

The Reporter.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE IN DANBURY, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER. PEPPER & SONS, Pubs. and Proprs. THURSDAY, JULY 8, 1880.

OUR NOMINATIONS.

- For Governor, THOMAS J. JARVIS, Of Pitts. For Lieutenant Governor, JAMES L. ROBINSON, Of Mason. For Secretary of State, WILLIAM L. SAUNDERS, Of Orange. For Treasurer, J. M. WORTH, Of Randolph. For Attorney General, THOMAS S. KENAN, Of Wilson. For Auditor, W. P. ROBERTS, Of Gates. For Supt. of Public Instruction, JOHN C. SCARBOROUGH, Of Johnston. Electors at Large, GEN. J. M. LEACH, and FABIAN H. BUSBEE.

Gen. Hancock's wife has on one brother, a planter in Louisiana.

The census gives Utah a population of about 150,000, and Salt Lake City about 21,000.

Fayetteville Banner: The census report for this town will show a falling off in our population of more than one thousand since last report.

The Supreme Court of Illinois on Tuesday affirmed the constitutionality of the State railroad law. The Illinois Central railroad which is involved in the suit, will appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Bishop Keane, the Bishop of Richmond Diocese, who lived in Washington at the time of the Surratt trial and was very intimate with the priest who visited Mrs. Surratt during her imprisonment, does not believe that the Surratt matter will affect Gen. H. Hancock's candidacy any Roman Catholic, he believes, now fully understand the part played by Hancock in that affair, and know that his connection with it was blameless.

The trade tide has turned again, and we are building up a big balance abroad. For the twelve months ending June 30th, the excess of merchandise exports will be $264,000,000 for the fiscal year, a large portion of trade balances in our favor must sooner or later be settled in specie.

In a speech delivered in Congress in 1866, Gen. Garfield, the candidate of republicans, called the Southern people "infamous," and favored the passage of a bill to exclude them "forever from the bright of elective franchise," maintaining that "anything is just which excludes from privilege and power all those infamous men who participated in the rebellion."

Garfield sets up, too, to be a Christian; he has even been a sort of proselyter. We wonder how many times he has said to the Lord: "Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us?" which in his case is the same as to pray for the damnation of his own soul.

Asheville Citizens Prof. Wilson, a scientist of Pennsylvania, accompanied by a dozen or more gentlemen from the same State, arrived here over the Western North Carolina Railroad Tuesday evening, on a special train, having spent the day on the mountains. Prof. Wilson and his party are engaged in making scientific observations of our country and climate, and will spend a week or so in this locality.

THE CREDIT SYSTEM IN THE SOUTH.

While a judicious use of the credit system has been of untold advantage to some individuals, yet, as regards the people it is one of the greatest evils; tending to make the poor poorer, and the rich richer. And, especially is this the case in regard to the South, causing one of the very heaviest drains on the country, a drain that will keep the South poor as long as it is used and abused as it now is; nor can this evil be stayed by a few individuals, by legislators, nor by general legislation, but if remedied at all, it must be done by the people, they are the responsible parties, and not the tradesman, as claimed by some. As a matter of course, the manufacturer will sell his wares if he can find some one to buy, and the merchant will bring from the North, or any other place whatever he can sell (whether worthless or not) and will sell his merchandise on a credit to responsible parties, or to those he can make responsible by mortgage or lien and this is the evil he sells on a credit, and to keep up his stock must buy on a credit, and thus buying has to pay at the rate of from 12 to 18 per cent per year more for his goods than if he bought for cash. If this was the merchants loss he would not sell on credit, consequently would not be under the necessity of buying on time, but not so, he simply adds this fact to the price of his goods, and the people, the consumer pays it. What then? let the people buy only such things as they can pay cash for, and they will not buy more than half as much as they do, but will get what they need for less money by paying the cash, and in a short time will find that they have money to pay for every thing they need.

Just take one case of reckless buying on a credit; Stokes county has this season bought thousands of dollars worth of fertilizer; (at least four times as much as would have been bought if the cash had been paid for it,) what is the result? In the first place the fertilizer cost the people eighteen per cent more than if they had paid cash for it, think of it, $180.00 for the use of one thousand dollars for one year; will not our people always be poor paying such a per cent as this? and this is not all, a considerable amount of the fertilizer bought has not been used, and worst of all there are thousands upon the top of hundreds of thousands of tobacco hills made with the fertilizer in them but no tobacco plant. But for the credit system the crop of hundreds of our farmers would not have been bound for a thing that will never be any advantage to them.

