State Library

VOL. I. NO. 34.

GOLDSBORO, N. C., THURSDAY, APRIL 26, 1888.

Subscription, $1.00 Per Year.

Ab, me! what battles I have fought! I would I knew the rune that lays The swarming shades of weary days, That take the lonely house of thought! A restless rabble unsubdued; A wild and haggard multidude; Distorted shapes that spring from tears, And terments born of wedded fears.

Sometimes amid the changing rout, A cambowed figure clides about And from her brightness, like the day, The whimpling shadows slink away.

I know that lyre of seven strings, The seven colors of her wings; The seven blossoms of her crown-There violets twine for amethyst; small lilies white as silkweed down, These myrtle sprays her locks have kissed And pausies that are beryl-blue, And varied roses rich of bue, With indescent dewy eyes or buds that bloom in Paradiso, some often, thou eternal child! Now string thy lyre and sing to me. Thy voice cestatic, fresh and wild, Enthralls each dark-browed fantasy, Perend the walls she bids me peer

To see a future dim and dear; Sweet faces shrning through the mist Like children waiting to be kissed. A lovely land that knows not pain, Arlantis land Leyond life's main, Where we who love may love again; Alternet is this beyond the plan Of God's beneficence to man? DANSKE DANDRIEGE.

plenty of wild po-nies on the western plains, but in the days of which I write there were herds of good, big horses, some of them stand-ing seventeen hands high and weighing 1,300 or 1,400 pounds. I went into New Mexico with a Government surveying party, which was of semi-military charncier. A survey of that portion of the Rio Pecos lying in New Mexico was to be made, and there was to be a military post located between Pope's Wells and the Benita River. The country between was a plain 100 miles long by 200 broad, with many small streams and rich feed-ing spots. The herds of horses had been seldom disturbed by white hunters, and whenever the Indians wanted a supply they selected the ponics in preference, believing that they were the soonest broken and would stand the hardest rid-saw any horses, and the first herd we saw came very near bringing about a calamity. We were encamped in a bend of the Pecos, and the surveyors and guards had just come in for dinner. There was a truce between the whites and the We were well into the plains before we went out without protection. A truce and limb, and was going at such a pace for the moment that he is man's slave, and he will do his very best to throw off he yoke of servitude and join the herd. It was well we were all together. Every man rushed for the horses, yelling and houting to drive the intruders away, and a horse went with them. The horse was a five year-old stallion, worth at $500, and his flight created stant dismay in the camp. The mules would not be allowed to "chum" with The herd had gone due west, in which direction a rise of ground hid them after a short run As we reached this rise every man of us checked his horse. Below us was an almost circular valley about half a mile across, and in this val ey the herd had come to a halt. It seemed that the presence of our horse had aroused the ire of the sorrel leader of the herd, and that the question of championship had come up to be settled us and the bend, and were already skirmishing. Every one of the horses had gave us no attention. Now occurred a combat the like of which few men have ever witnessed. The horses were pretty evenly matched for size. Our champion had an advan-tage in being shod, but to offset this the sorrel was quicker. Their move-ments showed the broad disparity between wild and domestic life. horse was agile and smart, as the terms go, but the sorrel had the suppleness of a panther. As boxers feint for an kick. The iron shoes of our horse hit nothing but air, but we heard the double thud of the sorrel's hind feet as he sent them home. They ran off to there. Outside of the bunch of animals take a brother to be?

his head toward the pair, and was an inten sted spectator. At any other time our presence would have put them to flight, but under the circumstances they wheel and come together again and repeat the same tactics, and again our horse got the worst of it. He was a headstrong, high strung beast, and his temper was now up. When he wheeled the third time he came back with a rush, turned end for end like a flash to use his heels, but our champion dodged the kicks and seized him by the shoulder with his teeth. There was a terrific struggle before the hold was broken, and then there has believed in Every hoof hit something solid, but the iron shoes of our horse scored a point in his favor. When they separ-ated we could see that the sorrel had been badly used, especially about the

