EPISCOPAL GENERAL CONVENTION

The Protestant Episcopal General Convention, in session at Minneapolis, is composed of many of the ablest men in America. In the House of Bishops are men of lofty mould, profound scholarship, and religious zeal. The most distinguished of the clergy, and men foremost in the secular walks of life add to the body of learned men of the Episcopal church.

Two matters came before the convention of extraordinary interest. The report of the Constitutional Commission appointed by the last convention provokes much debate. It is admitted to contain many useful provisions, but is objected on the ground that it unduly enlarges the powers of the Bishops and curtail those of the other clergy and of the laity.

The proposition to change the name of the church will come up again. Some wish to have it called "the American Church," others "the Holy Catholic Church," while there is another class that insists on the name "the Church." The subject of church union will probably be discussed again, but with no hope of a coming together of the denominations on the basis of the Four Lambeth propositions. If church union ever comes, it is now recognized by the Episcopalians that Phillips Brooks was right in saying that it could not be expected on the basis of the historic episcopacy and faith in apostolic succession. — Raleigh Observer.

NEWSPAPER DEAD-BEATS.

The Reidsville Review wrote an editorial on the newspaper dead-beat and the Statesville Landmark follows it up as follows:

"The Statesville Landmark writes about the same dead-beat, but from another point of view. Our observation and experience have been such as to tell us that the Landmark is right—that it has sized the newspaper dead-beat up pretay accurately. It says:

"That is an interesting and well written article from the Reidsville Review, about the dead-beat subscriber. It will touch a responsive chord in the breast of every newspaper man in the State, as well as in other lines of business. But the Landmark's experience is different from that of the Review in one important particular. Our experience is that of the dead-beat, instead of complimenting the paper, is generally a very exacting individual, infinitely more so than the best cash-paying subscriber on the book. It is difficult to get the paper up to the standard of excellence that he requires of it, and he is generally free with his criticisms. After a time when you begin to press him for cash, he is free to say that the paper is no account and that he only takes it as an accommodation to you—feeling it his duty to encourage editors by subscribing for their paper

—even if he never pays for them. And if you should become hard-hearted enough to cut off his free reading matter entirely, he will be outraged; he will be your enemy for life. He will make it his business to put in a word against you, or your paper on all occasions; he will tell now it has deteriorated, he will wonder why people take your sheet at all; and he will point out the excellencies of the rival newspaper. And all this because you allowed him to read the paper two or three years without pay and then tried to collect out of the infernal scoundrel what was honestly your due."

Chairman Holton, of the State Republican committee, has written a letter setting forth that he favors co-operation on State issues but cannot support a fusion on national matters. The spoils men of the two parties will get together and arrange how their followers shall vote. It is entirely in the hands of the leaders, the laymen having nothing to do but obey.

If that Yale foot ball man who has gone to China as missionary gets an open field and a fair show he will convert the heathen or fatten him out. Muscular Christianity is needed in that country, supplemented at times with more or less powder and shot.

The young man who was arrested in Lancaster, Pa., for hugging and kissing women on the street pleaded in extenuation that he was subject to periodical hugging and kissing fits, and couldn't help it. Then the Justice gave him fits and wound up sending him to jail where when the old fits come he could perform on the jailor.

Scientist Tindall didn't seem to have a very colossal opinions of comets when he declared that he could pack one of them into a one-horse cart. But where in the mischief would he pack the tail?

Drought prevails.

Summer, like a full-blown rose, has dropped down among the faded leaves of autumn.

The shrill cry of the steam whistle announces that cotton is being prepared for market.

Protracted religious meetings being at an end, the farmers' attention and energy is again directed into secular channels.

Local gossip arises to state that a roller flouring mill will probably be erected at the site of Turner's idle buhr mill, in the shadowy future.

Joyous anticipation pictures the festive corn-huskings soon to be at hand. Then will be verified the words of the poet which said: Now we gather around the kitchen fire, Pile the chunks on higher and higher, Take down the old fiddle and partners choose, And shake her down in your old cow-hide shoes.

THE BEST FAMILY MEDICINE

As has ever known, Worth of Pills from a New York Lady for

AYER'S PILLS

"I would like to add my testimony to that of others who have used Ayer's Pills, and to say that I have taken them for many years, and always derived the best results from their use. For stomach and liver troubles, and for the cure of headache caused by these derangements, Ayer's Pills cannot be equaled."

When my friends ask me what is the best remedy for disorders of the stomach, liver, or bowels, my invariable answer is, Ayer's Pills. Taken in season, they will break up a cold, prevent the grippe, check fever, and regulate the digestive organs. They are easy to take, and are, indeed, the best all-round family medicine I have ever known." — Mrs. MARY JOHNSON, 368 Rider Avenue, New York City.

SPECIAL TAX NOTICE.

The law of North Carolina, See Chapter 116 Secs. 34, 35, 36 and 37 acts of 1895 requires every Physician, Dentist, Lawyer and Hotel or Boarding house keeper to pay a license tax and take out a license, under a penalty of thirty days imprisonment or fine of fifty dollars, for failure to pay the license tax. The law further makes it my imperative duty to see that the penalty of fifty dollars is enforced. Very few have complied with the law. Unless the parties liable to pay this tax, come forward promptly, I will be compelled (unwillingly as I am) to see that the law is enforced.
