WHEN ASHCRAFT'S Condition Powders are fed to horses and mules, marked improvement will be seen after the first few doses. There is no doubt about it. The Powders, acting directly on the digestive organs, first thoroughly cleanse the stomach and bowels, correcting all disorders; and then good healthy appetite comes naturally and surely. It is the most powerful tonic and appetizer on the market to-day, and when once used horsemen will have no other. Ashcraft's Powders produce that silky sheen of coat and hair so admired by horse fanciers. The Powders fatten but never bloat. Always high grade and put up in doses—never in bulk.

By the use of three or four doses a week your horse or mule will not be subject to colic or any disease of the stomach and bowels. I had an old horse that was in very bad condition generally. He was thin and had a hard time getting up in the morning. I gave him Ashcraft's Condition Powders a day for seven days. The general health of the animal was greatly improved. The appetite improved. He gained weight and he was made almost a new horse. I most heartily recommend Ashcraft's Condition Powders, as I know they are a splendid tonic and appetizer.—C. S. SIKES, Liveryman, Monroe, N. C.

NEGROES REFUSE TO WORK.

Leavers: Decline to Quit Loading for Less Than 15 Cents an Hour.
Charlotte Observer.

"No," you can't hire negroes for love or money," said Mr. A. N. Deaton, superintendent of Wadsworth's livery stable, yesterday. "What do you think? To-day I needed some extra hands, and I sent out a man who found seven or eight idle negro men. This was at 9 o'clock. They refused to work for the rest of the day for less than $1.50; asking 15 cents an hour for their services. When they were told that they would not be paid their price they laughed and said they didn't care.

"Six months ago it was no trouble to hire negroes here for 75 cents a day. Now it is almost impossible for a man to get them to work at $1 a day, and then they quit work without the slightest provocation. Their independence is amazing. Idle negroes are here all right, though it is true that lots of them have gone to the coal fields and to the railroads. They are just bigotry. They congregate in loading groups in houses around town, and their refusal to work at any price is hurting the townpeople as well as the farmers."

Mr. Deaton said he had been told by employes of the stable that loading negroes were holding nightly meetings, for the purpose of taking concerted action relative to the increase of wages; and he said it was also rumored that the negro cooks and house servants in town had formed a union, making for themselves some arbitrary and absurd rules. For instance, it is declared the colored cooks—a number of cooks—have agreed among themselves that they will quit a house without notice if the pantry is kept locked, or if the general keys of the house are locked up. They are beginning to consider such action on the part of the housekeepers as an affront to their dignity, it is said.

It is certain that the servant question here has become a very serious problem. There are not enough cooks to supply the houses in town; a large proportion of the cooks who are in force are restless and dissatisfied without sufficient provocation, and they do not hesitate to throw up their work without a moment's notice.

"We have almost an entirely new force of negroes every week," said Mr. James W. Wadsworth, whose firm employs about as many negroes as any other concern here. "Never in all our experience have we had such an experience with negroes. They quit because of a cross look. A year or so ago the door bells in Charlotte were always being rung by negro men and women who wanted odd jobs to do—wanted to chop wood, or to wash, or something of the kind. Now you never hear of such requests. If you want any wood chopped or any extra work done about the house you've just got to scour the town to get servants. And then they will refuse to work for less than 15 cents an hour."

The Observer reporter, who had been trying to study the servant question here for a good many days, had interviewed with a large number of Charlotte women yesterday. At least one-third of the number approached are without cooks, or expect to be without cooks in a few days. Those that have cooks said that their houses were under military rule, the cooks being the commanders-in-chief. While it is recognized that a large number of negroes have gone away in recent months, it is yet generally maintained that there are enough negroes here to do the required work, if they could only be made to work.

Men and firms here who employ negroes on a large scale agree with Mr. Wadsworth's opinion as to the difficulty of securing help. All declare that the situation not only causes inconvenience, but much irritation. There is among the idle colored classes a sullen, superior spirit that is exceedingly exasperating.

