REV. C. L. T. FISHER, A. M. PRINCIPAL.

MOUNT PLEASANT, N. C.

Enchanting were the strains of Mendelsahon's wedding march as rendered by Prof. R. L. Keesler at the First Presbyterian church last (Wednesday) evening at 8:30 o'clock when two lives were wedded in a beautiful ceremony pronounced by the pastor, Rev. W. C. Alexander. The bride was Mary, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Reed, of this city, and the groom was Dr. Eli J. Buchanan, a prominent young physician of Lexington. The church was handsomely decorated. A pyramid of palms and white caryanthemums filled the alcove and a pillar of evergreens interwoven with grasses stood at either side of the rostrum. In each aisle was an arch, upon which swung the gates, and suspended from the top of the left one under which the bride passed for the last time as a miss, was the letter "R," and from the arch in the right aisle in a similar style was the letter "B." The trimming colors and lamp decorations were white and blue.

At the first sound of the notes to the famous march, in walked little Lizzie Montgomery and Junkin Reed, who opened the "beautiful gates" that the attendants might pass beyond, followed by the flower children, little Margaret Lentz and Fred Bost, who proceeded to the altar and took their places on either side of Rev. Alexander; they were followed by the candle bearers, little Addie Lore and Dermont Shemwell, who arranged themselves opposite one another on the rostrum, and for a moment these little folks presented a most fairy-like scene with their sweet, flushed cheeks, flowing hair, flowers and pale illuminations. Then came the ushers, Messrs. J. C. McNeely, of Charlotte, Ed. F. White, Joe Goodman and John F. Yorke, standing at the lower end of either aisle, followed by the bridesmaids and groomsmen, passing down the aisles singly and crossing in the front of the altar in the following manner:

Misses Sallie Erwin, Lilli Springs, Messrs. W. E. Holt, Jr., Samuel J. Ervin; Misses Lily Patterson, Camille Hunt, Messrs. R. T. Pickens, Dr. John F. Reed; Misses Nell Cramer, Minnie Templeton, Messrs. M. W. Stuart, Frank L. Smith; Misses Blanche Creswell, Winnie Adderton, Messrs. James Adderton, Joe Reed. The bridesmaids were gowned in garments of pale blue satin, chiffon trimmings.

Majestically and alone came the maid of honor, Miss Alice Shemwell, preceding the bride down the left aisle, attired in an elegant cream silk dress, chiffon lace and rhinestones, who stood to the left of the lovely bride.

Reclining on the arm of her brother-in-law, Dr. L. M. Arthey, the bride was escorted to the front of the altar, where she was met by the groom, who was accompanied by his brother, Mr. E. Grant Buchanan, when the two engaged their arms and mounted the altar where the throth was plighted that made them "man and wife," during which proceeding Prof. Keesler played melodious strains of the "Sweetest Story Ever Told," which made the solemn occasion one of effect.

The bride's costume was a becoming gown of white satin, long train, pearls and ribbons, carrying in her

This brilliant event was concluded at the home of the bride's parents, on Main street, immediately after the ceremony at the church, where the bride and groom received congratulations underneath an arch of evergreens and pure white "christian anthems." An elegant supper was served. The bride was recipient of many handsome and costly presents.

Dr. and Mrs. Buchanan left last night on the vestibule train for Washington city, to spend a few days, and before returning to their future home in Lexington, they will go to the Atlanta Exposition. The best, fondest and sincerest wishes for continued happiness and prosperity go with them from their numberless friends here and elsewhere.

Among the out-of-town guests were: Misses Alice Shemwell, Lilli Springs, Camille Hunt, Winnie Adderton, Mrs. Baxter Shemwell and Master Dermont, Messrs. W. H. Holt, Jr., James Adderton, R. T. Pickens, V. Humphries, Lexington; Miss Nell Cramer, Thomasville; Eli G. Buchanan, Charlotte; H. McV. Buchanan, Washington, D. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Templeton, Misses Minnie Templeton, Blanche Creswell, Mrs. Creswell, Bruce Templeton, Mooresville; Wm. Reed, Salisbury; M. L. Buchanan, Mt. Pleasant; and Mrs. Zeb Walzer, Lexington.

DEFENDED HER HONOR.

A Farmer's Wife Drives Away Her Assailant.

NEW CUMBERLAND, W. Va., November 20.—Word reaches here of an assault upon a white woman by a negro ruffian, but fortunately, with the opposite of the usual result. Early this morning Mrs. Jacob Mountford, the wife of a well-to-do young farmer, living in this county near the Pennsylvania line, was at home alone, except for the company of her 3-year-old baby. While working in the kitchen Bob Blackwell, a negro farm laborer, living in the neighborhood, came to the door, doffed his hat and asked for the loan of a hoe, saying his employer wanted it.

His purpose evidently was to get Mrs. Mountford to go to the barn after the tool, but she did not like the idea and told him to come back later, or go and get it himself. Blackwell then made known his purpose and seized Mrs. Mountford. As he came at her she picked up a sharp butcher knife, which was lying near, and began slashing and cutting her assailant. So valiant was Mrs. Mountford's defense of her honor that she finally drove the black brute away, with the blood streaming from a dozen wounds and his clothes cut to shreds. Mrs. Mountford ran to the nearest neighbor, a mile away, and gave the alarm and a party of farmers started in pursuit of Blackwell, but he had gotten over the Pennsylvania line and could not be found.

Our Methodist Preachers.

The annual conference of the Methodist church soon meets in Reidsville, N. C.

Our preachers will go. They are in the hands of the bishop and his cabinet of Presiding Elders. Rev. M. A. Smith, for three years the very popular pastor and excellent preacher of Forest Hill, will doubtless be returned here for his fourth year. If his congregation and the people generally have their wishes he's sure to return.

Rev. Parker has been with Central church just one year and during that time has won many friends and the respect of all. There is no reason why he should not be returned. He's a fine preacher.

Rev. Moose of Bay's Chapel, and Rev. McLaurin, of the Concord Circuit, have moved in and among us for one year and their work has prospered and they have many warm attachments which would be hard to break. It is expected that the Bishop will return them to their respective charges. THE STANDARD could not be better pleased than to see all these men returned to Concord.
