Failing!

That is what a great many people are doing. They don't know just what is the matter, but they have a combination of pains and aches, and each month they grow worse.

The only sure remedy yet found is BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, and this by rapid and thorough assimilation with the blood purifies and enriches it, and rich, strong blood flowing to every part of the system repairs the wasted tissues, drives out disease and gives health and strength.

This is why BROWN'S IRON BITTERS will cure kidney and liver diseases, consumption, rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, malaria, intermittent fevers, &c.

203 S. Paca St., Baltimore. Nov. 28, 1881.
I was a great sufferer from Dyspepsia, and for several weeks could eat nothing and was growing weaker every day. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters, and am happy to say I now have a good appetite, and am getting stronger.

BITTERS

Old fashionable remedies are rapidly giving ground before the advance of this concurring age, and old fashioned ideas in regard to depletion as a means of cure, have been quite exploded by the success of the great renovant which tones the system, tranquilizes the nerves, regularizes the liver, overcomes and eradicates the blood, rouses the liver when dormant, and promotes a regular habit of body.

EARS FOR THE MILLION
Woo Choo's Balsam of Shark's Oil.
Positively Restores the Hearing, and is the Only Absolute Cure for Deafness Known.
This Oil is abstracted from peculiar species of small White Shark, caught in the Yellow Sea, known as CARCHARIAS ROXIMETH. Every Chinese Fisherman knows it. Its virtues as a restorative of hearing were discovered by Buddhist Priest about the year 1410. Its cures were so numerous and many so seemingly miraculous, that the remedy was officially proclaimed over the entire Empire. Its use became so universal that for over 300 years no Deafness has existed among the Chinese people. Sent, charges prepaid, to any address at $100 per bottle.

Hear What the Deaf Say.
It has performed a miracle in my case. I have no unearthly noises in my head and hear much better.
I have been greatly benefited.
My deafness helped a great deal—think another bottle will cure me.

"Its virtues are unquestionable and its curative character absolute, as the writer can personally testify, both from experience and observation. Write at once to HAYLOCK & JENNEY, 7 Dey Street, New York, enclosing $1.00, and you will receive by return a remedy that will enable you to hear like anybody else, and whose curative effects will be permanent. Blooming Prosperity.

A few days ago a drummer for one of our wholesale houses was travelling in a buggy along a country road in Arkansas, when he came upon a tall, raw-boned, well-dressed man sitting upon a rail fence whittling. With a sociable "good-morning," the traveller drew up his horse and asked:

"Is that your field of corn over there?"

"Wal, I calkilate I'll freeze onto a right smart sheer of it. I'm workin' the piece on shears."

"Looks like a fine crop."

"It does."

"I presume you are figuring on great prosperity in future, such immense crops indicating plenty, for all."

"Prosperity? Stranger, that hain't no name fur the cyclone that's a-goin' to ... this settlement atween the eyes this season. A tornado mout come just now an' land every durned bit o' grain in the country over into Tennessee, and yit the smiles of contentment 'd never shift off'n our faces!"

"Some unexpected good luck has befallen you," the tourist replied.

"That's the play to a t-y ty. We're gettin' our slice of the millennium away ahead o' the advertised date. Fust, ole Zack Bolton up an' died last month, an' thar' hasn't been a ear o'corn or a side o'bacon missed in the community since we tumbled the dirt on top o'him. Then Wash Tompkins, the boss ole sledge player, got sent to State prison fur horse stealin,' thus givin' us poor players a show fur our pile; then Snaky, the saloon keeper up at the forks o' the road dropped down to ten cents a drink fur whiskey, an' said he'd take corn same as cash; then my old woman ran off with a Yankee sewing machine peddler, an' my darter Sal got religion an' joined Mt. Zion Church, an' if bloomin' prosperity ain't a hangin' over the neighborhood, I'm a gilt edge liar from the Red River swamps. Got any sweet tobacker about you?"

FEELING HURRIED.—Probably nothing tires one so much as feeling hurried. When in the early morning the day's affairs press upon one's attention beforehand, and there comes the wonder how in the world everything is to be accomplished; when every interruption is recorded impatiently, and the clock is watched in distress as the moments flit past, then the mind tires the body. We are wrong to drive ourselves with the whip and spur in this way. Each of us is promised strength for the day, and we must not wear ourselves out by crowding two days' tasks into one. If we can only keep cool and calm, not allowing ourselves to be flustered, we shall be less worried when we have reached the eventide. The children may be facetious, the servents trying, the friend we love may fail to visit us, the letter we expect may not arrive, but if we can preserve our tranquility of soul and demeanor we shall get through everything creditably.