It was suggested here yesterday that Recorder Shannonhouse, who has all ways shown a disposition to proceed vigorously against vagrancy, might take a further hand in this matter. Without a suggestion of courtesy or thanks, concerns like the local office of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, Wadsworth's livery stable and other firms have been turned down by negroes, who continued to live in idleness. These men are the kind who do not usually loaf on the streets, but are to be found lying up in negro houses in all parts of the city and county. Co-operation between the police and would-be employers might at least suggest one way of getting at these idle colored folk, who give no more thought to their future than the grasshopper in the fall. In other words, the man who can work and won't work for any reasonable inducement, can be made to work—on the chain-gang.

SAN JONES CELEBRATES HIS FIFTY-SIXTH BIRTHDAY.

The Atlanta Journal.

I waked up this morning and found myself fifty-six years old and this has been a day of quiet and peace, and the anniversary dinner given me by my daughter, Mrs. Mays, was all that the inner-man could desire, from turkey to ice cream, with all that goes between. I am glad of such a day in my life. I will carry it with me into the days, and may be the younger men of my acquaintance. I am getting old, when I compare myself with many very old men whom I know, I consider myself young. Somebody said we are no older than we feel. I am glad that old age comes on us so gradually, so imperceptibly, that we scarcely know we are on the way till we get there. How wonderful and how kind the provisions of the good Father above, and if we could just realize that that good Father is running this world, and running it right, and that He is able to run it right, and wants us to consent for him to run it. I repeat, if we could realize this, how much purer we would be. In conversation with an old Georgia friend of mine, who was back on a visit from his Mississippi home the other day, I asked him if his wife had any respect for him. He said, "No, not a bit, and," said he, "that is the reason I love and respect her so, because she don't respect me. She is so much better and purer and truer than I am, but," said he, "she loves me, she told me, the other day when I kissed her goodby, that she loved me." That is what we all folks care for, is love. We have generally enough self-respect to run on, and what we want is love and sympathy. These anniversaries which carry us along by the mile-posts of life come so much more quickly and oftener than in our younger days. The years now seem no longer than the months were in our childhood days. Life with old folks is more like the fellow with a note at the bank or a premium on a life insurance policy. They always mature so quickly. I have often thought that if I gave my note due in three months at the bank, and a neighbor gave me his note the same date and due at the same for the same amount, that my note matured at the bank from thirty to sixty days before his is due. I don't know why it seems so, but humanity will attest the truth of what I say. The premium on annual policies becomes semi-annual, and semi-annual premiums seem to fall quarterly, and when it comes to fire insurance, it looks like that is a daily business sometimes, paying debts and premiums and taxes and bank notes and store accounts, makes a fellow glad to get out of one year into another, but I am glad I am living. Glad I don't owe anything that I can't pay, if my creditors will give me time. I am not ready to go into the hand of a Deceiver by a long jump. I want to go into the cemetery before I go into bankruptcy, but I suppose when a fellow gets to where he owes as many as he don't owe, and has nothing to pay with, bankruptcy is inevitable.

In common with the reading public I have watched with some interest the trial of Lieutenant Governor Tillman, of South Carolina. The verdict is simply and only what I expected. I was satisfied in my own mind that he could not be convicted. There was politics in it. Factional fights and prejudices in it back of the trial. It is wrong to fight.

To fight is the first resort of a bull dog, and the last resort of a gentleman. To want to fight is ignoble, and he who is afraid to fight is a coward, and a coward has no place of honor offered him in heaven, earth or hell. Sometimes it takes more courage not to fight, than it does to fight. I don't believe in pistols and brass knuckles and bowie knives. If I ever carried either an hour in my life, I have forgotten it and an ashamed of it. I have tither my skill up to date without either one of those institutions. I don't believe in the code of honor, so called, for it is generally a code of dishonor. I sometimes think that Pat was wise when the fellow got after him with a knife, and he ran, and his friends guyed him and called him a coward. "Faith," said he, "I had rather be a coward five minutes than a corpse forever." Love will beat a long dirk, and forgiveness frequently is better than weapons.

