A PAPER FOR THE PEOPLE

Entered at the Danbury N. C. Post-office as Second Class Matter.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1885.

THIS PAPER may be found on that day Advertising through the Reporter and Post's Exchange.

The Virginia fair is being held this week.

The Republicans claim Ohio by 20,000 majority.

Gen. Robert Toombs is reported as being worse. The announcement at any time of his death will not be unexpected.

There will be 150 new members in the next House of Representatives to learn something of Congressional legislation.

The Philadelphia Times remarks that one disheartening part about the Ohio election is that it will give encouragement to the bloody shirt tool.

The Baptist Church of Ocala, Fla., has expelled every member whose name has been found on a petition in favor of granting a liquor license.

Andrew Harper, who died recently in Mississippi, was the author of a famous piece of American humor known as the Hard Shell Baptist sermon, the text of which declared, 'An' he played on a harp of a thousand strings, 'spears of jus' men made perfect.'

The camels turned loose upon the Arizona desert some years ago have so multiplied that they now roam the Gila Valley in herds of 100 or more. The hunters of the Territory have great sport in chasing them. A camel hunt is a long way ahead of the old-fashioned deer drive.

WE MUST HAVE SCHOOLS.

There is nothing that adds more to a community than good schools. We feel the need of them. Here in old Stokes, where we breathe the purest air and feast the eye on the grandest scenery; where grand forests of the finest timber abound, with magnificent water-power on every hand; where such a great variety of valuable minerals exist, we are forced to believe that Nature has done as much, if not more, for Stokes than any county in the good Old North State, with the single exception of giving us a man. Yes, we need men with clear, clean grit in their crops, and good, sound, horse sense in their heads. Nature has not been stint in giving us raw material, of which to make men.

Our boys, and girls too, possess as much good, sound, natural sense, integrity and virtue as any sun shines upon, but they lack polishing. We need good schools and good instructors to impress upon our young people that "where there's a will there's a way." We want competition in knowledge, in push, and in doing right because it is right.

The old people are to blame for the lethargy and indolence of their children, and for inculcating into their young minds that all it is necessary for them to know is how to make and "chew" tobacco, tell a slick lie and drink whisky. And just here: without a change in twenty years from to-day, we will be a nation of drunkards; and some of us may live to see the little curly-headed boy we now dandle upon our knee, occupying the convict's cell or filling a drunkard's grave. The first step toward preventing those results is home instruction. And then we must have well-disciplined schools.

There are some men in Stokes who think that the money spent in giving a child an education is thrown away. Such men are fools for the want of sense. They want their children to be just as they have been, and nearly the whole county is to-day "brewers of wood and drawers of water" for the rest of the world. Let us wake up! We have acted the fool long enough. We have tried the "ponny wise" and pound foolish" policy long enough. To say that a great county like Stokes, with more than sixteen thousand inhabitants, cannot furnish schools to educate her sons and daughters, and thus compel them to leave her borders to get an education, is a shame and a disgrace to the pious, little-souled grown up people of the county.

COULDN'T CATCH HIS PA.—A Sunday school teacher was telling her children how the devil goeth about like a roaring lion seeking whom he may devour, and after the lesson was through she said that those who wished could ask questions. At once a little boy spoke up and asked how fast the devil could run. "Hush, Johnnie," said the teacher, "such questions are very profane." "Well, I don't care," said Johnnie, "he can't outrun pa, anyhow, 'cause I heard pa tell a man down street the other day that he caught the devil the night he came home from the lodge."
