YOUNG FARMER, TAKE HEART!

farm is no doubt in my mind the best place in the world to train children and it is the place to make the necessities of life, which should make contented and thankful people.

Now, if we are going to give our thoughts and study to something else, we had better at once quit the farm and give our time also to that trade, for we cannot make a success. I say that farming should have as much thought and study as any industry that can be mentioned.

We upland farmers should make more small grain, peavine hay, clover, grass and things that will improve our soils and make them more productive. I do not raise but very little corn on my place, I have nearly all my corn to buy, but as for buying flour, I have never bought a pound in my life and I am now 31 years old. I sell some wheat and flour most every year. Some years I sell enough to buy what corn I have to use.

The farm affords the best enjoyments that life can have; if we only would take advantage of the opportunities we have, we would be the happiest people on earth.

The biggest trouble with the farmer of today, he does not prepare to live at home, he puts too much of his time on king tobacco and lets the preparations for good things at home stand aside and is at the same time dissatisfied because he sees or hears tell of some one who is getting a big salary. The money is not pouring into his pocket and he thinks of a thousand things that are better than farming. Such a man as that is no account for anything and never will be until he applies himself to something and bucks to it. I have never tried anything but farming and I am satisfied with it if I do not make so many dollars as some, I believe it is the healthiest and most pleasant work for me to engage in and every farmer should believe the same or quit the business and do what suits him best unless it is something that is not right, then he should remember what the good Book says: "Abstain from every form of evil." I believe that every young man that can should take a course in agricultural education so they may understand more thoroughly what farming is and how to do it.

I would like for some of our good experienced farmers to give us a piece of advice on farming once in a while for I like to read good pieces on agriculture and if our good farmers would give us a piece every now and then, it would help one another. "Dog-Killer" has had some good pieces and if he will carry his argument on farming like he did on the strong drink question, I am sure he can learn us something about farming. Come out, Mr. Dog-Killer, and make some suggestions for us and other successful and unsuccessful farmers can help the cause for one another. I will be glad to hear from any one who is interested in farming.
