At the Baptist church next Sun-

Master Hinton Willeford was carried home from the Odell mill's about noon today in a pretty bad shape. He had had a chill and was terribly cramped and suffering intensely. He was overheated and almost prostrated yesterday while riding a bicycle.

Children's Day exercises were held at Bays chapel at Cannonville Sunday night. An interesting programme had been arranged for the occasion, which was rendered in full with the greatest appreciation, and showed that the Sunday school at that place is doing a good work.

gave up the ghost.

Hogs in various parts of the city are dying, whether from natural causes or from the condition of their dens is not known, as a diagnosis is altogether out of the question. Korner, in his letter of Saturday, tells of the death of two of his fine ones during his absence, and this (Monday) morning a fine one at the Morris hotel gave up the ghost. There is such general complaint that the hogs are actually ridding themselves of their own existence.

The Virginia Crops

The Virginia Midland railroad of the Southern runs through a section that has suffered unusually this year.
 The wheat was poor, the corn is a failure and tobacco is short.

To a man riding on a railroad train, around lots of bends, that portion of Virginia looks awfully poor. But then there has been no rain in two months and most any ground looks poor when as dry as powder.

It Will Rain.

We have been informed by one who is a reliable party and one who is well posted on signs, that it will rain within the next two days. He states that all during the drought the chickens have not been crowing, but that there will be a change; that "the cocks will begin crowing about midnight tonight and continue through the night until daybreak, within 24 hours after which it will rain." It is hoped that the "old man's prophecy will hold.

Meeting Postponed.

On account of sickness and the continued and oppressive hot weather, the revival meetings that were announced to have begun Sunday at Forest Hill Methodist church, have been postponed for a week. Rev.
 Smith anticipates a successful meeting.