I think I will leave for the west one week from today. I have gained ground fast in the past ten days, and hope soon to be myself again.

With only good wishes to my fellow-men, I am, yours truly,
SAM P. JONES.

UNIQUE PLAN FOR SELLING BOOZE.

Spartanburg Officers Discover and Seize the Most Novel Tiger Beer.
Spartanburg, S. C., Herald.

State Constable Ewbank, accompanied by Constables High and Bony, seized four gallons of whiskey at the house of Florence Long, white, in the tenderloin district last night. Along with the seizure was also confiscated one of the most cunningly contrived devices for the illicit sale of whiskey ever seen in these parts. Constables and officers who have had years of experience say that for ingenuity, shrewdness and originality it is far ahead of anything they ever saw.

On the second floor of this five-story abode, in one of the rooms above that of the woman on the house, concealed behind a washstand, the constables discovered a portion of iron piping protruding. This piping extended downward in a slanting style through the flooring of the second floor and into the ceiling of the first floor. The officers went to the room of Florence Long and began investigating to reach the terminus of the piping. This seemed an impossibility at first, for there appeared no sign at all of what the officers were seeking, although a thorough inspection of the ceiling and sides of the building was in order. Florence Long relined the expense. Placing herself in a chair in a portion of the room, underneath an incandescent light, reaching upwards and unfastening the rosette, or fuse block, she removed the electric light and wiring. This left a little cavity, and from this small opening a spigot was easily reached by the damed, and by turning the spigot, she drew from out a keg three gallons of whiskey, which the constables took in hand. This supply did not appease the demands of the officers however, and the ceiling was opened and they discovered and took in charge a ten gallon keg, in which there was a remaining gallon of booze. This keg, about ten or twelve feet of piping one spigot and the rosette or fuse block, were carried away by the constables.

The plan for selling whiskey at this point was a slick one. From the room on the second floor by the use of a funnel quantities of whiskey were poured into the ten-gallon keg stowed away in the ceiling over the housekeeper's room; from the ceiling in the room below the booze was dished out, any quantity from the half pint to the quart, by means of taking off the fuse block, removing the wiring and electric light and turning the spigot to the keg.

"Sheldons" Idea" in Journalism Successful.

More than a year ago one of the great newspapers of London, the Daily News, adopted in a modified form, what is known in this country as the "Sheldons" idea" of journalism. The principle of the policy adopted by that steady old journal was the exclusion of all reports of betting sports and all liquor advertisements from its columns. The first effect of the policy was heavy loss, more than $100,000 worth of advertisements being withdrawn the first year. Now, it is stated, the paper is prosperous and its circulation is growing rapidly. The objectionable matter is excluded on principle, and not with a view to greater gain, the proprietor believing that betting on sports and the liquor traffic are an immoral alliance which is the source of great immorality. The success of this experiment proves, once more, the truth of the old axiom, that in the long run principle will win.

Virginia Gets Score.

"The known here that the report of the history committee of the Grand Camp, Virginia Confederates, to be made next Thursday by Judge Geo. L. Christian, of Richmond, will deal largely with the part played in the war by North Carolina. For some time Virginia veterans have been ranking under the alleged claim of North Carolina that she furnished more troops than Virginia and that her soldiers were the foremost in the battle of Bethel, the first of the war."

Quick Arrest.

IT WON'T BE CHANGED FOR A WHILE.

