MATRIMONIALY INCLINED.

Cupid Touches the Heart of Two Whose Ages Make the Sum of One Hundred and Fifty—Other News of the Neighborhood.

Written for The Standard.

BRIEF, Oct. 23: Hamp Little has moved into our village to conduct a general repair shop.

Mr. F M Hinson, the progressive merchant of Arlington, Mecklenburg county, sells coffee by the peck—one way to avoid a weigh.

Corn-huskings are again in full blast, ushering in the inauguration of the oleaginous dumping as king of nocturnal dietary festivities.

A certain rather elderly spinster who evidently still entertain sweet visions of Edenic fields of matrimony, explains that she is edentulous from having worn out her teeth on the bottle from which she imbibed nutriment in her infantile adolescence.

Hosts of friends bespeak a halcyon sea for the conjugal voyage of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. McManus, who were recently married at the residence of 'Squire McManus. It is interesting to note that the combined ages of this couple aggregate 150 years—the groom being 74, the bride 76—both hale, jolly, and affable.

For some time previous there had been a pronounced lull in the terrific matrimonial trade-wind which prevailed over this region last summer, when Cupid with his modern battering-rams beat down the ancient walls of celibacy and furiously assailed the lofty, snow-capped citadels of many hearts, thus producing a general compound double-hustle among the young folks, and instigating six marriages in a small area; a process which very naturally reduced the number of marriageable youngsters in this lovable section. But Cupid is a sharper not to be outgeneraled by unfavorable circumstances like that. So, it appears that he is now hurling a red hot fusillade of uxoriousness at the unprotected hearts of our elderly celibates.

Now, we do not desire to assume the role of a "natural born" prophet, but if another old-folk's marriage occurs shortly, why, we do not agree to be surprised thereby.

AUGUSTINE.

Chronic Nasal Catarrh poisons every breath that is drawn into the lungs. There is procurable from any druggist the remedy for the cure of this trouble. A small quantity of Ely's Cream Balm placed into the nostrils spreads over an inflamed and angry surface, relieving immediately the painful inflammation, cleanses, heals and cures. A cold in the head vanishes immediately. Sold by druggists or will be mailed for 50 cents by Ely Bros., 56 Warren St., New York.
