OUR DENTAL RIFFLE.

The STANDARD regrets to refuse to give space to-day for an article touching the right of Mr. W. R. Ivy to practice dentistry in the State.

Dr. H. C. Herring asserts that Mr. Ivy never attended a dental school and is not registered as a dentist and therefore has no right to practice dentistry, and that he is liable to indictment and could be prosecuted by any one choosing to do so.

Mr. Ivy says on the other hand that he understands that he is in accordance with the law and stands ready to answer legal charges to the contrary.

We think no amount of acrimonious newspaper controversy could or would leave the matter in better shape than these simple statements. Mr. Ivy believes he is right and a legal test is the last and only resort. The columns of the STANDARD cannot settle it but might unsettle a good deal of good will if not judiciously guarded.

HIS VALEDICTORY.

Mr. Wade H. Harris, whose editorial life began in Concord, but who has for so long been wielding his pen in Charlotte, gives his valedictory thoughts in language so terse and so expressive of editorial life that we are glad to copy in full. We shall be disappointed however if Mr. Harris does not turn up soon with renewed journalistic vigor. In his farewell card in the News of September 30th, he says:

"With the present issue, my services on this paper are ended. I trust I may be pardoned if I say that they have been faithful, so far as hard work is concerned. The eight years since I published the first copy of The News have been to me as one long day of toil. With the going to press of one issue, my thoughts have been centered upon the next, and that is the truth. It has been my good fortune to have been misunderstood by but a few, and I have misunderstood still fewer. I have had no use for a pen of gall. I have encountered rough places, as all editors do, but I have always endeavored to smooth the way. I have looked upon The News' readers as a people with daily expectations, and I have tried to keep them from being disappointed. In this I have failed too often, no doubt. However, upon occasion, I console myself, I have met the bill.

A horseshoe for you all! And as Dr. Mills, old negro Andy says when he bids you good day, 'here's hopin' you well.' WADE H. HARRIS."

LATER, The News of the 1st announces our anticipations and locates Mr. Harris with the Charlotte Observer, and introduces in Mr. Harris' place on the News Mr. Wilber Jenkins. We will borrow Mr. Harris term and with our bow say "A horse shoe to all!"

TIMES NOT GROWING WORSE.

The fewest minds can anticipate business drifts especially in a campaign year. A presidential campaign year is generally attended with business depression, but no one seems to complain of any thing special this fall. With the splendid campaign of Mr. Bryan and his prospects of election it would seem that if the fears of the Gold Standard adherents were well grounded the gold reserve would be inclined to sink. Even if the election of McKinley were to take place, with the free silver demand up to a pitch from which it will not down, and with the prospects of dead locks and bill-riders in the next congress it would seem most natural that finances would be unstable, but with all this the gold reserve crawls upward and stands now above $125,000,000.

But some will say it is the gold Standard men or Wall Street that is keeping it up by special effort. Would not a calamity scare do more to stay the progress of free coinage than any thing else? Few of the gold Standard persuasion looked for any thing but a financial scare under such headway as free coinage seems to be making. We can't understand what power would influence moneyed men to part with their gold without having confidence that they either would not need it or could get it back when wanted.

We note too that there are some of the suspended manufactories starting up, and idle operatives, are going to work. There is one lesson at least in the unexpected turn of affairs. It is not well to see too much calamity ahead if our notions are not complied with. We are all anxious for our ideas to prevail but we need not go out of business if they don't. We have heard of orders being placed with manufactures on condition that they be cancelled if Bryan were elected. We venture to guess that few can foresee whether the election of Bryan would make orders more or less imperative. Those conditional orders may be made through prudential caution or for effects sake. Our national machinery is of such ponderous proportions as to be little effected by minor drifts and whatever of change may be experienced in the success of either policy may be disappointing in its gentleness and apparent tardiness.

Rev. Sam Jones says: "If I want to get a right square judgment, I'd rather go into a newspaper than a court of justice. No man whose life is true, pure and just, is afraid of all the newspaper presses in America. They are the best detective forces in America today. They have punctured more shams than any other, and as far as I am concerned, I say take the bridle off and let them go. The only ones that will be hurt will be the shams and frauds."—Southern Publisher.

Do You Use It?

It's the best thing for the hair under all circumstances. Just as no man by taking thought can add an inch to his stature, so no preparation can make hair. The utmost that can be done is to promote conditions favorable to growth. This is done by Ayer's Hair Vigor. It removes dandruff, cleanses the scalp, nourishes the soil in which the hair grows, and, just as a desert will blossom under rain, so bald heads grow hair, when the roots are nourished. But the roots must be there. If you wish your hair to retain its normal color, or if you wish to restore the lost tint of gray or faded hair use