When the horses wheeled for the third N 1851, when I saw the Rio Pecos River, which is the right-hand branch the Rio Fecos Rivers or, which is the right-hand branch of the Rio Grande, the Pecos plains were a favorite grazing ground for vast herds of wild horses. For years later there were plenty of wild poplains, but in the tet there were herds, some of them stands high and weighing ds. I went into New Mexico was to was to be a military charaft that portion of the New Mexico was to was to be a military or provided with their hind feet. Some hard blows were exchanged, and our horse had the best of the round. Indeed, when the sorrel wheeled and ran away he had his head down and he seemed to acknowledge defeat. He ran off about twenty rods before wheeling, and as he stood for a moment I looked at him through a field glass which one of the men handed non his lips. He had been severly handled, but was by no means defeated. Indeed, he had run away for the moment to adopt new tactics. When he moved up again he was the picture of ferority. He came at full speed, reared, and struck right and left, and the second blow knocked our horse flat on the ground. It was a knock out blow. The victor It was a knock out blow. The victor stood over him for a moment, watching for a movement, but as none was made he joined the herd, and all went off at a gallop. It was five minutes before our horse staggered to his feet, and he wanted no more fighting. He had three bad bites on the shoulders, and his legs were skinned in a dozen places, and it was a week before he got his spirit back.

Two or three times during the next had just come in for dinner. There was a truce between the whites and the and dangerous. He had known of their Indians of that date, but our party was a strong one, and the surveyors never presence of a large party like ours would ent out without protection. A truce of course frighten them off. Two days cant that the redskins would not kill after this explanation we were strung if the other party was the stronger. We had two ambulances, three or four wagons, and from seventy to eighty horses. These last were staked out on the rich feeding ground. With no more the rich feeding ground. With no more minutes later the article supposed to be warning than that we felt a trembling of lost was found in one of the ambulances, the earth and heard a great clatter, a the earth and heard a great clatter, a three of wild horses numbering at the five hundred came charging around a heavily wooded point directly at our camp. The stream in front of the stream in one of the ambulances, and I was sound in one of the ambulances, and I was sent back to notify the trooper. He had galloped back to camp, a distance of two miles, and I was sent back to notify the trooper. He had galloped back to camp, a distance of two miles, and I was sent back to notify the trooper. He had galloped back to camp, a distance of two miles, and was searching around on foot when I arrived in sight. our camp was about was two feet deep attention, when from the cottonwood attention are a superior at the cottonwood attention at the cottonwood attention are a superior at the cottonwood attention at the cotton at the cott and ran over a bed of gravel, and the borses were probably in the habit of charging out. He was a "rogue," and horses were probably in the habit of coming here to drink. The herd was led by a sorrel stallion of magnificent look by a sorrel stallion of magnificent look was grazing, and the soldier had his was grazing, and the soldier had his was grazing, and I was so astoneyes on the ground, and I was so astonthat the leaders were among our animals before a man of us moved. Nothing will rattle a domestic horse like the near presence of his wild brother. A stampede of buffalos simply terrifies him, and in his terror he will act like a fool. The wild horse excites and makes him forget dragged him twenty rods before flinging him to one side. Then he started for the cavalry horse, which stood with head up facing him, and I got out my revolver and spurred forward.

