JUDGE SCHENCK'S CARD.

THE STANDARD had a paragraph about Ex-Judge Schenck, ex-railroad attorney, waging war on the release, and it just occurred to us that his being excused from further legal service in behalf of the road might be the origin of his present "batting for the rights of the people." The Raleigh Press-Visitor on the same day had a paragraph of the same nature. These two paragraphs the Greensboro Record, knowing the Judge better than we do, clipped and put under this headline:

"Editors Fixing to Get Shot."

In another column we reproduce a card the Judge writes to the Greensboro Record. It is interesting reading and fills up fast.

It is useless to disclaim any purpose to fling at his personal character. It was furthered from our intentions, and he knows it. We conclude these few words with a clipping from the Raleigh Press-Visitor, but not without warning the people to await another Walter (Patrick) Henry. This is the beginning of the end.

But the Press-Visitor says:

"We have a sincere regard for the high character and patriotism of Judge Schenck, but he sometimes writes and acts ill-advisedly. It is not difficult to penetrate the high sounding surface of his card. There is less of ire in this card than there is of appeal to the people—"batting for the rights of the people against the evil designs of this great monopoly." The Judge has raised the old cry. It is an old story and will not deceive anybody. The concluding paragraph of his card speaks for itself. It has been understood that the Judge was about to join the Populists and it will be better understood than ever after this card of his."

MANY INVENTIONS.

New York Sun: The report of the Commissioner of Patents for the year 1894 is the usual formidable and unwieldy volume. The hard times have not paralyzed the industry of the inventors. In 1894, 36,987 applications for patents were made, and 20,803 patents were granted. Connecticut continues to be the State most fertile in inventors. One Nutmeg man out of every 993 got a patent. Massachusetts comes next, with one patent for 1,335 inhabitants; then the District of Columbia with one for every 1,270, and then New Jersey with one for every 1,557. Then Westward the star of invention takes its way to Montana, where one person out of every 1,738 patented something. Next in order are Rhode Island, with one patent to every 1,750 inhabitants; New York one to every 1,801, and Colorado, one to every 1,991. The Southern States are either too busy or too comfortable to bother their heads about new appliances. South Carolina had one inventor to every 25,581 inhabitants, and Mississippi one to every 21,587. The Georgians, those "Yankees of the South," are not very Yankee in the matter of inventions. There was but one Georgian invention to every 16,703 inhabitants. Probably the Crackers have no time to amuse themselves over discovering and perfecting devices patentable. They let the other fellows do that, and content themselves with buying and using the patented article if it serves their turn.

The list of inventions fills 300 closely printed, tall pages. One naturally opens at bicycles first, for now the world is as full of wheels as a Populist's cranium. If we can count straight without the aid of the adding machines, of which fourteen were patented during the year, 189 patents relating to the bicycle were issued. Of these the bicycle sled and bicycle sleigh have the most interesting look. The "child's seat for a bicycle" we cannot approve unless it is to be on the child's bicycle. Only two bicycle cranks were patented. There are millions that have not made application.

Bill Fife takes 'em in. In a few days he got the people of Winston to feeling so good that they made him up a purse of $1,400. This is probably more than any ordained preacher, of natural spiritual growth, who preaches a whole year in Winston gets.

The New York Sun, concluding a strong editorial on John Sherman, says words of truth: "It is but justice and due compensation, after all, that the man who helped steal the Presidency in 1877 should never be President, and should never have had even a fair gambling chance of being nominated."

OVERWORK -INDUCED- Nervous Prostration Complete Recovery by the Use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

"Some years ago, as a result of too close attention to business, my health failed. I became weak, nervous, was unable to look after my interests, and manifested all the symptoms of a decline. I took three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, began to improve at once, and gradually increased my weight from one hundred and twenty-five to two hundred pounds. Since then, I and my family have used this medicine when needed, and we are all in the best of health, a fact which we attribute to Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I believe my children would have been fatherless to-day had it not been for Ayer's Sarsaparilla, of which preparation I cannot say too much."—H. O. HINSON, Postmaster and Planter, Kinard's, S. C.
