CONCORD, OCT. 26, 1895.

The old Queen's Head Tavern, in Borough High street, London, which is over 300 years old, and was once owned by John Harvard, is now to be torn down. Originally it was a mansion belonging to the Poyning; Henry VIII turned it into a storehouse for artillery, and under Queen Elizabeth it became a tavern under the name at first of the Crossed Keys.

The Chicago health department has declared both diphtheria and typhoid fever epidemic in that city. The department reported 330 new cases of diphtheria last week, 49 4-10 percent of which were fatal. The epidemics are charged to impure water, and the health commissioners has issued a warning against drinking unboiled water.

Lord Gardener, who is about to take his seat in the House of lords, is the son of a Hindoo woman. There are queer fish in the British aristocracy. The countess of Stamford, widow of the late earl, is a coal black negress from Africa.

Mrs. Hefferman died in Chicago a few days ago, aged 108 years. It is not so remarkable that a woman of that age should have died in Chicago as it is remarkable that any one approximating her years should be found living in Chicago.

Some of the African gold-biters in London got badly bit themselves, when stocks took a slump of $80,000,000 last week and would have gone to the demerit bow-wows if Barney Bernato hadn't come to the rescue.

Eugene Field does not want too many official to visit Atlanta on Chicago day. There is room for them all, and the Chicago aldermen will find some congenial spirits there.

Dun's Review is afraid that "the rise in prices and increase in business may go too far." The producers of the country are not afraid of it.

A Greensboro man is such a stickler for temperance that he wouldn't wear a new coat because it was tight under the arms and full in the back.

ELECTRIC CARS COLLIDED.

A Hundred People Jumped as They Came Together—Mrs. Teague's Arm Broken By Her Fall From the Car.

Passengers going to the Fair Grounds by the trolley car yesterday morning had an exciting experience.

Just beyond the switch, near St. Mary's, the electric current gave out. Two cars, one closed, the other a summer car, were running close together. Both were loaded until the axles pressed the axles.

When the current gave out, the break of the foremost car slipped and the car began to move backward. On the rear platform were three large timbers.

These crashed into the rear car as the two collided.

When the passengers saw that the cars must come together, people jumped by the score.

One lady, Mrs. Edward Teague of Burlington, in jumping broke her arm. She was carried at once to Prof. Massey's residence, near by, and Dr. Rogers was summoned. He set the broken arm, and later in the day, Mrs. Teague returned to her home in Burlington.

Several other people are said to have been slightly injured.

But for the fact that the motor-man of the rear car had the presence of mind to reverse his machine and stop the car, the accident would probably have been fatal. Raleigh Observer.

Electric Bitters.

Electric Bitters is a medicine suited for any season, but perhaps more generally needed, when the languid exhausted feeling prevails, when the liver is torpid and sluggish and the needs of a tonic and alterative is felt. A prompt use of this medicine has often averted long and perhaps fatal bilious fevers. No medicine will act more surely in counteracting and freeing the system from the malarial poison. Headache, Indigestion, Constipation, Dizziness yield to Electric Bitters. 50c and $1.00 per bottle at Fetzer's Drug Store.

Why She Blushed.

Walter Sadler was walking with his best girl by a lumber yard the other night, and all at once she began to blush and blush, and Walter said my darling why do those roseate tintings enshroud themselves in the opulent luxuriance of that peach bloom beauty found on the stainless surface of thy parian alabaster cheeks? She replied it was because all that lumber was undressed. Walter hid his face behind a nickle, lent up against a zephyr and wept. —Wilson Mirror.

Marvelous Results.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost marvelous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist Church at Rives Junction she was brought down with Pneumonia succeeding La Grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery; it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Fetzer's drug store. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

Masonic Meeting.

There will be a regular communication of Stokes Lodge No. 32, A. F. & A. M., Monday night, Oct. 28, 1895. Being the last meeting in the Masonic year there is business of importance and it is specially requested that as many of the members be present as possible. By order of W. M.

S. J. LOWE, Secy.

Mistook Each Other for Burglars.

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Oct. 18.—Ambrose Gray went home last night about 12 o'clock and got into the house of his neighbor, William Carr, thinking he was going into his own. The houses are exactly alike and are side by side. He had to kick the door before he could effect an entrance. Carr thought a burglar was in the house, and leaping from bed he began firing upon the intruder. Gray on the other hand thought he was surprising a burglar in his house and began firing in return. Six shots were exchanged. Gray was wounded in the hand, while Carr was shot in the stomach. Neither of the wounds are thought to be serious.

Advertise.

Here is Peter Cooper, who lived to be over 90 years old and died worth millions, said of a newspaper: "In all towns where a newspaper is published every man should advertise in it, if nothing more than a card stating his name and the business he is in. It not only pays the advertisers, but it lets the people at a distance know that the town in which you reside is a prosperous community of business men. As the seed is sown so the seed recompenses. Never pull down your sign while you expect to do business."

UNTOLD MISERY

RHEUMATISM

C. H. King, Water Valley, Miss., cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"For five years, I suffered untold misery from muscular rheumatism. I tried every known remedy, consulted the best physicians, visited Hot Springs, Ark., three times, spending $1000 there, besides doctors' bills; but could obtain only temporary relief. My flesh was wasted away so that I weighed only ninety-three pounds; my left arm and leg were drawn out of shape, the muscles being wisted up in knots. I was unable to dress myself, except with assistance, and could only hobble about by using a cane. I had no appetite, and was assured, by the doctors, that I could not live. The pains, at times, were so awful, that I could procure relief only by means of hypodermic injections of morphine. I had my limbs bandaged in clay, in sulphur, in poultices; but these gave only temporary relief. After trying everything, and suffering the most awful tortures, I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Inside of two months, I was able to walk without a cane. In three months, my limbs began to strengthen, and in the course of a year, I was cured. My weight has increased to 165 pounds, and I am now able to do my full day's work as a railroad blacksmith."
