

J. W. Young, Stokes Man, Dies At Home In Winston-Salem

John Wesley Young, aged 59, widely known local tobacco warehouseman, died at his home in Winston-Salem Sunday, after an illness of only a few minutes.

Born in Stokes county on October 7, 1888, he had been engaged in the tobacco business for approximately 30 years. He was connected for a number of years with Brown's Warehouse, of which he had been operator for the past two years.

He was a son of Thomas D. and Laura Bondurant Young and spent his early life in Stokes county, but had made his home in Winston-Salem for the past 22 years. He was a member of Rosebud Christian Church.

On March 5, 1905, he was married to Miss Lemmie Young, who survives. Other survivors include three daughters, Mrs. J. M. Miller of Portsmouth, Va., Mrs. J. A. Wallace, Jr., and Mrs. H. E. Welch, both of Charlotte; one son, M. C., of Winston-Salem; seven grandchildren; four brothers, E. W. Young of Winston-Salem, Albert and Frank Young of Walnut Cove, and Charlie Young of Rural Hall; three sisters, Mrs. Mary Coleman, Mrs. Albert Miller and Mrs. Ersie Coleman, all of Walnut Cove.

Funeral services were conducted at the home at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and at Peniel Holiness Church in Stokes county at 2:30, Rev. Kenneth Dansler, Rev. C. A. Stroud and Rev. C. D. Burchell officiating. Burial

Statement By Supt. Of Schools J. C. Carson

The Second War Loan campaign which opened April 12, is receiving the cooperation of our entire school department. Whether it be supervisor, teacher or pupil, there is a job for everyone in this great patriotic undertaking. The Government is offering various types of securities for all our citizens, young and old.

The school child's pennies, saved from his/her allowances or earnings, and the school executive's salary should march in step in this new parade of dollars toward the fighting fronts.

The Treasury Department has chosen a fitting slogan, "They Give Their Lives. You Lend Your Money." Nearly every family in our community has a son, relative or close friend in uniform. The day is not far distant when every family will be represented on an actual battle line. All this is reflected in our classrooms.

Through the Schools at War program which the Treasury Department inaugurated last September we are engaging in a campaign to buy enough War Bonds to pay for one or more jeeps in every one of our schools. During the Second War Loan drive we have the opportunity to step up our war savings.

In our schools we can help create the victory atmosphere so necessary for the success of any war in Rosebud Christian Church cemetery.

Examination Of Naval Aviation Cadets

A Special Selection Board, from the main office in Atlanta, will examine applicants for Naval Aviation Training in Winston-Salem, at the Navy Recruiting Office, in the Post Office Building, Friday, April 30, and Saturday, May 1. Hours of examination will be ten, one, and three o'clock each day.

Applicants need only two qualifications: first, they must be seventeen years of age; second, they must be in the upper scholastic half of the senior class in high school. All young men, having these qualifications, who desire to enter aviation training, are urged to take this opportunity for an examination. The examining board will not be in Winston-Salem again for some time to come, if at all.

of our war efforts. Our teachers will combine to bring into the homes of this community the story of the need for more lending for our current income and savings to the government to finance the war.

While the national goal of this April campaign is 13 billion dollars it is an attainable figure in a country in which national earnings and bank deposits are at record totals. We all know that even our school children are wage earners for all-school work. We are asked by the Government to lend part of our income and savings at good interest. The only sacrifice we are asked to make is to give up something now, something we can get later when peace returns.

The Second War Loan drive is a lesson in democracy. A significant holiday comes in the midst of this campaign, Patriots' Day. This day, April 19, is hallowed because it commemorates one of our first great democratic lessons. On April 19 in 1775 the minute men learned that by democratic, free action they could resist domination and set out on a path toward liberty. On April 19, this year, we in the schools mark the anniversary by democratic, free action in lending our money for the preservation of that dearly-bought liberty.

The schools of our community are ready for the Second War Loan drive. When the final results are in, I am sure we will have ample reason to feel proud of our contribution.

From Dream To Deed By Rufus T. Strohm Dean, International Correspondence Schools

"HORATIO ALGER is not dead in America and never will be," says Vice-President Wallace. Horatio Alger's books made his name a symbol for the career of the poor youth who achieved success. They are based on that freedom of opportunity for self-betterment which has always been an American ideal.