The progressive farmer, in discussing the failure of justice in the courts, thinks that one great deficiency is that the defendant in a capital case has 23 challenges in selecting the jury while the State has only four, an advantage which permits a shrewd lawyer to select just the sort of jury he wants. In many States the State and the defense have an equal number of challenges, while in only a few is the disparity so great as it is in North Carolina. The Farmer says:

Equalize the number of challenges. Give the State the right of appeal. These reforms ought to be discussed in the press and on the platform throughout North Carolina and the next General Assembly should put them on our statute books. It is the painful truth that our present system encourages crime, weakens respect for law, fosters lynching, and menaces the peace and safety of our citizens. Let us still give the prisoner his twelve chances to one before the jury, but if the public is not to lose the power of self protection, it must be on an equal footing with the criminal in selecting the jury and in righting the wrongs brought about by unjust rulings or corrupt practices.

When Shemwell was acquitted of the murder of Dr. Payne, at Lexington, the State press rang with just as much indignation as has been expressed on account of the verdict in the Haywood case. The State Press Association, which met at Green-boro soon after the trial, adopted a resolution calling on the Legislature to change the law which gives the prisoner so great an advantage. The Legislature ignored the request. At the last session of the Legislature Mr. King, of Pitt, introduced a similar measure. The judiciary committee, composed of lawyers of course, smothered King's bill and it was never heard of again. So long as the lawyers control the Legislature the press and pulpit may not themselves black in the face at the injustice—but the law won't be changed—unless there is such an uprising as to frighten the politicians. So far the uprising is not in sight.

His Book Would Have Sold, and Stateville Landmark.

A dispatch from Raleigh says: "Rev. A. R. Love, a prominent Baptist preacher of Hendersonville, recently wrote a book on Heaven or Hell, in which he says there is no literal hell, and no unending conscious agony of the ungodly. The book has raised such a storm that to day he wrote here, withdrawing it from circulation."

Unless Rev. Mr. Love had changed his mind in regard to the teachings of his book he was very foolish for withdrawing it from circulation. It would have had a large sale. The doctrine that there is no literal hell and no conscious suffering after death for the ungodly, is a comfortable one, and about nine-tenths of the population would like to believe it true.

A Year's Immigration.

The steerage immigration the past year showed an increase of 208,808 in a total of 857,926, or 22 per cent. More than one-fifty of the immigrants, or 185,667 could neither read nor write. Those who could read but could not write increases the number 3,841.

Of 8,780 persons denied admission to the United States 5,812 were paupers. Over one-fourth of the immigrants the past year came from Italy.

Those people who have been preaching that "cleanliness is next to Godliness" will have to sing a different tune. A royal commission is to be appointed in England to investigate the cause of physical deterioration of the people, and a writer in the Times declares his conviction that this deterioration is due to the excessive use of soap, which removes the natural oil that protects the body, and thus exposes it to rheumatism, chills, disease and dirt.

After a woman gets married she wonders three times a day as long as she lives what to get for the next meal.

THE INTELLIGENT JUROR.

Charlotte Observer.

Some of the people who sit on juries in this country, determine property rights and, what is far more grave, pass upon the issue of life and death, haven't sense enough to tote ostriches to a bear. Indeed, if they had they would not be allowed to serve, for frequently it is the interest of the lawyers who have the selection of the jury in certain cases, to choose them from the most ignorant and therefore the most impressionable creatures on the panel. This is being said as an introductory to the following letter, which one of the jurors in the Tillman case has written to the Spartanburg Journal:

Spartanburg Journal,
Spartanburg, S. C.

