SOLICITOR JOHN R. JONES SAYS CHILDRESS GIRL WAS MURDERED - TO HOLD AUTOPSY.

North Wilkesboro, Jan. 8 - Solicitor John R. Jones today counted upon an autopsy and reports from handwriting experts to prove his contention that Leota Childress, 18-year-old girl found mysteriously shot to death, was murdered and did not commit suicide.

The body of the girl, the solicitor announced, would be exhumed Wednesday to trace the course of a .22 rifle bullet which ended her life more than a week ago. By that time, he said, he also expected to have reports from experts on specimens of her handwriting.

The solicitor also has sent specimens of the penmanship of Andrew Smoot, 27-year-old textile worker held in jail on a murder warrant sworn out by him, Smoot, who now lives in Schoolfield, Va., but who formerly resided near here, is described as the girl's erstwhile suitor.

The girl was found shot to death in the home of her foster parents Mr. and Mrs. Warwick Tilley. A weird note found in her apron pocket said robbers had entered the house and threatened her life, and that she had refused to tell them where her foster father's money was hidden.

Sheriff's officers had accepted a theory that the girl had killed her-self and written the note to make her death appear a murder when Solicitor Jones announced evidence indicated a suicide theory as "out of the question" and swore to a warrant for Smoot's arrests.

In advancing a theory of suicide, the sheriff's officers said they had been informed that the girl had been disappointed because Smoot, who is estranged from his wife, had not obtained a promised divorce by Christmas.

Smoot, questioned by officers, said he was asleep in his father's home near here at the time the Childress girl was killed.

RE-SALE OF VALUABLE REAL ESTATE.

Law, president of the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company. This does not include millions of dollars advanced as loans on policies.', 'Basing his statement on statistics compiled by the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, Mr. Law pointed out that the life companies paid $2,175,000,000 in matured endowments, annuities, surrender values, dividends and interest to living policyholders, the largest amount of any year in their history. This sum compares with $2,156,000,000 in 1932 and is nearly twice as much as was paid policyholders in 1929. Payments to widows, orphans and other beneficiaries of policyholders amounted to $925,000,000. "In making this immense distribution of money," Mr. Law said, "the life insurance companies placed in the mail checks for an average of about $10,000,000 a day throughout the year. If we were to include loans to policyholders, the daily average of payments would be still larger.', "Two things enabled the institution of life insurance to make these unprecedented payments and at the same time increase their assets by more than a third of a billion dollars.', "One of them is sound management. In the interest of safety, the companies intentionally underestimate their earnings and overestimate the amounts they will be called upon to pay in death benefits. That leaves a margin of safety to meet unusual demands such as those of 1933.', "The other is the very nature of life insurance. The constant flow of premiums as well as receipts from investments is sufficient to permit these gigantic payments without forcing the sale of securities. Not only that, but, even in 1933, the companies were able to add a third of a billion dollars to their assets which now total more than $21,000,000,000."
