The Market Doesn't Effect Them.

There are not many cotton mills in these parts fixed as is the cotton mill at Norwood. Mr. D B Coltrane, who is president of the mill at Norwood, states that the mill now has enough cotton on hand for another year. They purchased their year's supply, 2,600 bales, some time ago and the price paid for it will average not more than 6.45. This is no doubt comforting to this company during this time when the price of cotton is steadily advancing. About 1,800 bales are on hand while the remaining number are purchased and will be shipped when demanded.

Mack Boger Back.

It will be remembered that some weeks ago a negro named Mack Boger shot Jesse Koontz, colored, one night over in the part of town occupied by the colored people. Since that night Mack has been missing but without any difficulty Sheriff Peck found him Monday night below town. Mack had to pay the town a few dollars, and has secured a bondsman until his trial at the coming term of court.

Flies and Gnats Carry Disease.

But a short period ago we were led to believe that typhoid fever is spread almost entirely by the germs in drinking water. Nor is there any doubt that it is easily conveyed in the drinking water which should be most cautiously guarded. But Dr. Veeder, of Lyons, N. Y., in a paper read before the American Health Association at Ottawa, maintains that scientific investigation shows conclusively that flies are a vehicle for the spread of disease germs. Disease germs can be developed from their tracks even. It has been observed that fevers in some instances spread without any connection with the water supply.

The doctor maintains that for protection it is necessary to use disinfectants freely where there is a lack of sewerage. Gnats, too, the scientists have proven to be carriers of disease germs.

The Mule.

Speaking of mules, how many men can call to mind an instance of a mule dying a natural death? They may die of starvation, if they find absolutely nothing to eat, but that is almost an impossibility. They may get choked to death under great provocation; they are sometimes killed by accident or design; and sometimes a stroke of lightning knocks one out, but to die a really natural death is against a mule's principles. They are not constructed that way.—Americus, Ga., Times Recorder.

[We thought it was only the gray mule that has immunity from death.

If some people were to tell the truth they would be looked upon as great humorists.

Take love out of life and there would be no sunshine in the soul or happiness in the heart.

The supply of truth is getting so very small that it is now used mostly for veneering falsehood.
