THE ALBATROSS

From "The Ancient Mariner" By Samuel Taylor Coleridge

SAMUEL TAYLOR COLERIDGE, poet, philosopher, critic, was born in Devonshire in 1772 and died in London in 1834. He was one of the greatest literary geniuses of his time, but marred his life by his habit of using oplum. Wordsworth called Coleridge "the most wonderful man that I ever met." The stanzas given are from his best known poem, "The Rime of the Ancient Mariner."

T length did cross an albatross— Through the fog it came; As if it had been a Christian We hailed it in God's name.

It ate the food it ne'er had eat, And round and round it flew The ice did split with a thunder-fit; The helmsman steered us through!

And a good south wind sprang up behind: The albatross did follow. And every day, for food or play, Came to the mariner's hollo

In mist or cloud, on mast or shroud, It perched for vespers nine; Whiles all the night, through fogsmoke white, Glimmered the white moon-shine.

The sun now rose upon the right-Out of the sea came he, Still hid in mist, and on the left Went down into the sea.

behind; But no sweet bird did follow, Nor any day for food or play Came to the mariner's hollo.

And I had done a hellish thing,

And it would work 'em woe; For all averred I had killed the bird Ah, wretch! said they, the bird to That made the breeze to blow!

The glorious sun uprist: Then all averred I had killed the bi-That brought the fog and mist: Twas right, said they, such birds to That bring the fog and mist.

Nor dim nor red, like God's own head

The fair breeze blew, the white foam flew, The furrow followed free; We were the first that ever burst

Into that silent sea.

Down dropt the breeze, the sails dropt down,—
'Twas sad as sad could be; And we did speak only to break The silence of the sea.

All in a hot and copper sky The bloody sun, at noon, Right up above the mast did stand, No bigger than the moon.

Day after day, day after day, We stuck,-nor breath nor motion; As idle as a painted ship Water, water everywhere,

And all the boards did shrink;

Water, water everywhere,

Nor any drop to drink. The very deep did rot; O Christ!
That ever this should be!
Yea, slimy things did crawl with legs

About, about, in reel and rout, The death-fires danced at night; The water, like a witch's oils, Burnt green, and blue, and white.

Succession to the Presidency of the United States in case of the death of both President and Vice-President is