CARP AND TURTLES.—Southern Stock Journal: Judge Bridewell, at Beauregard, had seventy-five or eighty beautiful carp in his pond, but as a big turtle was seen in it, suspecting the fellow might be depredating on his young fish, the water was drawn off and nearly half of his carp was found to have been devoured. Rev. J. W. McNeil found one carp in his pond that showed marks of violence from the depredations of turtles.

Young carp are the biggest fools among the finny tribe. If the weather turns cool they stick their heads into the mud and a turtle comes along and eats them up.

The only remedy to keep these carp-eaters out of your ponds is to fence them around with a plank fence. If it only reaches two or three feet from the ground it will answer, as turtles can't climb. If they are not in the ponds already they can easily be kept out by this simple method.

Short Sermons.

As a general rule we believe that every word is lost and is an injury, when the morning sermon exceeds forty minutes or the evening sermon thirty. If the preacher cannot reach the subject and preach it in the time named, it is because he is an empty vessel. Even if it shall be continued beyond this time by some man who is still furnishing good thoughts, the minds of the audience are full and fatigued, and the continuation is ruining the good effect already produced.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

Collecting a Dividend.

In the early days of railroading in Missouri a six-foot stranger, with a bad look in his eye, one day entered a station on the line of ten miles and found a well-dressed man sitting upon a rail fence whittling. With a sociable "good-morning," the traveller drew up his horse and asked:

"Is that your field of corn over there?"

"Wal, I calkilate I'll freeze onto a right smart sheer of it. I'm workin' the piece on shears."

"Looks like a fine crop."

"It does."

"I presume you are figuring on great prosperity in future, such immense crops indicating plenty, for all."

Mastodon Found On the W N C R.R.

The skeleton of a full grown mastodon has been found in the Cowee tunnel on the Ducktown branch of the Western North Carolina Railroad. When the monster was discovered the convicts fled in terror and it was by hard work that they could be induced to return to their picks. It was found six feet below the surface of the earth. It was in a perfect state of preservation but crumbled to dust as soon as exposed to the air. The mastodon is the Russian term of fossil elephant, and is extensively found in Russia and all over Europe. It became extinct, according to geology, near 10,000 years ago, died on the Pleistocene beds. In 1799, one was found in the icy districts of Russia, the hide of which was in a fair state of preservation, and was of such weight that it took ten men to support it a distance of 150 feet. The one found in the Cowee tunnel was streched out a distance of forty feet—supposed to have been devoured by carniverous animals, and the bones disengaged from their original position. The largest mastodons range from fourteen to twenty-four feet in length, and from nine to twelve feet in height.

The Return of Our Wives.

It was in a horse-car. She had been away for several months and the children had gone to the depot to meet her. They chatted away merrily while she patted their little heads, and smiled interestingly.

"How's Mary?" she inquired when they both stopped for breath.

"Oh! she's well. She's been taking her music lessons right along."

"And Harry?"

"He's going to school. Started last week."

"And papa?"

"He's well too. He's having a bully time. He said he didn't care if you didn't come back for a year."

The passengers roared.

Grabbing the children with both hands she rushed for the door with an I'll-get-even-with-him-for-this expression on her face. Heaven help him.

Names in the Paper.

Many people declare that they are horrified to see their "names in the papers," and the following shows how some get there:

A Connecticut editor received the other day the following paragraph, which is a fair sample of the sort of "news" that some people are in the habit of "sending to the paper": "Mr. Fred and Miss Amelia Perry, of Pawtucket, R. I., are in town, the guests of Miss Flora Perry." With this request, although he had never heard of the persons mentioned, the editor complied, and even went further, and dignified the announcement by a big 'head,' as follows: "Glad They Are Here."

Whilst you look too much on others gardens, you will neglect your own.

Genius at first is little more than a great capacity for receiving discipline.

The Tobacco Trade.

"Gauging the trade in manufactured tobacco according to actual evidence and probable facts, a most active season will ensue, and the transactions will be both large and profitable. The immigration to this country within the past year has aggregated about 750,000 people, and it is not imaginative to say that nearly all the male adults embraced in this number are users of tobacco in some one or all of its forms, and to supply them with the soothing "weed" a considerable increase in the production of tobacco manufacturers will be necessary. But this is only one of the minor causes. It is so well known to merchants and manufacturers that the character of the crops decides the volume and profits of the trade, that great anxiety is expressed and shown until the results of the harvest are made known. This year the crops are most excellent, both in character and quantity, and, as the industrial interrests are not lagging it is certainly reasonable to anticipate increased demand and remunerative prices for all articles of trade, and especially for tobacco, which is held by many to be a necessity, and the majority of people as a pleasure and comfort, and nothing but 'hard times' will induce them to forego or restrict its consumption. Already the cigar trade has greatly increased and it is fair to presume that, where there is such a large demand there are also reasonable profits. The production of cigars alone in New York last month was morethant 7,000,000 above that of last August and fair in excess of the previous month. Many manufacturers are increasing their capacity, and all are working with large forces and to their fullest bent. Plug and fine cut manufacturers have more orders on hand and find more difficulty in filling them than experienced for years many of them working increase forces of employs overtime.

