Ability and Responsibility

WHEN a particularly tough and important job comes along, it usually lands in the lap of someone who is already doing a lot of other jobs well.

People like this—who are used to getting results—are not too plentiful. They need to have both ability and a sense of responsibility. One alone won't do—for ability can sometimes be misdirected, and a sense of responsibility without ability can lead to troublesome meddling.

It's men with this combination of talents who have been carrying a heavy load on the home front these past few years. On the farm and in industry they've been meeting—and solving—the difficult wartime problems of production.

After the war is won, somebody must shoulder the equally big job of getting this nation back into peacetime production, of laying the groundwork for the better and more prosperous America we all want. This is a challenge, and an opportunity, for the producers of America—for the men and women who have a sense of responsibility and have shown their ability to get things done. Servicemen's Parents -

The Reporter now has on its mailing lists the names and addresses of several hundred of your sons who are in the service here in the States and in action overseas. These boys are and have been receiving the Reporter as regularly as mail service to them permits.

We want to call your attention to the fact that some of these subscriptions expire with every month, and in turn are taken from the mailing list.

Many of the boys overseas, and in the camp have subscribed themselves, and others receive the paper as a gift of their parents or a friend. In either case the boy has little time to care for such things. That should be attended to at home by those interested in his comfort.

It is the parents of these boys who should attend to the matter of whether or not the paper continues to reach him.

For the man in England, New Guinea, Alaska, one copy of the Reporter is to him worth the whole price of subscription. We suggest you let this weekly news reach him uninterruptedly.

If your son or relative is receiving the Reporter, see to it that he continues to have what he wants most—news of home—by keeping his subscription paid in advance.

Remember—newspaper cannot be sent overseas unless it is a paid-in-advance subscription.
