

More Pastures Planted In Alamance County

One farmer out of every three in Alamance county gave orders for seed to be planted to some kind of pasture in the campaign conducted in that county this spring.

"In all, 1211 landowners took part in the pasture campaign by ordering grass mixtures, lespedeza, sweet clover or alfalfa and a total of 2,558 acres of new pastures were seeded or old pastures revived," says W. Keerr Scott, county farm agent. "We ordered 2,810 pounds of alfalfa seed, 20,762 pounds of grass mixture seed, 25,388 pounds of lespedeza and 2,000 pounds of sweet clover. Some of the lespedeza was planted on rye for grazing; some was used for retouching old pastures and some was used for straight soil improvement, but all of it will be grazed by our dairy cows to some extent."

Mr. Scott says that he had the best of co-operation from every one. He used the services of the extension dairy-men and pasture specialist at State College and held 34 different meetings in the interest of the movement. Those farmers taking part in the campaign last year were his most enthusiastic supporters. Some of them said it was the best thing that had happened in the county in the past ten years. The local banks also assisted. Not only did they help to finance the work but they also mailed out informational matter with their bank statements. The Mebane Kiwanis Club tendered a free dinner on the day that the seed were delivered.

Mr. Scott says also that the grasses and clover seeds were well put in. A liberal amount of fertilizer was used and more than 260 tons of ground limestone used on the seed bed. The movement received the hearty support of the county board of agriculture and of the vocational teachers in the high schools of the county.
