forth words that were not exactly what you would learn at Sunday school.

Concord Tuesday Night.

Something unusually fine in the way of vocal and instrumental music is in store for us all Tuesday night at the Armory Hall, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

The ladies of the Presbyterian church will give a concert, consisting of vocal and instrumental music for the benefit of charitable and missionary causes. They will be assisted, among others, by Misses Bonnie Oats, Julia Richardson, Gertrude Robbins and Miss Fawcote, of Mt. Airy, and Mrs. M H H Caldwell, Messrs H W Barlow and brothers, Messrs Garrett, and Keesler will compose the orchestra.

Admission only 25 cents.
