PEP!

Vigor, vitality, vim and punch. The courage to act on a certain hunch. The nerve to tackle the hardest thing. With feet that climb and hands that cling.

A heart that never forgets to sing— THAT'S PEP! Sand and grit in a concrete base. Friendly smile on an honest face.

The spirit that helps when another's down That knows how to scatter the blackest frown. That loves its neighbor and loves its town— THAT'S PEP!

To say "I will"—for you know you can. To look for the best in every man. To meet each thundering knockout blow.

And come back with a laugh, because you know You'll get the best of the whole darned show— THAT'S PEP!

The Seven Wonders. In the world of the parent and boy today are seven important matters about which mother or father is wondering—the seven wonders, we may call them. They are:

- 1. I wonder if my boy will keep physically fit. 2. I wonder if my boy will have a clear brain. 3. I wonder if my boy will come through clean. 4. I wonder if my boy will enjoy manly sports. 5. I wonder if my boy will always do his bit. 6. I wonder if my boy will be a brother to the other fellow. 7. I wonder if my boy will catch the spirit of Christ and hold fast to Him forever.—James M. Ogden.

Obregon Says Bombing Was an Effort to Hinder Negotiations

Mexico, May 19. (By the Associated Press.)—President Obregon said today that he considered yesterday's bombing which damaged the office of a Mexican attorney in the building that houses the United States consulate, as an effort to hinder the government in its recognition negotiations with the United States.

"What could it be but a profound displeasure?" he said. "I believe it concerns a maneuver against the government to hinder us in reaching a good understanding with the United States."

After 24 hours of investigation, the municipal police and federal secret service agents early today had found no clue warranting an arrest in connection with the explosion.

El Universal published a report of the inquiries, pointing to the possibility of the bombing had no political character, but was rather the work of a while he was continuing negotiations with Esteban Cantu, Governor of Lower California.

Newspaper men learned from the interior that Charles E. Jones and John H. Bayne, the two members of the United States mission, received arrangements for a mission after their arrival in Mexico. They must leave Mexico within 24 hours. Traffic past the mission was prohibited last night. Forces of police maintained a cordon outside the building.

The Mother of Shakespeare.

Mary Arden, the youngest and prettiest of all the seven rosy-checked daughters of Robert Arden, the farmer of Wilmcote, stood at her gate and watched John Shakespeare go back on the road that led three miles, under the trees, to Stratford-on-Avon. She knew her big sisters would tease her, but little she cared. She knew, too, that she loved young John Shakespeare, who had moved into Stratford from Snitterfield, and who had become so prosperous in buying and selling hides and wool and corn.

In half a dozen years John Shakespeare had made himself one of the leading young men in Stratford. Now Mary Arden had promised to marry him. Her father had land and money and a good old name, but she was going to leave everything, and go up to Stratford.

Anyway, it was only three miles away. When the leaves fell from the trees Mary Arden and John Shakespeare, he who was so lively and happy a disposition, went into the little church at Wilmcote, and there were married. Then off they went, down the shaded road, to Stratford, to the new home on Henley Street. Fifty-one years she was to live in that pleasant house—but that, of course, she could not know. All she knew was that here she was, Mary Arden Shakespeare now, in a new home, young, just married, with all the adventure of housekeeping just beginning.

Then there were new acquaintances—and laughter—and delight in new things. Little Joan was born—and died. The merry laughter of girlhood changed a bit. Then Margaret was born—and she, too, died. Would Heaven grant her no children to live? Then, April 23, 1564 there was born a son, whom she named William Shakespeare—and he lived. Happy, happy days. So life went on, with motherhood, and prosperity. Then came bad luck again, for John Shakespeare fell into debt. "There is the Wilmcote Farm," said Mary Arden. They mortgaged it, and finally sold it. She gave what she had, all that she had inherited from her sturdy old farmer father. At that time William was 14. Four years later he married, and Mary Arden fretted over that. Then he went to London—and she fretted more. He became famous, and she gloried in it, loving him most, though now she had three other sons, and two daughters. He let her live in the old house until she died in 1608, a rare, good, sweet, old mother.
