

LITTLE STORIES OF HUMAN INTEREST

PERSONAL PENCILINGS ABOUT PEOPLE YOU KNOW

S. W. Vaughn, of Petersburg, Va., has accepted a position with the Gold Leaf as advertising manager, and will move with Mrs. Vaughn to the Twin City.

Lee Martin, of Madison, was in Winston-Salem Tuesday. Mr. Martin is a Stokes boy who has made money in the fertilizer game, but for reasons which are best known to himself, he will quit fertilizer. Probably on account of "tobacco hazard" which is a disease of malignant type.

R. R. King was a visitor in Winston-Salem Tuesday.

Mrs. N. E. Pepper spent Wednesday night in Winston-Salem the guest of Rev. T. F. Haney and family, and attending the Gipsy Smith meetings.

Miss Ola Campbell has recovered from a recent operation for mastoiditis.

J. C. Carson, Stokes county's superintendent of schools, was here Monday.

Paul T. Taylor, of Winston-Salem, was a visitor with home folks here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Rex Stuart, of Winston-Salem, spent Sunday here with relatives.

H. A. Fulp, of Germanton, was among the crowd here Monday. Mr. Fulp, while a staunch and stalwart Republican is not strong on Hoover. Too much trouble under Hoover's reign—too much trouble.

Rex Gas is at the head of the Twin City "back to the farm movement," and is busy placing Winston-Salem unemployed families, white & Salem unemployed families, white and colored, on farms in adjoining counties. From half a dozen to a dozen locations are filled by Mr. Gas every week.

The Hon. Bob Reynolds made a hit at Danbury. He is frankly wet in his position, which indicates courage and honesty—qualities admired by the people, whether wet or dry. Reynolds says the only way to raise the gigantic taxation needed by the government is to lay embargoes on their drinks—now free.

John C. Wallace, prominent attorney of Winston-Salem, has announced his candidacy for the Senate in Forsyth, on the Democratic ticket.

A new law partnership in Winston-Salem is Wallace & Kirvin, offices Wachovia Bank building.

J. E. Pyrtle, of Leaksville, has recently qualified as administrator of the estate of Emma Pyrtle.

J. R. Beasley, of High Point, has qualified as administrator of the estate of Mary Beasley.

Miss Nell Joyce, who teaches in the Winston-Salem city schools, spent the week-end here with home folks, family of Mr. H. M. Joyce.

JUST ONE THING AFTER ANOTHER

By CARL GOERCH.
David Lesofsky is a prominent citizen, a prominent Democrat and a prominent business man of the town of Belhaven. He is not a prominent Irishman, nor is he a member of the Methodist church.

For a number of years Mr. Lesofsky ran a well-established mercantile business at Belhaven. Then the depression came along and folks quit buying merchandise, so David accommodated himself to the general trend of conditions and quit business.

However, a man has got to live. In looking about him for a new field of activity, Mr. Lesofsky decided that country produce would open an inviting field. Chickens, eggs, furs, and things like that. He bought himself a truck, armed himself with a price list and officially went into the country produce business.

A man who has sold dry goods and clothing practically all of his life is bound to make some mistakes in getting adjusted to the country produce game. That's exactly what happened to the Hon. David.

"Let me sell your furs," he advertised. "I pay highest prices."

Whenever an individual would bring in a fur, David would say:

"What kind of fur is it?"

The man with the fur would tell him. Dave would study his price list and make an appropriate price.

Two or three smart boys, hanging around his place of business observed Mr. Lesofsky's method of doing business and decided to profit by it. The next day they entered his place of business with three hides in their possession.

"We've got some fur, Mr. Lesofsky," they told him.

"What kind of fur?" he demanded.

"Mink," they told him.

Mr. Lesofsky regarded the pelts and then regarded his price list. He quoted the standard price on mink furs and the boys accepted it. They left in a hurry just as soon as they got their money.

After that the business in mink pelts picked up considerably. David received as many as eight and nine a day. He commented on the fact to a friend who happened to be in his store one day. The friend knows quite a bit about furs.

"Where do you keep them?" he inquired.

"Back there," indicated David. "Come on, I'll show you."

He went into the rear of his place of business and proudly displayed the large pile of skins. The friend picked one of them up and examined it casually. Then he looked at Dave.

"Do you know what those are?" he inquired.

"Sure," responded Dave. "They're minks."

"Minks—hell!" cried the other man. "They're just plain, ordinary, every-day house cats."

For a minute or two David thought his friend was joking. When he realized that the truth was being told, he almost had a conniption fit. Hastily doing some figuring, he estimated that he had paid out more than fourteen dollars for a bunch of pelts that weren't worth fourteen cents. Not only that, but it got noised around Belhaven that David was urging the boys to bring him the cat furs. People who had misused their pets during the last few weeks had a lot to say about it. They were mighty free in their comment, too.

"It ain't like the dry goods business," said David sadly the other day in telling about the experience. "But they're not gonna fool me any more. I'm taking lessons in furs, and from now on I'll know them. I wish I could get my hands on some of them boys, though. I'd break their darned necks."

Vegetables Varieties

The old reliable catalog of Wood's Seeds, this year is fairly sprouting with new varieties. There is the new Break O' Day Tomato, the latest development of Dr. Fritchard of the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture for which a wonderful future is predicted. And there is Wood's Sumptuous Peas—tender and more delicious than any blackeye—a large yield and easy to shell. Superba Cantaloupes—Earlgreen Cucumbers—Tendergreen All-Season Salad—are other varieties offered for the first time.

WOOD'S SEEDS

Tested, adapted seed of the "high quality" that made their reputation and at lower prices this year than for years. The best seeds are the cheapest seeds to plant. Write for catalog.

WAL NOW

Tom Gerry Caught

Walnut Cove, April 9. — Tom Gerry, Jr., of Walnut Cove, was placed under $500 bond today when Federal Prohibition Agent W. F. Kennedy and other officers arrested him at a still site near Walnut Cove. The officers were lying in wait watching a still place where a quantity of beer was about ready to "run" when Gerry came down to the place. Gerry claims that he only came to get a drink of the beer and that he knew nothing of the owners of the beer. His case will come up in the Federal court at Winston-Salem next term. U. S. Commissioner N. A. Martin, of Danbury, fixed the bond.

Trial Assault Case To Be Heard Saturday

Trial of the three Winston-Salem young men—Marvin Phillips, Buck Revis and Sam Belton—which was set for Monday night, was postponed until Saturday afternoon next at 3 o'clock. The charge against the men is assault on Henry Dunlap, former deputy sheriff at Walnut Cove. In the meantime the trio has failed to arrange bond and are in Stokes jail. Mrs. E. P. Pepper and Mrs. S. C. Sparger visited Winston-Salem Monday.

A New Reason For Peace

The following paragraph by J. E. Howie, quoted in The Progressive Farmer-Ruralist, places the argument for peace on a basis too often overlooked:—
"The coming generation of young men of every race should have their eyes opened to the ghastly deeds they must commit if involved in warfare, not only against their fellow men, but indirectly (and perhaps directly by bombing from the air) against the women and children whom the warrior is supposed to protect. No one would ever desire that young men should fear to be killed or injured in a great cause, but we may surely hope that the day is not far off when they will fear to kill and maim, and consequently wide movement for permanent peace."

Mrs. D. D. Smith, of Winston-Salem, is acting court stenographer

H. M. Joyce is recovering from a recent illness.
