Stokes Prenatal and Well Baby Clinic

The monthly Prenatal Well Baby Clinic will be held in Walnut Cove, on Thursday, December 30, from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m., in the office formerly occupied by Dr. Hackler. Dr. G. F. Reeves, of Walnut Cove will be in charge of the clinic, assisted by the local public health nurse.

Expectant mothers, both white and colored, that have not visited their own private physician are invited to attend this clinic. The people in charge of the clinic are endeavoring to reach the group of mothers that never consult a doctor during the prenatal period and to teach them the importance of prenatal care. They are also anxious that all babies and pre-school children that have not been protected against diphtheria, receive this protection either by going to their own physician or by bringing their children to this clinic.

Facts About Diphtheria in North Carolina

Diphtheria is principally a disease of childhood. Approximately seventy per cent of the cases occur in children under four. Ninety per cent of the deaths are children under five years of age. It is always a serious disease.

Last year there were more than 10,000 deaths in the United States from diphtheria. Knowing that such a large number of children under six years are susceptible to diphtheria and that ninety per cent of the deaths are in the same group, we can truly say that the time of greatest danger is from six months to six years.

In spite of the fact that an effective remedy for the prevention of this disease has been standardized for fourteen years, too many children die in North Carolina each year from the malady. Prevention is much easier than to cure.

What's New in Radio?

TWO-WAY, short wave radios installed in police department automobiles, and a portable, two-way station set up on the roof of a building at Fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, proved valuable aids to the New York police in handling the enormous crowd, estimated at 3,000,000 persons, that gathered to view the recent American Legion parade. Radio communication enabled police officials to shift their men from point to point along the route of the parade, with a minimum of delay and confusion.

Miles of pipe line laid down in Oklahoma and Texas during the oil boom days, and long since forgotten, are being unearthed and sold for salvage with the aid of a radio detector which reveals the location of the lost lines. The detector makes it possible to follow the route of any pipe with a diameter of one-eighth inch or larger, even though it runs through a maze of other lines.

An armored, radio-controlled motor boat, recently completed for the British air force, provides a fast-moving, elusive target for bombing and machine gun practice. The British Royal Corps of Signals has recently tested, with satisfactory results, a field radio transmitting and receiving set that operates while strapped to a soldier's back.

"Dear Santa Claus, Please Bring Me—"

Wouldn't it be swell to wake from the long night to see standing out there, its spires bathed in the roselight of the Christmas dawn—the castle of your dreams—

To hear its gleaming halls ringing with the minstrelsy of the olden days—

And its brilliantly lighted chambers echoing with the voices and the laughter of friends long loved and lost—

And the voices proclaiming the gold and the wealth of all the ages undreamed and unmeasured by poet's fancy or historian's imagination?

No, but imparting the gold of wisdom and knowledge and the priceless jewels of judgment and righteousness, of sympathy and friendship, of tolerance, faith and the peace that passeth understanding—

Of wisdom and knowledge, that you may know the tinsel and the sham and the folly of the glory and the eclat of life—

Of tolerance, that you may consider the viewpoint of others, and be fair in your appraisals of the worth and the motives of your fellow man—

Of understanding that you may be just in your estimates of human aspirations and efforts, and life's heartbreaking problems—

Of sympathy and justice that you may not fatten on the misfortunes of other men—

Of a sense of values that you may be able to smile, or to give unstinted and sincerely of your tears—

Of faith that you may ever strive upward and onward to that ideal exemplified by the Giver of every good and perfect gift.

Saving the Country?

The senior senator from North Carolina, Hon. Josiah W. Bailey, has recently delivered himself of a very interesting baby, which he has named "An Address to the People of the United States."

The birthplace of this distinguished offspring was naturally circumvented with considerable secrecy, possibly not so much from the fear of kidnaping as from the Senator's political modesty.