Reporter's Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, D. C. June 30 1880. I think no political campaign ever carried in better shape than this. Cincinnati gave us a Presidential candidate whose name compelled harmony wherever there had been discord, and our hope and enthusiasm where in the past there were doubt and indifference. The nomination of Hancock ensures the casting of every Democratic vote, and will bring to the party countless recruits from the enemy and from that large class of citizens who usually take no interest in political affairs. In short, it makes victory sure which with almost any other candidate would have been doubtful. Among the thousands of telegrams and letters of congratulation received by General Hancock are many from Republicans, many from old Mexican and Civil War associates, and all such give assurance of cordial support outside of the Democratic party. In this city, where, perhaps, there are more ex-soldiers than in any other of like size, many staunch Republicans will do all that they can to promote the success of the man with whom they fought.

I am of opinion, too, that the Radical ticket will have but cold support from those who in past campaigns have organized victory for it. There is a great deal of apathy among the "leaders." They want somebody besides Garfield. They didn't want G. Field. It is attempted now, to draw a parallel between the present Radical position and that of 1860, when Seward's supporters worked ardently for Lincoln. Radical papers would have us believe Grant's friends and Blaine's friends and Sherman's friends will work with equal zeal for Garfield. They will not. The reasons are obvious. There is now no great controlling idea to animate the party as there was in 1860. The sectional question on which a campaign was fought is dead and buried. To seek to revive a favorite was not admitted until then has been considered treason to a cause greater than any party question. Men dared not be lukewarm. Besides this the Radicals had then a hope of victory because of Democratic divisions, and men work better with hope than without. At this time a microscope could not show a Democratic discussion from Maine to Texas. No, I don't believe there will be an earnest support of Garfield, by prominent Republicans, and I see reasons for believing that the rank and file will not be so enthusiastic.

The first State to vote this Fall is Maine. Most of the Democratic leaders in Congress I find, during the session, had no hope of carrying the State, and opposed to making any effort in that direction. There could be no greater mistake. The State of Maine has to day a majority of voters who prefer Hancock to Garfield, and all that is needed is to bring them out. The best Democratic speakers should canvass the State thoroughly prior to the election in September.

Senator Thurman's Speech.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 25.—A large meeting was held in the State House yard last night to ratify the Cincinnati nominations. Speeches were made by Senator Thurman and others. Senator Thurman said: "Mr Chairman, Friends and Neighbors—It gives me sincere pleasure to meet with you, my friends and neighbors, to night, to ratify in the capital of Ohio the nominations made by your Convention in Cincinnati. I say it gives me pleasure, and for reasons that I shall briefly state to you—pleasures because the nominations are good; pleasure, because they will bring success to our banner; pleasure, because the men you have nominated will be elected, and they will bring peace and harmony, and it is right and proper that here, in the capital of this great State, which we mean to rally under the Democratic banner next November [cheer] that here we should set the ball in motion that is to roll on to victory. Now, my friends, I want to speak as plainly as I can, for you know that I am not given to rhetorical speaking. I leave that to young men—to men who have more fancy than I have. I want to speak to you plainly, and tell you why Winfield Scott Hancock should be elected President of the United States, and Mr. English, of Indiana, should be elected Vice President. First, Who is Winfield Scott Hancock? There is not a man in this audience, there is not a boy in this audience, who does not know that Winfield Scott Hancock was one of the brightest, the ablest, and most daring and brave of all the soldiers that went to the war to maintain the Union. [Applause] No man who ever commanded an army ever displayed more courage, more heroism, and ever displayed more skill than Hancock displayed from the time he went into the war until it was closed in triumph. Everybody knew that. But my friends, there is one thing that everybody does not know. Hancock has been in the army, all his life, and therefore you might not at once suspect, what is literally the truth, that Hancock is not only a soldier, but he is a constitutional lawyer and a good American statesman. [Cheers] I call him an American statesman, I call him a constitutional lawyer, and I have warrant for what I say. For when after the close of the rebellion he was placed as military Governor of Louisiana and Texas before they were admitted to representation in Congress and to exercise their rights as States, he showed in great contrast to what some other military governors showed. He showed he knew there was such a thing as the Constitution of the United States; that he knew there was such a thing as a free republic; that he knew that the true doctrine, the essential doctrine, the vital doctrine of every true republic and every free government is that the military must be subordinate to civil power; that trial by jury was the right of all American citizens. [Applause] Equal justice in the courts is the right of the American citizen. Freedom from unlawful arrest is the right of an American citizen. That is what makes him the idol of the people of Louisiana and Texas. That is what made Louisiana the first State to nominate him months ago in her State Convention. When I say that Gen. Hancock is a statesman I speak but the truth. I do not know that he ever made a speech in his life, and George Washington never made but one, and that was about fifteen minutes long."—Winnington Star.

Greenhorn Patriot says: Mr. Andrew M. Rumley, who lives a few miles east of Greensboro, caught a terrapin on the 20th day of last May which had the following words legibly cut on its shell. "James M. Denny, 1826."

—Moses Steele, the negro who cut Mr. M. Caldwell with a razor last Thursday, the 21 day of June was arrested yesterday at Redville by R. M. Rose, Chief of Police at that city. — Alfred Bland, colored, dropped dead in Warnersville, on the southwestern extremity of this city, on Sunday.
