HOT FIGHT COMING

DANBURY NEXT SATURDAY

Result of the Republican Primaries Gives Slate Lead For Sheriff, and Morefield Majority For Register of Deeds—Table Showing the Vote By Precincts Instructions for House and Senate.

The Stokes County Republican primaries were held last Saturday, and according to reports in some precincts the contest was quite warm.

From the best reports which the Reporter has been able to secure, Slate leads in the fight for the office of Sheriff, while Morefield is ahead in the contest for the office of Register of Deeds. Appended herewith is a table showing how the vote was cast by precincts. At several of the precincts there were no instructions given. There are 73 delegates from the various precincts entitled to vote in the convention, a majority of which will nominate. After the first ballot all delegates will be released from their instructions, and free to vote for whom they please.

Next Saturday is the convention, and a most warm contest is anticipated over the office of Register of Deeds, four candidates being in the fight.

In the primaries last Saturday some of the precincts instructed their delegates to vote for J. W. Hall for Legislature, while others instructed for H. McGee and D. V. Carroll respectively. At one precinct instructions were given for Carroll for the Senate.

A large crowd will attend the convention Saturday, which will be called to order about 1 o'clock.

Danbury is full of pretty, bright, intellectual and interesting women, nearly all of them young as well as good looking men. The occasion is the biennial meeting of the Teachers' Institute. Baird, of Charlotte, assisted by Mrs. Foward, of Asheville, and Prof. J. T. Smith, Superintendent of Stokes schools. The visiting instructors are prominent in the State's educational work, and are very capable.

The attendance at the Institute being compulsory on the part of applicants to teach in the public schools, nearly every teacher in the county is present while a good many visiting teachers are also here. Many spectators are also in the audience from all parts of the county. It is entirely the most successful event of the kind yet held.

WHAT MAKES A WOMAN?

One hundred and twenty pounds, more or less, of bone and muscle don't make a woman. Its a good foundation. Put into it health and strength and she may rule a kingdom. But that's just what Electric Bitters give her. Thousands bless them for overcoming fainting and dizzy spells and for dispelling weakness, nervousness, backache and tired, listless, worn out feeling. "Electric Bitters have done me the world of good," writes Pool, Depew, Okla., "and I thank you with all my heart, for making such a good medicine. Only 50c. Guaranteed by all druggists."

Mr. P. L. Culler Denounces the False Representation of a False-Faced Writer.

King, July 22.

Dear Editor:

We think your paper is due us a reply to Mr. H. W. Y.'s letter in last week's issue. While we don't think it hardly necessary to reply, as all thinking men will consider, but first we want to state that the letter written by the man with the false face on is without foundation entirely. There is not a word of it, that fits our town and community for there are only three Sunday School in our community and they are carried on properly, and of course in reply to the praying people we Christians fall short of our duty, for we don't go down in the slums and among the worldly people to pray as we should, therefore not giving that class of people a chance to know who prays and who don't, while it is not often we get a rebuke from the world, still it will remind us that there is a work to do. There is not a community in my knowing that has put forth more efforts for the salvation of souls than ours in the past two years. There is not a Christian in our community that does not pray. This statement is to the best of my knowledge, while I can call to mind 20 men that pray in public, and I positively know there is no Sunday school that does not have at least two prayers offered, and I dare say the most instructive Sunday School in the county. I am proud to say that the words of Mr. H. W. Y. do not fit this community, as our people are as near all on good terms as any community I have ever been in, and all pulling together. We think our Mr. H. W. Y. is due us an apology or an explanation. If not we will ask him to come again clean shaved and not be ashamed to own his name, and if he is on an R. F. D. route please say so, as his letters are doing the good people of our community an injustice. We are not writing this because we feel hit with his words of slander, but only to inform the readers of our Dear Old Reporter who are not in touch with our community that Mr. H. W. Y. did not mean King, N. C. If so we claim he has entirely misrepresented us and will ask him to come to see us and see for yourselves, visit any of our churches, any of our houses, and we give you a special invitation to Sunday School and we will give Mr. H. W. Y. a special invitation to King, as we are sure he has never been here and knows nothing about the place.

Respectfully,
P. L. CULLER.

How Mr. Farmer Can Make His Wife and Himself Happy.