But the newspaper guys—always on the alert for scoops—have let it out that it arrived not in a manger but in the palatial home of Senator Peter Gerry, one of the most affluent citizens of Rhode Island, and that among the wise men who were present at this notable nativity were Senator Bailey, Senator Arthur Vandenburg, slated as a 1940 Republican presidential possibility; Senator John Townsend, a Delaware Republican of parts; and Senator Harry Byrd of Virginia, wet nurse.

There were other Republicans and Democrats present, all critics and blockers of the New Deal, and members or affiliates of the Liberty League.

The absence of Drs. Landon and Hoover was doubtless due to the fact that neither of these physicians can bear the presence of the other.

Senator Bailey's baby, if we may believe the Senator's own admission, is gifted with 10 very fine "points," each of which in a general way is a present cure for the country, now rushing "to hell under Roosevelt."

The Senator's contribution to the country's salvation—called now a manifesto—is passing brilliant and illuminating in its healing clauses, yet everybody is wondering why the Senator at this historical, psychological moment, did not seize the opportunity to suggest several other panaceas which he so grotesquely omitted. For instance:

There was nothing in the formulae suggesting a repeal of deposit insurance, a Roosevelt ruse to save the people's money. Before it, 10,000 banks failed, since, practically none.

No Boys To CCC Camp NO XMAS LIQUOR IN PROSPECT

Information received from

Fourth Corps Area Army Headquarters, Atlanta, Ga., is to the effect that North Carolina will only be allowed a quota of 200 white Juniors and that there is a limit of not more than two (2) assembly points for enrolling. In the light of the facts mentioned above, it is not deemed advisable to allot Stokes county a quota for C. C. C. enrollment in January. It is hoped that the requisition for CCC applicants for enrollment in April will be large enough to justify a substantial quota for this county.

STOKES AND FORSYTH OFFICERS CATCH RUM RUNNERS—SEVERAL BIG HAULS THIS WEEK MAKE IT LOOK DRY FOR BOOZERS.

Jim Coman and the Stokes deputy sheriffs are creating a dry Christmas for Stokes bootleggers. Several hundred gallons of bootlegged liquor, transported in high powered automobiles, and bound for High Point, Winston-Salem or other points, have been intercepted and captured during the last few days.

Saturday morning, December 18, Jim Coman, State patrolman, with headquarters in Winston-Salem, co-operating with Everett Wagner, Stokes county deputy sheriff, caught a '37 Ford coach and two men with a large quantity of whiskey on the Walnut Cove highway. Paul Morris and one Griffin, drivers, were arrested and placed under $1,000 bond each for court. The men were from High Point.

Early Tuesday morning a Lincoln sedan, loaded with 8 cases of bottled-in-bond was captured near the Stokes-Forsyth line. A man and a woman were in the car, but escaped.

A 1936 Ford coach with 130 gallons were caught about midnight near the Virginia line in Stokes by Deputy Sheriffs Wagner and Smith. Albert Long and Libben Shipton of High Point were arrested with the car which had on board 130 gallons. Bonds were arranged.

The Christmas Cantata At Walnut Cove A Brilliant Success

"The Adoration," a Christmas Cantata, rendered at the Baptist church in Walnut Cove Sunday evening last, was a marked success. Miss Ruth Patterson, of the county welfare organization, who managed the affair, with her assistants on the program, is the recipient of many congratulations for her able and brilliant direction of one of the best entertainments ever given in Walnut Cove.

Miss Luna Taylor has come home for the holiday. She is a teacher at Pine Hall.

Or to revoke the Roosevelt scheme to save millions of American homes from the hammer.

Nor to cancel the Roosevelt legislation since 1932 assuring agriculture and labor of their rights to participate in the wealth themselves produce.

Nor to stop the bread and the work given to millions of despairing and hopeless unemployed.

Or to repeal the Social Security acts which are furnishing hope and succor to the aged and the blind and the crippled.

When the Senator with Brandenburg and Townsend and Byrd were demanding a "revision of the tax structure," did they mean a threat of "hands off the capital gains of the predatory rich and hands again on the pockets of the poor man?"
