Morale is a Lot of little things

You hear a lot of talk about morale these days . . . but have you found many people who knew exactly what "morale" was?

Well, I was thumbing through my scrap book the other day, and I came on this verse I'd like to pass on to you . . .

It's the lift you get from a friendly smile . . .
A brand new hat in a dandy style . . .
A letter from home that the postman brings . . .
Morale is a lot of little things.

Isn't it so? Morale is just a lot of little things. A flower in your button hole, a word of greeting, an occasional refreshing glass of beer with friends.

From where I sit, if we take care to preserve these little friendly things that boost morale, we'll be doing a lot to help our country in its time of crisis.

And we'll boost morale among our soldiers at the front, too. Because it's these "important little things" that they look forward to returning to.

Not afraid to go upstairs to bed by himself—not afraid of the dark—not afraid of anything because Daddy is there and Daddy will take care of everything.

A grand little fellow—today busy with his toys and play—tomorrow a man doing a man's work in the bright new world of tomorrow.

But there is something that little chap doesn't know yet, but Dad has found it out. That is that Dad is committed to stay home and go to work and be industrious and not play when he wants to play and have all kinds of fun when he wants to have fun, because Dad has a family to look after and responsibility which will be theirs tomorrow.