Horse Trading and Theology.

A Hudson River farmer who wanted a better horse than he possessed drove into Yonkers one day with his nag, and hunting up a certain citizen who had the sort of horse he wanted the farmer stated his desire to exchange, and added: "I understand you are a Christian man?" "Yes sir." "Belong to the Baptist church?" "Yes." "One of the deacons, I believe?" "I am." A trade was made, and the farmer drove home with the new equine But in the course of three days he returned and began: "See here, deacon, what kind of a man are you! You never told me that that horse I got of you had spavins and ringbones and heaves?" "No, I believe I didn't." "Well, you are a pretty Curistian, you are!" "My friend, placidly replied the good man, "If you can find it anywhere in the good book that a deacon in the Baptist Church must point out the defects in his own horse where a sinner is too ignorant to see for himself. I'll admit my sin and trade back. Come in and we'll hunt for the passage?"

A horse pulled the plug out of the bunghole of a water barrel and slaked his thirst. Now, there is nothing extraordinary in the occurrence. If the horse had pulled the barrel out of the bunghole and slaked his thirst with the plug, or if the barrel had pulled the bunghole out of the plug and slaked his thirst with the horse, or if the bunghole had pulled the thirst out of the horse and slaked the plug with the barrel, or if the barrel had pulled the horse out of the bunghole and plugged his thirst with the slake, or of, having the barrel, he was seen to pull it from water and slake the bunghole by plugging it with a pullet, there might have been some cause for argument about it. But none of those things seem to have occurred.

SMALL BITES.

Publish your joys, but conceal your sorrows.

Much learning shows how little mortal knows.

Vain glory is a flower which never comes to fruit.

Experience and wisdom are the best fortune-tellers.

Crimes sometimes shock us too much; vices almost always too little.

Faith steps into our aid when our boasted reason and knowledge fail.

There is no such thing as being proud before man, and humble before God.

He who lives to benefit himself confers on the world a benefit when he dies.

The sweetest thing on earth is a little child when it has learned to know and love.

Brain is the impelling force of the world, and thought is the symbol progress.

There are more fools than sages, and among the sages there is more folly than wisdom.

People learn wisdom by experience. A man never wakes up his second baby to see it laugh.

Be deaf to quarrelsome, blind to the scorner, and dumb to those who are mischievously inquisitive.

He who comes up to his own idea of greatness must have had a low standard of it in his own mind.

The best portion of a good man's life is his little nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love.

One of the saddest sights of hard times is to see a woman with a five foot husband trying to alter his pants to fit her six foot son.

Are blacksmiths who make a living by forging, or carpenters who do a little counterfeiting, any worse than men who sell iron and steal for a living?

It has been officially decided that the reason why a law book is like a frolicksome ram jumping over a fence is because they are boundin' sheep.

Who are the most wicked people in the world, and why? Pen makers—because they make people steel pens and tell them they do write.

A WORD ABOUT SAYING 'NO.'—One thing I would like to impress upon the minds of mothers in general, and that is—Don't be too ready to say "No" to your little children. Stop and think, before you deny a request, whether it is not the very thing you would have liked to do when you were a child, and if it is reasonable grant it even though it is childish.

Remember that you can follow out your tastes and fancies without opposition, in nine cases out of ten, and don't be too hard on the little one who comes with a timid "May I do this, mamma?" or "Couldn't you let me have that?"

Sometimes the granting involves a little discomfort, it is true—noise, or a littered floor, or some other grave derangement of household rules—yet still I say, put yourself in your child's place and see if you cannot give the permission which will wreathe the little faces with smiles and gladden the little hearts.

To Advertisers.

The REPORTER AND POST offers the following inducements to advertisers who may wish to reach the people of Middle and Western North Carolina, and other sections:

1. It is the only paper published in Stokes county, the population of which is about 16,000.

2. It goes to nearly every State in the Union, circulates to a considerable extent in Surry, Forsythe and Rockingham counties, in this State, as well as the adjoining counties in Virginia, while its circulation among the 16,000 of Stokes county's population, is nearly as great as that of all other weeklies combined.

3. It is in a prosperous condition and growing in favor, its circulation today being greater than at any time since the first number was issued more than ten years since, and has nearly doubled within the last two years.

4. The rates offered by the REPORTER AND POST to advertisers are as low as are offered by any paper with a circulation as large as its own.
