PRACTICAL FARM ASSISTANCE GIVEN

REHABILITATION PROGRAM UNDER RELIEF ADMINISTRATOR MRS. MINNIE G. DOYLE, ASSUMING MATERIAL SHAPE — MANY FAMILIES BEING PLACED.

In an interview today with Mrs. Minnie G. Doyle, administrator of federal relief and chief director of Red Cross agencies in this section, it is learned that the new rehabilitation program, succeeding CWA activities, is assuming practical and material shape in the county.

More than 80 families, through Mrs. Doyle's assistance and under her direction, are entering into contracts with their landlords whereby these people may soon be placed in a position to become self-sustaining.

These tenants first receive a clean sheet from their landlords as to former or present obligations, thus being enabled to start their garden work and raise their home supplies.

The rehabilitation program will be under the direct supervision of Farm Foreman K. R. Eyerly. The county will be divided into four zones or sections, and each zone will have a sub-foreman as follows: N. E. Wall, Paul Lewis, Robert Sisk and Dan Heath.

Already six families who were homeless have been placed, and have begun their farm work. Mrs. Doyle advises that six mules have been placed, that 8 more are in Winston-Salem ready to be brought over and that eleven more are expected in a few days. Requisition was made for 25 mules. Twenty-eight cows and 60 pigs are also listed among the equipment in the farm relief program. Mrs. Doyle says that her administration is vitally interested in the problem of stamping out the pellagra situation in the county, and that a strong effort will be made to provide milk for the indigent families.

J. E. There, it is learned has offered a farm at Pine Hall rent free, which the RA has accepted and which will be used as an experimental farm.

The administration has in hand ample supplies of seed which will be furnished by the farm supervisors only to those who are on the relief rolls, and the gardens must be prepared and the seed beds ready before the seed will be supplied.

A. R. PHILLIPS

STANDS ON HIS RECORD.

Will the rank and file of Stokes county citizens nominate the man who gave them his best?

He fought the sales tax and will fight it again.

He made every effort to know what his county wanted and then reflected in the House of Representatives by his vote the wishes of the people. He would do this honestly again.

He helped defeat a proposed measure that would have destroyed every high school in the county with less than 100 enrolled pupils; but by amending that proposed measure a given community may operate a high school with an average of 60 pupils.

He fought for the reduction of taxes on farms and homes, and will never agree for the State to tax the already overburdened farms and homes in order to run schools. That, under our North Carolina constitution, is a State function, and schools should not be compelled to depend on local support. Uniformity of the road system was impossible under local support, and in the same way, uniformity of schools depends on State support. Good roads and good schools must have State aid.

It is not fair for the children in a tobacco producing county to be cut back to a three-months school, when the children in a tobacco manufacturing county have the advantage of a nine-months school.

He advocated a 5-dollar flat rate on automobiles out of justice to the man who uses his car possibly once a week. He stands for some positive control by the State over reckless drivers.

He offers his services to the county, and whether given the nomination or not his every effort shall be for a better condition for every home in the bounds of Stokes county.
