An exchange very pertinently suggests that if England had a land-going navy, or Germany a sea-going army, the situation might be different.

It is said that the opening of the regional banks this week will release more than $3,000,000,000 cash. That ought to satisfy the most exacting demands of business.

The opening of the big regional banks this week, at the same time that the Liverpool, New York and New Orleans cotton exchanges begin to do business again, will go a long way toward furnishing business with that impetus upward which the war so seriously arrested.

The present acreage of wheat being sown in Stokes county will, in the event of a favorite yield, make us a bread producing county. Now if a proportionate effort be made for corn under demonstration methods, we will certainly have taken a wonderful step in the direction of independence.

The question is up in congress now whether or not to increase the army and navy, in view of certain happenings across the waters. Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, says "By the time the English and Germans get through sinking each other's ships, we will have the largest navy in the world, anyhow."

NO PARTIALITY.

We cannot afford to send on time to some, and make others pay in advance. The same rule applies to all. We do this to save book-keeping, trouble, time, expense and often hard feelings. Please help us carry out the new modern way, by paying your subscription in advance by December 1st.

When tobacco begins to move as far as the people of Stokes county are concerned the European war may rage. We care nothing about it except as a matter of humanity. The roll of the loaded wagons across the bridge soothes the financial nervousness, and the unloading of the yellow leaf on the warehouse floor loosens all the ties that bind trade and untwists the chains on prosperity.

Many of the progressive counties like Mecklenburg and Guilford are what defeated the amendments. Stokes gave a good majority for all of them. Somebody writing in the Greensboro News said the farmers defeated the amendments because they couldn't understand them. This is a slander on the intelligence of the farmers. The facof the business is Mr. Farmer votes more intelligently than any other class of people, as a rule. To go a step farther, he is furnishing most of the cash as well as character in this country anyhow these days.

Danbury people had to do without any papers Saturday, Sunday and until Monday evening, owing to somebody's neglect in not getting the second class mail sacks delivered here Saturday evening. Those of us who anticipated among the blessings of good roads an earlier mail, have been handed a lemon. The mail which is delivered to our carrier at Walnut Cove a little after eleven, rarely reaches us until nearly four in the afternoon. It is a pity Uncle Sam is too poor to pay the mail man a decent salary which would enable him to use express service instead of freight.

The coca-cola habit has made tremendous strides in the country during the last few years. Not long ago this traffic was confined to the cities, but now the "dope" crate is a necessary part and parcel of the stock in trade of the average country merchant. The ploughman loves it as well as the book-keeper, and doesn't hesitate to spend his hard coin for it. The spread of the coca-cola habit need not unduly frighten anybody. It is serving a useful purpose in largely taking the place of whiskey. In China they are cutting out opium and substituting tobacco, while in Stokes we are changing booze for "dope."

PREACHERS AND RICHES.

The Danbury Reporter says Rev. R. W. George, a Presbyterian minister, is the wealthiest citizen of Stokes county, "owning near 4,000 acres of land, besides four large roller mills and various other property." The Reporter doesn't so state, but it is assumed that Mr. George is no longer in the work of the ministry. Active work in the ministry doesn't usually bring large returns of this world's goods and a preacher of wealth is usually a retired preacher. Rev. Dr. J. C. Rowe of Asheville once confided to the Landmark that it was his observation that whenever a preacher began to make money "something gets the matter with his throat." Statesville Landmark.

The Landmark's assumption that Mr. George has retired because of his great wealth, is incorrect. He is still very active in the work of saving the souls of his neighbors. Although Mr. George is probably worth $200,000, we have never heard that anything was the matter with his throat, and he is therefore an exception to the rule as noted by Dr. Rowe.

Farm Demonstration Work In This State.

Mr. C. R. Hudson of the Farm Demonstration work of the State department of agriculture has returned from Washington where last week he attended a number of conferences relative to the operation of the Smith-Lever bill in the extension of financial aid to agricultural work.

"By virtue of this bill," said Mr. Hudson to a News and Observer reporter, "a number of counties in North Carolina will be able to have farm demonstration work hitherto impossible by reason of lack of finances."

Already there are sixty-five counties in the State lined up for the work, and these sixty-five counties have prospered mightily under the impetus of scientific farming. With the Smith-Lever bill operating favorably, it will be only a short time before farm demonstration agents are at work in every county of the State.

In the line of the extension work of the State department of agriculture, a department has been made in the direction of making life on the farm more profitable and more livable for the farm women. The Home Economics Department will be inaugurated. It will embrace instruction in cooking, household work in general, literary features, and woman's club.

Twenty poultry clubs have been organized and are now actively engaged under directions of an expert, said Mr. Hudson. In addition there are three hundred active members of pig clubs in co-operation with the Animal Division of the State department of agriculture.

These are practically new lines of activity for the department. The boys of the corn clubs and the girls of the canning clubs have already demonstrated what can be done in the line of organized endeavor for the promotion of the science of profitable farm work. There are now boys corn clubs in 97 counties and there are forty-five hundred boys lined up in the work. The canning clubs are of more recent organization but there are more than forty counties already in the work.
