MATURE A PLAN.

Quite a number of citizen seem moved with a desire to aid Prof. Ransom in his privations in Galveston. It would seem eminently proper that he should receive some special aid from his native state. We would be glad to see those desiring to contribute fix upon some plan of procedure that the movement take shape. We are ready to do anything we can to promulgate plans adopted but can not take upon ourself a canvass and collection. Our own affairs are quite onerous enough.

We note an Austin, Texas, dispatch of the 17th in which Gov. Sayers complains that the sum of the contributions to the Galveston sufferers is over stated by far. He says nothing approaching eight or nine hundred thousand dollars has been received and that the exaggerated reports are calculated to withhold from the sufferers that which would otherwise be bestowed on the needy. We are sorry that the governor does not see it best to state as nearly as possible the real amount. There's no danger that too much will be given.

A Washington dispatch of the 17th says Minister Wu has received a dispatch from Prince Ching announcing that he with Li Hung Chang has been clothed with authority to treat for peace and he desires that Minister Conger be instructed to this end. It begins to look like peace in the "eternal" realms.

The messages coming from foreign nations conveying condolence for the Galveston sufferers includes a pathetic expression from the Queen Regent of Spain. How calamity befalling even a former enemy takes away all enmity and brings us to our better selves. It's like the true soldier who tries to kill or wound his antagonist and when he has succeeded almost weeps in pity.

A Sermon on Woman.

"Woman," said the old Codger, during one of his meditative spells, "is a perpetual paradox, a chronic conundrum without an answer, an unknown quantity possessed of unexpected possibilities, a parenthetical package of peculiar potentialities, a convective of characteristic contradictions and an amaranthine aggregation of other attributes which are not alliterative.

"She is man's greatest earthly blessing, and the cause of most of his misery. She is his chief inspiration to the achievement of all that is good, grand and glorious in this world, and at the same time a labor-saving device to help him make a fool of himself. She soothes his tired nerves with the coo of her gentle voice, but she always has the last word in every controversy with him—and, incidentally, about 97 per cent of the preceding conversation. She brings him into the world, and a few years later talks him to death.

"Most of man's trouble is caused by woman, but so deftly does she pile the load on him that whenever his burden of trouble is lifted he wanders uneasily about hunting for more—otherwise, there would be very few second wives. She will cheerfully go to the stake for the truth's sake, and lie about her age without even being asked. She will grow weary of an indulgent husband, will cleave unto death to the man who beats her regularly. She will break her heart because a man does what she don't want him to do, and love him all the better for so doing.

"She scorns all advice in the selection of a husband, but takes two other women along to help her pick out a hat. The less actual comfort to be obtained from a thing, the more enjoyment a woman gets out of its possession. At 16 she is a young woman; at 25, if still unmarried, she is a girl. She will face the grim spectre of death without a tremor, and swoon at the sight of a mouse. The only time she ever does what you expect her to do is when you expect her to do what you don't expect her to do. The sole reason why she does anything is simply because she don't know why she does it. She jumps at conclusions and always lands on them squarely, for the simple reason that when the conclusion skips to one side, thinking to avoid her, it gets exactly in her way. She is the dearest thing in all the world, and the most aggravating. She is as she is, and that's all there is to do about it. The only man who ever fully understands a woman is the man who understands that he don't understand her, and has got sense enough to let it go at that."—Puck.