Sir:

I have read your article in the columbian state which was an insult to Every Jurymen who sit on the Tillman case. Not only an insult to that body of men but to the Judges who were concerned in the case. You are following in the steps of the deceased Editor, "abusing your honerity." I wish to be polite in this matter and show more wisdom than you did in writing up the Lexington court that tried James H. Tillman. To make my letter brief, I refer to the annals of history when you fail to find a single conviction of any man for shooting an Editor. The State and counsel for same was satisfied with the Verdict, otherwise the state could have gone to the appeal courts, the Masses have accepted the verdict as fair but seemingly the press wants more blood which can be found by walking in the foot prints of N. G. Gonzales. Mr. Gonzales was an able man, but unfortunately, he made a great mistake by abusing the liberty of his press, the courts have sustained the defendant by which all law abiding citizens should be satisfied. If I was an editor and not satisfied with the Defendant's acquittal and had the grit to follow my pen, I would certainly invite the Defendant to entertain me beyond the Georgia lines which would be more patriotic to my fellowman than to sit in my sanctum and abuse him with my pen. In extending this invitation mention above I would say to my Bro. Editor If I should prove the unfortunate one in the affair not to call it Murder but suicide by the abuse of liberty with the wrong man, now Mr. Editor with the kindest feelings towards all Editors will you kindly give this note room in your paper and ask the columbian state to copy same am not hunting a controversy but will assure the press that any comments made the same will be answered politely.

Very Truly yours,
W. I. RISSNER,
Lexington, S. C.—
10-21st, 1903.

This roster is no doubt a fair type of his eleven associates. And there he sat throughout the days, pretending to listen to the speeches and the evidence, and no doubt looking as wise and as solemn as an owl, with not even intelligence enough to know that he and his pals had doubtless already agreed upon would be final; not knowing that the State had no right of appeal. And this is the boasted jury system.

NONE TOO GOOD FOR A FELON'S GAZE.

We published Sunday morning a communication from Jacob A. Long, Esq., of Alamance, replying to an editorial in the Charlotte News protesting against the pardon of Walter Daniel, convicted in Mecklenburg county of gambling and sentenced to six months hard labor on the chain-gang. Mr. Long takes the ground that, inasmuch as Daniel was convicted of only a misdemeanor, he should not be required to wear a felon's garb. He therefore says: "hopes the Governor will pardon every citizen who has been, or may hereafter be, sentenced to the chain-gang for a misdemeanor."

Gambling has become the crying evil in many of our larger towns. It debases and debauches more young men than can be computed. The case of Daniel was a very aggravated one. It was worse in its effect upon the community than plain, every day stealing, even if stealing is a felony and gambling only a misdemeanor. Judge Shaw determined to break it up. The moral sentiment of Charlotte thanked him for the sentence he imposed upon Daniel. They didn't care whether his crime was technically a felony or a misdemeanor—it was a crime that is all too common and that is most demoralizing. And Judge Shaw took that view, too, as his sentence shows.

Referring to the application for pardon, the Wilmington Messenger says it has been made too soon. Daniel was convicted at the April term of Mecklenburg Superior Court, and sentenced by Judge Shaw. He appealed to the Supreme Court. His appeal cannot be heard and determined before November 15, the date upon which application will be made for pardon. The Messenger, with wisdom urges that, independent of the merits of the application, it should not be considered while the appeal is pending in the courts. That would be for the executive department of government to step in and deprive the judicial department of its jurisdiction.

We recall the deep-seated determination of the good people of Charlotte to suppress its gambling evil. A competent jury convicted Daniel after a hard fight. A just judge imposed a sentence that is severe, but none too severe under the circumstances. If he is guilty, Daniel is none to good to work the roads and wear the garb of a felon. Gambling is the lowering sin and vice of the age. It cannot be stamped out except by severe measures.

Charity and Children says: "The speech of Mr. James H. Pou in the Haywood case damaged his reputation as a lawyer. It was extreme bitter, and not at all keeping with the reputation this gentleman enjoyed as a great criminal lawyer. It pays to be courteous and dignified even in the court house."

The Start

In married life is generally made on an equal footing of health in man and wife. But how soon, in many cases, the wife loses the advantage and fades in face and falls in flesh, while her husband grows ever more rugged and robust. There is one chief cause for this wifely failure and that is, the failure of the womanly health. When there is irregularity of the monthly drains, indigestion, ulceration or female weakness, the general health is soon impaired.
