

N. RAY LEWIS NOT DECEASED

REPORTS OF HIS DEATH GREATLY EXAGGERATED — STONEVILLE STANDS DEPRESSION, AND IS DOING BUSINESS AS USUAL.

Some weeks ago the Reporter, as well as other newspapers, carried the story of the death of Ray Lewis of Pilot Mountain. The news was of interest here as Ray Lewis had often visited Danbury, as a salesman out of Pilot Mountain.

What was the surprise and pleasure of Danbury people last week to see Mr. Lewis in town, sound and well. He took a pardonable pride in advising his friends, like Mark Twain, that the reports of his death were greatly exaggerated.

It appears there were two Ray Lewises. J. Ray Lewis, a son of J. P. Lewis, of Pilot Mt., died a few weeks ago, and was buried. N. Ray Lewis, the "Ray" that is known in Danbury, is not only not dead, but is very much alive, and is out looking for customers in his handle trade, his headquarters and factory for the manufacture of all kinds of wooden handles, being located at Stoneville. Mr. Lewis was formerly a traveling salesman from Pilot Mt., representing a grocery concern, and in that capacity he visited Danbury and became well known to the business men here. He left Pilot Mountain several months ago, locating at Stoneville, the place of his nativity, and there engaged in his present occupation.

Mr. Lewis, visiting business houses here Thursday, reported Stoneville in a healthy condition. This thriving town of Rockingham escaped the worst rigors of the depression, not being so hard hit as some other small towns. Two warehouses in Stoneville, now doing well, handle some 3,000,000 pounds of tobacco per season. There are numbers of prosperous stores, and other smaller industries, and a splendid thriving citizenship.

A Jones Jaunt

Dr. A. G. Jones and daughter Miss Namie, and son, Abe D., passed through Friday enroute home from a jaunt to the mountain—just a day off to visit old Piedmont, Moore's and other points of interest back in the hills.

A trio of a fine folk as there is in the world. Doctor with his nearly 50 summers, just think, nearly 50 years young, with eye as clear as ever, handshake as grippy, and faculties all functioning. Physician and surgeon of life experience and usefulness, ex-Confederate (one of the few left), and splendid citizen. Raised a troop of boys and girls, all successes. Now enjoying the shimmering days with his devoted children around him.

Abe is editor of the Greensboro Record, and one of the most forceful writers in the State, whose editorials are widely quoted.

Certified Irish potatoes in Haywood county produced at the rate of 240 bushels to the acre as compared with 160 bushels from ordinary home selected seed.

Cows on the farm of Bryant Wallin and Lester Price in Madison county returned a pasture rental of $3.50 to $4 a head per month after paying the cost of other feed and labor.

Keep a Few Bees As Farm Sideline

From the experiences of 52 good farmers who kept a few bees about their places last year, C. L. Sams, beekeeping specialist at State College, concludes that a few colonies of the insects kept in modern hives will pay almost any farmer in the State.

The reports from the 52 men living on farms in widely separated sections of the State show that they kept 812 colonies which produced 46,577 pounds of honey or an average of 57½ pounds to the colony. The value of this honey was 18 cents a pound thus netting $8,383.86 for the men reporting. The average income per farmer from the honey was $161.28 or $10.32 a colony. Since this supply of honey was picked up by the bees from nectar supplied by the flowers of farm crops and woodland blossoms, the income was clear profit except for a small investment in hives and labor.

Much of the honey was retailed at nearby stores or the curb market at a higher price than that reported while the larger part will be consumed in the farm home this winter.

But Mr. Sams got reports from 18 other men who kept 125 colonies in the old box hives. These 125 colonies produced only 1,525 pounds of honey with the average production per hive being only about twelve pounds each. The value of this honey was a little over 12 cents a pound or in other words, the 18 men reported an income of $1.55 a colony, as compared with the income of $10.32 from the colonies in the modern hives.

From these reports, Mr. Sams concludes that a few hives of bees around any farm home will pay their way and will supply a delicious sweet to add to the food menu of the family. However, it is nearly a waste of time to use the old box hives.

87 North Carolinians Marry in Martinsville

Martinsville, Va., Dec. 8.—A total of 109 marriage certificates were issued from Henry county clerk's office during November it was announced today. Ninety-two were whites and seventeen to negro pairs.

North Carolina couples led with 87, followed by Virginia parties with 21. Pennsylvania claimed one couple.

For the same period in 1931, 73 papers were issued. The November figure brought the 1932 total to 870.

Christmas and Prosperity.

Well, old man Santa is just around the corner, even if Prosperity occupies the same place. It is to be hoped that they will unite forces and appear at the same time.—Madison Messenger.

Because of low prices, Anson county growers withheld their turkeys from the Thanksgiving market and are conditioning them for the Christmas demand.

The 317 club members enrolled in the 4-H clubs of Catawba county produced $9,106.18 worth of products this season. The net labor return was $5,057.03.

STONEVILLE IS VISITED BY ROBBERS

SEVERAL OF THE TOWN'S ESTABLISHMENTS BURGLARIZED TUESDAY NIGHT OF LAST WEEK.

Stoneville, Dec. 7.—Robbers put in a full night's work in Stoneville last night.

Four of the town's establishments, a drug store, grocery store, filling station and hardware store were broken into during the night and merchandise and money of an undetermined amount stolen.

Breaking the lock on the rear door of the Rockingham Drug Store, the thieves entered the building and escaped with $10 in cash and about $25 worth of merchandise.

In the R. T. Stone grocery store, the yegmen cracked the safe and carried away $85 in cash.

Numerous articles, including guns, shells, knives and flashlights were stolen from the T. P. Poole Hardware Store, but the owners today were unable to make an estimate of the loss.

The fourth victim in the series of robberies was Roy Frye. The robbers broke into his filling station, rifled the cash drawer and made their escape. Mr. Frye was unable to say how much money was stolen.

Officers are investigating the crimes, which today furnished the outstanding topic for conversation in Stoneville, but so far as could be learned tonight they were without clues as to the identity of the robbers.

Little Theatre For Paris In Celebrated Latin Quarter

THE Little Theatre movement has spread to Paris. This distinctively American innovation has been introduced to Paris by Helena Rubinstein, who believes that the theatre is one of the world's basic channels of education and recreation. The New American Theatre, which will seat 350 people will encourage the beginning dramatist and those who, for one reason or another, have not yet made a commercial success. New and unusual plays will be produced with but little reference to their commercial value. If the play contains a real idea, if it provokes thought, then it will have a chance at the New American Theatre. Madame Rubinstein has already chosen a site for her new project, in the heart of the celebrated Latin Quarter in Paris. She sailed recently to hasten arrangements for the erection of the theatre itself.