I would like to make a few suggestions to the farmer as to how he can help in big and little ways to make his wife, as she ought to be, the happiest and best contented woman on earth. If there is a telephone line in reach of you, have a phone put in your house. If there is none, get together with your neighbors and build one. It will pay you as well as give pleasure to your family.

Get to work on good roads in your community, if you haven't them already. Then get a gentle horse that your wife can drive and see that it is at her disposal at least once a week. Get a buggy for her to ride in, instead of having to use the old heavy farm wagon.

Subscribe for one or two good magazines for her. Make her your business partner and consult with her about everything. The chances are she has just as much sense and business judgment as you have and she may have more.

And remember that anything you can do to increase your wife's health and happiness will increase your own and that of the whole family. Mrs. Lillian Brooks Gatlin, in The Progressive Farmer.

PLANT ON THE LEVEL

AND KEEP OUT OF THE GRASS

Learn to Use the Hoe and Plow Less—They Are Too Slow and Expensive.

We have advised our readers to plant their crops as nearly on the level practicable. Early planted crops on damp soils, especially cotton, may start off better and a better stand may be obtained when planted on a slight ridge, or low bed; but there is no need for planting late crops on a bed. There was never any good sense in planting crops on high beds to keep them out of the water. If there is so much water on the land or the land is so poorly drained that water stands in the furrows between the rows for any considerable length of time, no crop will be made, even if it is planted on high bed. Except to aid in getting a better stand and start-off in early-planted crops when the weather is cool, there is nothing gained by planting on beds. The crops planted level do as well in a wet year and much better in a dry year.

For similar reasons and because the wet season of the last few months is likely to be followed by more or less dry weather, we advise our readers to cultivate so as to, as far as possible, hold the moisture in the land for the use of the crops. They are likely to need this moisture before the season is over. Level planting and level cultivation should be the rule with all crops planted after the weather and soil become warm.

It may become necessary to run the turning plow in order to clean it of grass, whenever this is done or whenever it becomes necessary, it is proof positive that the crop has not received proper cultivation previously. Many a man seeks to justify the turning plow in cultivating the crops by the argument that such is necessary or best in order to kill the grass, but that is no argument at all, except in support of the charge that he has neglected properly to prepare his land or cultivate his crop after planting it. When this is stated, then up bobs the fellow with the ever-ready argument that some seasons it is impossible to keep out the grass. It is true that some seasons many people get in the grass, but nine out of ten of these are the fellows who do not break and harrow their land properly before planting and depend on the hoe and the turning-plow after planting to keep down the weeds and grass. When a man follows such methods he is sure to get in the grass if the weather is at all unfavorable.

We must learn to use the hoe and plow less in cultivating our crops. They are too slow and expensive. The man who depends on them gets in the grass often, whereas, the man who prepares his land well and uses the harrow and cultivator in the early part of the season seldom gets "in the grass."—The Progressive Farmer.

Farm Manures Compared With Commercial Fertilizers.

In comparing farm manures with commercial fertilizers, we realize that the nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash in the former may not be so valuable pound for pound, but when we take into account the vegetable matter present and its mechanical effect on the soil and also that it is applicable to all varieties of soil and crops, its superiority cannot be questioned. If the fertilizer and value of soils depended mainly on the amount of mineral matter in them, their fertility might remain unimpaired for centuries to come. The mineral matter can only be exhausted from a soil by cropping, if we except small quantities of soluble matters, which are sometimes leached out of certain soils. All cultivated soils lose more or less mineral matter through crops removed, but this loss is very slight when compared to the loss of nitrogen and organic matter, which are lost rapidly both by leaching and oxidation. The lack of organic matter is, in my judgment, the primary cause of the low productive power of our Southern soils. Organic matter is much easier retained in Northern than in Southern soils. This is mainly owing to heat and moisture of the South, which carries on the decomposition more rapidly in a warm than in a cold climate. And since cotton culture is such a humus-destroying process, it renders the husbanding of this valuable principle as perhaps the most important process in Southern agriculture.

A well kept manure heap may be safely taken as one of the surest indications of thrift and success in farming. Neglect of this resource causes losses which, though vast in extent, are little appreciated.—Prof. E. R. Lloyd, in The Progressive Farmer.

Dysentery is always serious and often a dangerous disease, if it can be cured. Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy has cured it even when malignant and epidemic. For sale by all druggists.
