WEDNESDAY, NOV. 6, 1912.

An acre in chickens is one hundred times more profitable than an acre in tobacco, but you have to know how.

Tobacco lands and mules will continue to increase in price, probably, as they got higher all the time when tobacco was low.

There is an idea prevalent that free whiskey means liberty and happiness, but the truth is that it means thralldom and suffering.

When the people are educated, crime and suffering, hookworm and flies, typhoid and bad roads, will be troubled memories of a painful past.

Frost, rain and wind—these three—will whip the beautiful trees of their foliage, and leave them bare, ugly and stark to the winter, which is fast coming on.

If you are not a subscriber of the Danbury Reporter, get on the list. Never an issue but that you learn something which is worth more than a year's subscription price to you.

Whatever the result of the election may be, remember that our nearest approach to happiness lies along the turnpike road, and not over the hills of mud, rock and gutters. Every good citizen should stand irrevocably for good roads until we get them. Persistence will win.

It looks like the doom of the Turks is at hand. There are few tears in the world for the decline of the empire which has so long been murdering the Christians. The sympathy of modern humanity is bound to be on the side of the little nations that have the Musselman on the hip.

The loss of a good citizen now and then is what constantly and continuously drains away our vital resources. As long as we are apathetic in the matter of good roads and better schools, just so long will disaffection and dissatisfaction depopulate our county, and keep us in the backwoods of poverty, superstition and shame.

The young farmer who starts life with a bank account, and while his neighbor is wasting substance in riotous living, year in and year out he adds to his pile, quietly becoming every day stronger and stronger, will see the day when he will be a power in his circle, and men will yield to him that respect and honor which he has won.

There is more clear money on the investment in a small one-horse farm, if worked with intelligence, economy and energy, than any other industry in this country in which an untrained man can engage. We know of a family near Danbury who have this year paid out of debt, lived comfortably and will have left $500.00 to put in the bank after the crop is sold. All done in one year. Isn't this fine? And there are others.

Advertise your business, and it will grow beyond your dreams. Sears, Roebuck & Co., Montgomery Ward & Co., and the great department stores of the north and west owe their progress to advertising. The parcel post law will not hurt you, but will benefit you, if you are up-to-the-minute in your business methods. But if you are a back number, and belong to the fossils, or the moss-backs of the last century, you had better get out of the business.

During the month of October 15 aviators were killed. The total death list of people trying to fly has now reached 207. But this does not stop the work. Many vessels trying to reach the American coast were sunk. All great accomplishments require sacrifices, and every step of modern science exacts its victims. All these good lives are being snuffed out in order that we may some day have our mail delivered by air lines indeed, when we shall have abandoned our good road hopes for aye.

The farmer should have a good education. He pursues one of the most important occupations in the world. Almost all the food of civilized man is produced from the farm. The quantity and excellence of the food thus produced depend upon the skill and intelligence with which the farm is managed. Nothing can so well be done by an ignorant, careless person as by a person of intelligence and knowledge, and there is no place where knowledge is more important than it is on a farm.

Mr. Andrew Joyce, of Danbury, who is at present holding a position in Winston, came home yesterday to vote.

Mr. J. Wilson Mitchell, a member of the Board of Education, was a Danbury visitor Monday.
