MR. WRIGHT IS WRONG.

Mr. Wright, the chairman of the Supplies Committee of the Philadelphia Board of Education, has ruled that the autobiography of Benjamin Franklin is unfit to be placed in the hands of the pupils of public schools. Commenting on this, "The Philadelphia Record" says:

"The Board of Education should turn itself into a board of inquiry, and endeavor to ascertain the trouble that seems to bother Mr. Wright's intellect. If he be in his right mind, he ought to resign; if he be not, then some more appropriate place should be found for him."

The Board of Education is very severe on Mr. Wright, but none too severe. Benjamin Franklin is easily the greatest man Pennsylvania has produced, and the story of his humble beginning, of his industry and economy, of his simplicity in greatness, and his exalted patriotism will serve as an inspiration to the youth, not only of the city in which he lived and wrought, but in every city in the world where there is appreciation of true greatness.

We have heard a rumor that there is a movement on foot to start a cigarette factory in Greensboro. We hope the report is not true. Moreover, if it is a fact, we do hope no member of the Methodist church will take any stock in it. The business is already outlawed by a statute which forbids their sale to minors, and by a popular sentiment which is continual restraining force. The man who invests money in the cigarette business in this country, will see endless trouble over it, provided he has a conscience and expects to try to live a Christian life. A word to the wise is sufficient.—Greensboro Christian Advocate.

The city of Milwaukee, Wis., celebrated its 50th anniversary a few days ago. In connection with this attention is called to the fact that sixty-four years ago there was no city in the United States that had the population (249,290) that Milwaukee has now. New York came nearest to it with a population of 203,000 and Philadelphia next with 167,000.

A New York woman has instituted suit for $20,000 damages against a bicycle professor for injuries from a fall while under his tutorship. She broke an ankle. She weighed 300 pounds. A professor that can't teach a 300 pound gal to wear bloomers gracefully and ride a bicycle successfully ought to be sued for a large amount, instant.

John Sherman is now quite wealthy, but he says he never made any of his money by taking advantage of official trusts. Considering the fact that he was poor when he entered public life, and that his salary as statesman is only $5,000 a year, he must have had some pretty good pointers or have been a remarkably lucky plunger.

The Chicago Dispatch, an evening paper, celebrated its third anniversary last Friday by issuing a 44-page edition, and now claims a circulation of 63,000, which is a remarkable growth within such a time. But the Dispatch is a great paper, published in a city where great papers are rather the rule than the exception. Only a great paper could have come to the front with such a bond.

Miss Bowen, of Vermont, who has attained the age of 100 years, said when asked that if she had to live her life over again if she would marry if asked, said she had some doubts about it until she learned that married women live longest. In view of the fact that marriage promoted longevity she thought she might risk it.

At a gathering of the King's Daughters at London, Ontario, the other day, Mrs. Graham, of Toronto, on being asked if dancing should be tolerated, replied: "Yes, but only in the morning before breakfast, and then the woman should dance with her husband or brother."

The Duke of Marlborough informed some people in New York the other day that he was not "holow-chested." We don't know about that, but when he becomes Mr. Vanderbilt's son-in-law and rakes in those $10,000,000 he will be pretty full chested.

Durham was visited by another fire Tuesday morning and the flames licked up the city stables, the steam laundry and all of the wooden buildings, on the southside of West Main street, towards Five Points. The water supply was low and the firemen worked under a disadvantage.

On a wager for ten thousand dollars, Nelly Bly, Jr., went around the world on a bicycle. It took her fourteen and a half months. In all the countries she visited, the only affront she received was from her sex.

Dr. Nannie A Stevens, of Wichita, Kansas, wants a divorce from her husband because he lays around and will not help to get his meals. She should have it by all means. A man of that kind shouldn't be encouraged at all.

A K. Ward, the absconding manager and treasurer of the Memphis Barrel and Heading Co., has been indicted for forgery. Ward is now thought to be in Honduras.

The self made man boasts that he began life without a cent in his pocket. He appears to be an exception, for most men begin without even a pocket.

A statue of Thomas Jefferson is to be unveiled at St. Louis on Oct. 31. Senator Vest will be the orator.

In the last fiscal year the United States imported $95,130,000 worth of coffee.

A man may lose his balance and yet not upset a bank failure.

UNTOLD MISERY FROM RHEUMATISM
C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being wisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphia. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."
