CONCORD, NOV. 18, 1895.

sohlatter, ThF "hessiah.,

A curions study in credality i preseited in Denver, where for several weeks past Francis Schlater, a German shoemaker, has been creating a sensation as à divine "heaier," Denver is preeumably familhar enongh with "heelers" of the ward variety, but this new specimen was arevelatioa, and from all accounts the guileless peeple of the Colorado metropolis were taken in by him ae is only supposed to be possible with inhosent denizans of the backwoods. Schlatter's methods have the merit of siasplicity, consisting merely in holding the hand of the afflicted perser and attering a few words to himself supposediy by way of invocation to "Father," from whom he professes to receive all his power. The man timself seems to be honest anch vell-meaning, evidently selfdeceived, which probably accounts for his success in boodwisking others. H9 began his career in New Mexico, where he is said to have worked some wonderful cures, and where he acquired a reputation as a "Messiab." From there he went to Dexver, where ho made an instantantaneous success. Thousands llocked to his humble cottage, before which he Etood all day holding the bands of the sick, the halt, the lame and the blind, retusing in all cases to accept pay for the cures he was supposed to effect.
The telegrams of the last few dage, however, record an abrapt evding to Schlatter's work in Den ver. Some fakirs who were vending handkerehiefs supposed to possess magic power from having been souched by the "Messiah," got into coart, and Schlatter, probably fear ing be would be sammoned as witness, disappeared.
The strangest thing about the Whole basiness if not that Schlatter succeeded in imposing on the denizens of the New Mexican wilds, bat that he should have created such a furore in the modern and on lightened city of Denver. We nee not be surprised to hear of his ap pearing in New York or Washington and compeling the people there to bow before his divinity.

"Two Editors" is the sabject of quite a complimentary article writ ten by Mrs. Fairbrother about Jo sish Turner, of Hillsboro, 'and $\mathrm{D}_{r}$ Kingsbary, of the Wilmington Mes senger. They are complimentary to a degree deseryed. The Standard partioularly endorses the words about Dr. Kingsbury, decidedly the most literary and eeholariy man, to-day, on the Sta e press. An untiring worker of pure motives, 18 the Doctor