Rufus T. Strohm the Horatio Alger type of ambition. It is fortunate for America that that time has passed. We are whipped by the terrible necessities of a life-and-death struggle to meet the gigantic problems created by the war. For the equally great tasks and the unprecedented opportunities that will come with peace, we must rely on the force of individual initiative that springs from ambition.

But the heroes of "Bound to Rise" and "Struggling Upward" were more than lucky dreamers. The books were written during the time when America's great industries were being built, when everybody knew personally men who had risen "from rags to riches." The Horatio Alger lads, like the living men from whom they were drawn, made good because they were able to seize opportunity when it came.

We live today in a mechanized, scientific world where ambition without technical training is no more than wishful thinking. No man today can hope for a better job or a more responsible position until he has developed the specialized ability needed to handle it. To make our greatest contribution to the war effort—either in production or in combat service—and to give reality to the possibilities that lie before us in peace, we must have knowledge and skill that come only from study and training.

With that equipment, however, men and women of our traditional American ambition will create a better world for all people through the power of their own initiative.

V-5 Program Examiners To Be In Winston-Salem

A complete seven-man Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board will be in Winston-Salem on Friday and Saturday, April 30 and May 1, to give both physical and mental examinations to boys 17 years old from Northwest North Carolina who wish to enlist in the Navy V-5 program.

This is the first appearance of the Selection Board in this section, and Mebane Turner, co-chairman of the State Naval Aviation Cadet Selection Board, who announced plans, urged all 17-year-old boys throughout this area to visit the board while it is here if they are interested and believe themselves qualified for acceptance.

To be eligible, boys must be at least 17 years old, but not yet 18, and the only credential necessary in their appearance before the selection board here is a letter from the high school principal attesting that the bearer is a senior and ranks in the upper 50 per cent. of the male portion of his class.

Complete mental and preliminary physical tests will be given in Winston-Salem. Those passing these examination must then return home and secure a letter giving the consent of their parents, a birth certificate, and three letters of recommendation. They will then be sent to Atlanta, Ga., for final physical examinations and special aviation tests.

Turner said that the tests will be given and that they will be so complete that comparatively few of those who pass here may be expected to fail on the finals in Atlanta. Previously, it has been necessary for boys to go to Atlanta for these tests.

Boys enrolled in the V-5 program receive 18 months' minimum training—training which costs the government approximately $30,000 per cadet.

The mobile selection board will have headquarters at the Winston-Salem Recruiting Station in the Postoffice Building, and will be open from about 8:00 a.m. until 6:00 p.m., both Friday and Saturday. Turner pointed out that with seven Naval Officers available, the board should be able to handle a large number of applicants so that long delays would be unnecessary.

The board will later visit Charlotte, Raleigh and some far-eastern city, Turner said, but since it's Winston-Salem stay will be the only one in this section of the State. All the boys from this section who are interested should take the opportunity to appear while a minimum of traveling is necessary.

Although boys appearing before the board while it is here will not be required to bring written permission of their parents with them, their parent's consent will be necessary before they will be allowed to go to Atlanta for final tests and acceptance.

Lawson-Cook

The marriage of interest to many people is that of Miss Doris Cooke and Staff Sergeant Wade H. Lawson. The marriage was solemnized at Lancaster, S. C., on April 3, at 3:00 p.m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. R. A. Cooke and the late R. A. Cooke of Charlotte, formerly of Monroe. Sergeant Lawson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Lawson of Lawsonville, N. C. He is now stationed at Camp Sutton, Monroe, N. C., with the Medical Corp.

The young couple will make their home at 510 Stafford St., Monroe, N. C.

In 1943, it is estimated there will be only five-eighths as many tires, including recaps, available for autos as the normal demand for new tires.

Excellent cork is now procurable from Douglas fir bark, with an annual potential supply of 200,000 tons a year.

To Hasten Victory No American wants this war to go one minute beyond the time we can bring it to a victorious end. To hasten that victory—to save possibly the lives of millions of our boys on our far flung fronts—it is imperative that every American do his part in the Second War Loan. There is an investment to fit every purse. The most you can do is little enough compared with the sacrifice offered by our boys in service. They give their lives—you lend your money.
