STILL ON THE WING.

We "boys" have been rejuvenating this week with relatives and friends near Cook's Crossing. Tuesday by special invitation and transportation furnished, we spent the day with Mr. Ira Goodman and his family.

"Stew the dog irons," she did fix up in the most modern style two very sumptuous meals. Fried chicken, ham, vegetables, cakes, ice cream and other goodies too numerous to mention.

"Since my itinerary began I have seen many very pleasant faces, and one or two faces, pardon me, feminine faces, but I wouldn't object to behold again, but they tell me that when a lady says so, the writing process sets in, and believe me, I would rather stand before a cannon's mouth, if the cannon was not loaded, than endure the discomfiture of a defeated lover.

While at Mr. Goodman's the day was consumed very pleasantly discussing various themes and walking over the growing crops. The two Goodmans, father and son, own about five hundred acres of land, about one hundred and fifty being in corn.

The idea of migrating to Texas, Illinois, or Alabama to farm, with such opportunities as exist here in soil, climate and seasons is beyond doubt a mistake.

My Texas brother William, thinks there is not a dull moment here and is as joyous as a partridge calling "Bob White."

Although a Methodist myself, warp and filling, I always entertained a very high regard for that great Christian denomination, and, as my mother was of that faith, I sprang from mighty good stock.

NEW CAFE OPEN

The Carolina Cafe Would Be a Credit to Any City.—Conor Brothers Proprietors. One of Concord's long felt needs was filled here Saturday, when the Carolina Cafe, which will rank well with any in this State, threw its doors open to the public.

The Carolina Cafe, located at No. 70 South Union street, opposite the Court House, is the result of the activities of J. W. and O. W. Connor, who until recently were conducting the St. Cloud Hotel.

The kitchen, the part of a cafe on which most depends, will be efficiently handled by Mr. J. H. Willis, a chef of many years' experience.

The lunch counter will be in charge of Mr. George B. Jackson, a young man with a number of years' experience in this kind of work.

The Carolina Cafe is a very attractive place, and the Messrs. Connor are to be congratulated upon the splendid addition they have made to Concord's business houses.

The usual cafe hours will be observed by the Carolina Cafe, which will conform to the hours fixed by the City Aldermen.

CORN OCCUPIES LARGEST ACREAGE OF STATE CROPS

But Soy Beans and Peanuts Put Us on the Map in No Small Sense. Raleigh, N. C., July 19.—When North Carolina gained fourth rank among the United States in total value of improved crops, says a statement issued by the United States and North Carolina Departments of Agriculture Cooperative Crop reporting service.

The report of Frank Parker, Agricultural Statistician for the State and Federal Departments of Agriculture, issued recently, showed that corn occupied decidedly the largest acreage of any crop and that here was quite a large diversification among which are cow peas, soy beans, peanuts, velvet beans, small grain and other crops especially for hay.

"Soy beans and peanuts have put North Carolina on the map in no small sense. Only a short time ago we produced more soy bean seed than all other states combined and even now have a distinct lead in these. The July report of this year shows that of our acreage, there is planted the following: 47 per cent for seed; 31 per cent for hay and 22 per cent for grazing and turning under.

The same information showed that 43 per cent is planted alone as solid acreage while 57 per cent is planted with corn and other crops. The practice in the eastern counties is to plant a row of soy beans in the middle between wide planted corn.

"Cow peas at one time made North Carolina famous, but due to the low yields and high costs of harvesting, they are gradually being replaced by soy beans, which are more productive and easier to handle both for seed and hay.

It is found that the cow pea acreage is intended principally as follows: 30 per cent for peas, 2 per cent for hay, and 18 per cent for grazing and turning under.

Severe Indigestion. "I had very severe attacks of indigestion," writes Mr. M. H. Wade, a farmer, of R. F. D. 1, Weir, Miss. "I would suffer for months at a time. All I did eat was a little bread and butter... consequently I suffered from weakness. I would try to eat, then the terrible suffering in my stomach! I took medicines, but did not get any better. The druggist recommended Thedford's Black-Draught and I decided to try it, for, as I say, I had tried others for two or more years without any improvement in my health. I soon found the Black-Draught was acting on my liver and easing the terrible pain. I found I could go back to eating. I only weigh 123. Now I weigh 147—eat anything I want to, and by taking Black-Draught I do not suffer."
