When some one asked for music he said he would play for them after supper, which he supposed would soon be ready, as he heard them grinding coffee (But they were making ice cream instead.) He was very much surprised when invited out to supper to see the dining room decorated with evergreens and roses and the table loaded with good things.

After supper and the refreshments, consisting of ice cream lemonade, chocolate and fruit had been served, all returned to the parlor for a general good time. The evening passed pleasantly with music on the piano and guitars. All seemed to have a nice time. ONE WHO WAS THERE.
