CONCORD, N. C., DEC. 5, 1899.

IT WAS A BAD MOVE.

The attempt to lynch Will Edwards and Tom Carr in Salisbury Saturday night is not a matter to be contemplated with complacency by the law-abiding people of the county. It is accumulated evidence that there is an element in the county dangerous to the good name of the county and the safety of citizens about whose degree of guilt there is difference of opinion. Not that the writer is the least bit in sympathy with the turn the courts have given to this particular case. Our understanding of the matter leads us to believe that both these characters are just what that Rowan jury said they were, murderers in the first degree, and that retributive justice as well as a healthful confidence of our people that the strong arm of the law will protect our citizens, demanded that they be hanged on the 20th day of December. But in this we are aware that we may be in error, while we know positively that mobs cannot be trusted to meet out justice.

Much as a righteous indignation demands prompt and vigorous punishment of such outrageous crimes it were better to abide by the courts and elevate the courts by public demand for only the most pure and conscientious.

When we dig to the root of these evils we find it in the people themselves who commit crimes and try to evade, rather than secure, justice with a fee.

The parties who are so keen to lynch somebody would pay round fees for lawyers to hide the truth, rob justice and screen them for taking life without warrant of law or right.

To say the very least lynching is the way to make a bad matter worse.

A MASKED man covered two messengers of the Southern Express Company, near Branchville, S. C., last Friday night, and did up a neat job of robbing, getting $1,700. He is being chased but it might serve the purpose in getting him to blow out his trifling brains if the fact were conveyed to him that there was $8,000 more in the car that he might as well have gotten, and didn't.

THE BEST PRESCRIPTION FOR CHILLS and fever is a bottle of Grove's Tasteless Chill Tonic. Never fails to cure. Then why experiment with worthless imitations? Price 50 cents. Your money back if it fails to cure.

NOT IN VAIN.

Editor Caldwell, of the Charlotte Observer, came near confessing on last Sunday his penitence for writing a gloomy article the Sunday before. It seems his readers expect sunshine without clouds from his editorial skies. We read the article and hardly feared that anybody would commit suicide from its promptings.

There was, we thought, a fine delineation of that which periodically crosses the mind of one ambitious for ideals not attained or, we might say, not attainable.

He is not an ideal man who is so contented with himself and the world as not to weary at times with excessive burden. What harm is it (nay is it not well enough) that those bowed with life's cares and anxieties are sometimes made aware that they suffer not alone?

It is the wicked that have no bands in their death, whose strength is firm, who are not plagued as other men, who have more than heart could wish. It is the wicked that speak loftily.

If life to the ambitious were but the living of it, then it were scarcely worth the candle.

Rest is sweet only to the weary and hope is an anchor only to those tossed on life's turbulent seas.

Who reaches forth at the substance of things hoped for, but he who is ready to exclaim, "Vanity of vanities, all is vanity?"

IT'S A DOWNRIGHT INFRINGEMENT.

Last Saturday was a cold day. Two gentlemen from the court, who were here Saturday, said they saw a man plowing that day who had his little boy following him in the field with a pan of fire by which he would warm his hands. When first seen, they said, he was warming his hands by the fire. He then started to plowing, the little boy following with the pan of fire and a little girl was following also with an armful of lightwood splinters.—Charlotte Citizen.

As a cure for rheumatism Chamberlain's Pain Balm is gaining a wide reputation. D. B. Johnston of Richmond, Ind., has been troubled with that ailment since 1869. In speaking of it he says: "I never found anything that would relieve me until I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm. It acts like magic with me. My feet were swollen and painful the very much, but one good application of Pain Balm relieved me.—For sale by E. L. Marsh & Co. Druggist.

A DISPATCH of the 2nd from Tower City, S. E., says the worst blizzard of the season was then raging. Snow was falling fast and drifting. It is that most probably, that gives a kind of keen crispness to the breezes and puts Jack Frost much in evidence.

While There is Life There is Hope.

I was afflicted with catarrh; could neither taste nor smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it.—Marcus G. Shantz, Rahway, N. J.

The Balm reached me safely and the effect is surprising. My son says the first application gave decided relief. Respectfully, Mrs. Franklin Freeman, Dover, N. H.

The Balm does not irritate or cause sneezing. Sold by druggists at 50 cents, or mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren St., New York.

Trustee's Sale.

By authority vested in me by a deed of trust or mortgage granted by Charles Long and wife, Mary Long, of the 18th day of January, 1897, which mortgage or deed in trust is duly recorded in the Register Office for Cabarrus county, N. C., in Book No. 11, pages 204 and 205, I will sell at public auction at the court house door in Concord, N. C., on Monday, the 11th day of January, 1900, to the highest bidder for cash, a home and lot situated in Cabarrus county, N. C., and bounded as follows: Lying near the railroad bridge on Buffalo creek, on the north side of Rocky River road, beginning at a large stone on N. E. side of Rocky River road, and running S. 60° E. 6 poles to a stake; thence S. 50° E. 3 poles to a stake; thence S. 60° E. 10 poles to an iron stake, a corner of land claimed by Railroad company; thence N. 11° W. 20 poles to an iron stake, Reed's corner; thence with Reed's line S. 10° W. 23 poles to the beginning, containing one acre more or less. Title of said property is supposed to be good, but the purchaser only takes said title as I am authorized to convey under said mortgage. This 4th day of December, 1899. M. J. COLE, Trustee.

COLE'S Care-parilla has over and over again proved by its cures, when all other preparations failed, that it is the One True BLOOD Purifier.
