The church, it is said, stands on a picturesque site on the banks of the famous St Lawrence river.

Smiles in Court.

The Wake county court had a ripple of genuine amusement the other day, when a lawyer was questioning a negro defendant, named Royster, charged with robbing another negro of $5. The lawyer got him to tell that he had been arraigned before and had been on the roads. The lawyer then said:

"Well, didn't you steal that money from Stewart?"

"No, sir, I didn't," said the defendant.

"Well, why didn't you steal it?" persisted the Solicitor.

"Because I didn't know he had any money," replied the prisoner.

The main witness for the State, says the Times-Visitor, was an innocent looking negro, who informed the court that he was from "Rhamkatte," who saw Royster with the money.

"How did you get summoned in this case? Turn around and tell the jury why you are here," demanded Royster's attorney, Mr. Beckwith.

The negro obediently turned and addressed the jury, gravely saying: "Gentlemen, I am here because I was subpoenaed."

What One Hears In the Telephone.

"It is very hard to realize that the voice one hears over the telephone is not the voice of the person talking," said an electrician, chatting about the oddities of the business. "It seems exactly like the real tones, drawn out thin and carried from a long distance by some mechanical means—but it isn't. When one speaks into the instrument, a little diaphragm, like a drum-head, begins to vibrate, and each vibration sends a wave of electricity over the wire. These waves set up a mimic vibration in another diaphragm at the opposite end, which jars the air and produces an imitation of the original voice. That's not a very scientific explanation, but it's accurate. The autograph-telegraph, which makes a fac-simile of hand-writing, is a fair parallel. You write your message with a pen, attached to a special electric apparatus, a little ink siphon at the other end of the line exactly imitates every dot and curve. The result seems like the real thing, but is merely a first-class counterfeit. It's the same way exactly with the voice in the 'phone."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Stokes county can boast of three brothers (Southern by name) whose combined ages are 256 years. Their respective ages are 80, 87, 89. These three brothers live within two miles of one another and are hale and hearty.—Daily Reflector
