"LIBERTY AND FREEDOM EVENLY BESTOWED."

Mormon Elders Have the Right to Preach, Says Solicitor Pou, But Citizens Also Have the Right to Respectfully Protest.

Solicitor Pou arrived in the city yesterday, on business connected with the court. A reporter soon found him, and interviewed him regarding his probable action in connection with the protest presented the other day by the four Mormon elders to Governor Carr. Mr. Pou said he had only read the account contained in the News and Observer of Tuesday; that he had so far received no communication either from the Governor or from Judge Coble. From the statement contained in the paper he said he presumed the matter would be referred to him. The solicitor said further that unless the Mormon brethren could show that a conspiracy has been formed to force them to leave the community, he could not see how the signers of the protest could be prosecuted.

"In this great country of ours," said the Solicitor, "liberty and freedom are evenly bestowed, like the rain and the dew. As long as the Mormon elders obey the law they are entitled to preach their doctrine, but at the same time any number of citizens may respectfully protest against such preaching and may even go so far as to request the brethren to quit the community and bestow the blessings of their doctrine upon some other community and yet not violate the law. I have read the paper presented to the Governor and I fail to perceive any threat therein and I note that it is signed by several well known gentlemen, some of them ministers of the gospel, who would perhaps be as far from violating the law as the Mormon brethren, even. I feel that so far as the State is concerned there is nothing to be done at present. If there shall be any conspiracy formed, or any injury done the Mormon brethren, I promise them that so far as lies in me, they shall have the same protection as any citizen of the county of Wake."

Mr. Pou thinks the Mormons are unduly sensitive and suggests that St. Paul would have hardly taken fright at so slight provocation. "Since that protest was written," he said, "two of the Mormons, Elder Carter and Elder Smith, have struck my town, Smithfield, and they appear to have been well fed and cared for in Wake county, from which they had just come. There have been gentle hints at Smithfield that these elders might find more attractive fields of labor elsewhere, but the citizens of Johnston have not yet gone so far as to make a formal request to them to leave the county."—Raleigh News and Observer.

The Fox Chase.

Wednesday morning a young fox was caught in a rabbit gum near the poor house and at night about twenty men and boys and eight or ten dogs went from the city and joined another crowd awaiting them for a chase. Mr. Fox was turned loose and within less than half an hour the sly little fellow evaded its pursuers and got away. The run was not a good one, but the chase was enjoyed by all the enthusiasts. It is said that the dryness greatly hindered the dogs scenting.

DEATH IN SALISBURY.

Mrs. John Allen Brown Takes Fright at a Frightened Horse, jumps from Her Buggy and Ruptures a Blood Vessel.

SALISBURY, Oct. 23.—The town was violently shocked shortly after 7 o'clock tonight at the news that Mrs. J. Allen Brown had been killed. She was out driving late this afternoon with her little son John, and had reached the side gate at her home and was about to drive in when a part of the harness broke, falling on the horse, causing it to kick. Mrs. Brown became alarmed and jumped out, falling backwards on the street, rupturing, it is supposed, a blood vessel in her head. Friends ran to her assistance and Dr. McKenzie, who was near, was called and rendered medical aid but could do her no good. She became partly conscious for a short while and when asked where she was hurt pointed to her head. The accident occurred about 5:30 o'clock. The affair is a most distressing one, nothing so shocking have occurred here in years. The news spread like wild fire and many expressions of grief have been heard. The little boy was unhurt and had Mrs. Brown remained in the phaeton she would not have been injured. The horse she was driving belonged to her husband and was gentle. Mrs. Brown leaves eight children to mourn her sudden and sad death.—Charlotte Observer.

Evidence Not Strong Enough.

Late Wednesday afternoon Esq. W. J. Hill had arraigned before him one Spencer Adams, colored, charged with removing cotton belonging to Wesley Ford from Ford's bin to his own in the gin house of Mr. Ephriam Fisher. Several witnesses testified against Adams, but their stories were weak ones, and for lack of evidence to convict, the case was discharged. Both negroes live on Mr. Fisher's plantation.

Cost Only a Little to See a Fine Race.

The Southern Railway will sell round trip tickets to Reidsville for $3.05, on occasion of the race between John R. Gentry and Joe Patchen which occurs there on Oct. 31st.

This is cheap traveling and many will avail themselves of the opportunity to see these two magnificent horses.

Thrown From a Wagon.

James Hawkins is the name of the man that was so violently thrown from a one-horse dray wagon of Mr. James Holshouser this (Thursday) morning at Brown's brickyard. Mr. Hawkins was standing in the rear end of the wagon loading brick when the horse made a dash forward, landing the man on his head and arm on a pile of brick fragments several yards from the wagon. The horse ran as far as the depot before it could be stopped, which was effected just in time to save a collision, there being a number of dray wagons backed up at the platform. Hawkins' arm was not broken, but badly sprained and his head and face considerably bruised up.

ATTACKED THE BOSS.

A Convict Uses Cord Wood and Has To Be Shot Off.

Wednesday morning out on the Mt. Pleasant road where the chain gang is at work, Supt. Geo. Barnhardt was attacked by one of the convicts.

He picked up a piece of cord wood from under a wash pot and attacked Supt. Barnhardt with the end that had fire on it.

The convict had the big advantage and was about to do Mr. Barnhardt up and would have done serious work, had not guard Sid Barnhardt come to the rescue. The convict could not be stopped in his murderous assault until Guard Barnhardt shot him. The shot was not serious but painful. The shot were little fine ones. The convict can not sit down for some time.

Up to the time of the insurrection west of town, the gang was under complete control. Then the liars put in their work and forced the commissioners to investigate. Since then the meanest of the gang are constantly courting trouble—it would have been far better for all, had the commissioners turned a deaf ear to the complaints, which proved groundless.

The Street Evangelist.

The darked-bearded, dark-eyed, bow-legged street evangelist that struck town Monday, held a service on the public square Wednesday night.

He preaches, exhorts, appeals, prays, offers tracts and then says if you want to pay for them all right; if not, take them, you are welcome to them.

He said he had been three weeks in Salisbury and couldn't get a single man to renounce the devil and come out and stand with him in the streets and preach the gospel.

There's an outward appearance of great piety and "sacrifice" on his part; but if he quit a good carpenter business as he claims for the little good he can hope to accomplish, at his present trade, he showed mighty bad judgment.

He says some good things, but under it all is a socialistic feature. If he tries to make people dissatisfied with their sinful condition all right, but when he attacks industrial enterprises and tries to make the people dissatisfied with their work and employment, he is doing harm.

He refers to clerks complaining and laborers complaining, etc.—a kind of calamity chapter—but he forgets that there are mutual relations and duties going and duties coming.

THE STANDARD hopes the evangelist may do good.

He held a three months' meeting in North Danyille and was the means of getting one man to change his way—that man couldn't read. And he came out and preached the gospel.

He has good lung power, a sweet, gentle night-air voice, graceful jestures, and with his hat off his head faintly glimmers under the soft, gentle electric light.
