

LETTER TO VETERANS

Committee Extends Invitation To Old Soldiers In Stokes To Attend Reunion At Madison August 21st.

The following letter, which explains itself, has been mailed to all of the old Confederate Veterans in Stokes county:

Madison, N. C., Aug. 4, 1915.
My dear sir:

On Saturday, August the 21st, there will be an Old Soldiers' Reunion held at Madison, N. C., throughout the entire day. This is to extend to you and your family a most cordial invitation to be present on that day. Immediately upon your arrival in Madison, you will please go to Pratt Brothers store or to G. W. Martin at McGeehee & Company's store where you will register and receive a badge so that we will have no difficulty in telling who the old soldiers are.

Special dinner will be served for the old soldiers; speeches will be made by eminent speakers and an efficient band will be secured to furnish music for that day. All old soldiers not on the pension list are invited and will please notify the committee if they are coming.

Hoping that we may see you on the 21st, we are

Most sincerely yours,

G. W. MARTIN,
J. C. BROWN,
W. H. GENTRY,
R. A. ELLINGTON,
R. C. MATTHEWSON,
H. S. WEBSTER,
J. W. WARD,
Invitation Committee.

Pilot Mountain To Be Sold.

After eighteen years of litigation, Pilot Mountain with its 30,000 acres, is to be sold. A. C. Bernard, of Nashville, and J. C. Folger, of Winston-Salem, are the commissioners to sell, and the date is November 9. The commissioners have a right to receive bids prior to that time, and to sell if they see fit. It is said the sale will involve more than $50,000. The celebrated case, Boling Whitfield et als, vs C. M. Bernard, et als, which has been in the Superior Court several times and to the Supreme Court twice, began over the land purchased by Andre Mathieu in 1796. Judge Gilliam, of South Carolina, married the daughter of the original purchasers, and when Mathieu died he left the estate to his daughter for her life and the remainder in trust for the heirs. Some of the heirs went to Georgia and some are in North Carolina. North Carolina heirs are now represented by Mr. C. M. Bernard and his sons, of whom A. C. Bernard is one and the Georgia heirs of Boling Whitfield, et als.

SOME LIME FACTS.

Land Owners Should Read this Carefully Before Using Lime On Their Farms.

The North Carolina Department of Agriculture sends out the following information in regard to the use of lime:

Fact 1. Do not use "burned" lime for agricultural purposes. It is caustic and will destroy the vegetable matter of your soils by "eating away its substance" through chemical action. It thus reduces the organic matter content of your soils, liberates and dissipates your soil nitrogen into the air, and leaves your land in a relatively impoverished condition.

Fact 2. Use only ground limestone or marl on your soil. This form of lime helps to enrich your land and does not burn out your soil humus. There is, moreover, no danger from an overapplication of lime in this form.

Fact 3. Do not rely on ground limestone or marl, alone, to keep up the fertility of your land. The best results are obtained only when these materials are used in connection with liberal amounts of organic matter. Remember the proverb: "Lime and lime without (green) manure make both son and father poor," and, "Lime combined with vegetable matter makes both farm and farmer better."

Fact 4. Lime is said to liberate inert soil potash and render it available for the growing crop. All Piedmont North Carolina soils have an abundance of inert soil potash.

Fact 5. Lime corrects soil acidity, accelerates the rotting of green manuring crops and other forms of organic matter in the soil, and serves as a food for all kinds of plants; especially those of the legume family, such as the clovers, vetch, alfalfa, peas, and beans.

Fact 6. Make liberal use of lime on land intended for peanuts, alfalfa, and the clovers.

Fact 7. It is advisable to spread lime over your meadows and pastures during the spring months.

Fact 8. Spread lime over your green manuring crops before turning them under, in order to hasten their decay early in the season.

Fact 9. Spread lime at any convenient time, but preferably during the fall, winter, and spring months, when teams and men have most leisure.

Fact 10. Use from one to five tons of ground limestone to the acre, depending on the object for which you use it. For the correction of soil acidity on the far eastern "black lands," make the larger acre application.

Fact 11. Since lime dissolves readily in the soil, it is generally better to make small applications at short intervals than large applications at long intervals; i. e., it is generally better to apply 600 pounds to the acre every year than to apply 2,000 pounds to the acre once in four years.

Fact 12. Lime cannot take the place of thorough drainage in the correction of soil acidity. Drain first, then lime.

Fact 13. Ground limestone and marl should be used in grades of different degrees of fineness. The finest materials become immediately available and are either used up by the plants or leached out of the soil: the coarser materials become more slowly available and thus last over a longer period. The very finely ground limestone, say that which will pass a 100 to 200-mesh sieve, costs more money at the quarry and does not last so long in the soil as that which is ground less fine.

Fact 15. The State Department of Agriculture will furnish ground limestone and high-grade marl to the farmers of North Carolina at the lowest possible cost. The materials will be furnished in car load lots only, and the ton price will depend on the location of the shipping point of the farmer.

Fact 16. Individuals who do not want as much as a car-load can club together and order a car-load shipped to one point.

Fact 17. Try to place your orders for ground limestone or marl at least six weeks before you want the material shipped.

Fact 18. It is generally better to order ground limestone and marl shipped in bulk because of the greatly reduced cost. For example, we will say a 30-ton car-load of ground limestone costs $45 at the quarry when purchased in bulk; $1.25 additional for bags and bagging will make this car-load cost just $37.50 more, or, in all, $82.50 in addition to the freight. Now, the farmer will haul only about a ton at a load from his station to the farm, and he generally has on hand enough bags to hold sufficient ground limestone for one good load. He can, it is evident, use his own bags and do his own bagging at the car at little or no extra cost and save the $37.50 on the car-load.

Fact 19. Cash must accompany all orders to the Commissioner of Agriculture for ground limestone or marl. The ton price, "laid down at your station," will be given on application to the Commissioner of Agriculture as soon as it can be worked out.

Fact 20. During the session of the Legislature of 1915, Hon. W. A. Bowman, Representative from Guilford county, introduced what is known as the "Bowman Lime Bill," which directs and empowers the Commissioner of Agriculture to furnish ground limestone and marl to the farmers of North Carolina at the lowest possible cost. The act is appended hereto.