I was yet a quarter of a mile away when the rogue reached his second victim. He ran at full speed, with his ears back and lips parted to show his teeth, and the sight was too much for the domestic animal. He was on the point of up after they had tried their legs a little, but the horse might never be seen again. A score of us were and over and over few and rolled over and over few. be seen again. A score of us mounted times before he brought up, while the rogue took a half circle to bear down upon the trooper again. The man was on his feet and limping off; but he would have been a goner had I been further away. I rode across the rogue's path and opened fire on him, and after shaking his head in an ugly way he galloped into the grove and disappeared. The trooper's horse did not seem to have suffered any by the shock, but soon after noon lay down and died. The man championship had come up to be settled | was actually crying when I rode up to at once. The two stallions were between | him, although he had taken a hand in several Indian fights and was reputed a brave fellow. The danger had come up-on him so suddenly as to overcome his nerves. The horse's teeth had not bro-ken the skin through his thick clothing, and he d d not have a bruise to show, but such was the sudden shock that he was on the sick list for two weeks. We were within two days ride on the Bonita, and had been in camp two or three days, when one of the hunters rode in just before dark with some game and announced that a herd of at least 1,500 wild horses were grazing about three miles to the east of us. This was on the opposite side of the Pecos, which just here spread out over a rocky ledge, was 200 feet wide and about a foot deep opening, so these horses skirmished for Below our camp was an old grove with erine II. an advantage. They approached until many dead trees in it. It was there we their noses almost met, and then reared up with shrill neighs, struck at each other, and came down to wheel and their, and came down to wheel and twelve tents in camp, aside from the wagwas a guard of two soldiers, and two more were between the animals and the more were between the animals and the wagons. There was no danger apprehended from the Indians, and the guard was set to keep prowling wolves out of camp and to assist any horse which might get tangled in his lariat. It had been a hot day, with "thunder heads" showing in the sky, but when the sun went down the sky was perfectly clear and all signs pointed to a quiet night.

It was just midnight when the sharp-

It was just midnight when the sharp-est flash of lightning I ever saw, followed by such a crash of thunder as made the carth groan, tumbled every eleeper in camp out of his blankets. I say the sharpest flash I ever saw, for I was awake in time to see most of it. It was so fierce that it seemed to burn our eyelids. I was hardly on my feet before there came another flash, followed by another roar. I knew it was going to rain great guns, and I jumped into trousers and boots, and grabbed up the rest of my clothes and made for a wagon only a few feet away. The two wagons were close to each other, but the forward ends pulled away from each other so that the vehicles formed a V. While the space between the off hind wheel of one and the nigh hind wheel of the other was not over a foot, the space between the tongues was six or eight feet. The sky was black as I rushed out of the tent, was black as I rushed out of the tent, and all the camp fires had burned low. I flung my clothes into one of the wagons, and then hurried back and got my weapons and some other articles, and during this time the heavens seemed aflame and the earth fairly rocked.

Men were shouting, horses neighing, and the din was awful, but as I reached the wagon the second time there came a sound to drown all others. It was a steady roar like the rush of great waves, and it grew louder all the time. I could not understand it for two or three min-The noise came from the west, and I stood upon the wagon so that I could overlook the tents. A flash of lightning was followed by a moment of pitch darkness, and then came a long, tremulous flash, lasting three or four seconds. By its light I caught sight of the herd of wild horses bearing down upon us in a mad mob, and just as the lightning ceased they entered the stream.

The splash of the waters had the sound of breakers, and though I shouted warning at the top of my voice no one could have heard me twenty feet away. Next moment that terror stricken herd Next moment that terror stricken herd was in camp, while the clouds opened the rain came down in torrents. I scrambled back into the wagon, and what I saw during the next ten minutes can never be forgotten. The frightened horses leaped over the tents, or ran against them, fell over guy ropes, bumped against the wagons, and made clean leaps over the ambulances, and all the time each one kept up a wild neighing. I heard our own animals plunging and rearing and neighing, but knew that we were helpless to prevent a stampede. were helpless to prevent a stampede. As the first of the herd got through our camp to the wagons, two of them entered the V-shaped space and others kept them crowded in there. The lightning was flashing and the thunder no move to get out I picked up a noosed rope, lifted the side cover of the wagon, and had the noose over the head of one in three seconds. The one behind him tried to turn when I sought to noose him, but hit his heels against something and twisted back toward me until my hand touched his nose as I slipped the noose over. Then I made the other ends fast, got out the lassoes, and, standing on the front of the wagon, I noosed three horses inside of five minutes. It was no trick at all, for they were pressed right up to the wagon by the weight of those behind, and the awful war of the elements tamed them.

The herd was ten minutes working through the camp, and as they cleared it they took away every horse and mule that we had. Every tent was prostrated, much of our provisions and ammunition destroyed, and one ambulance smashed to pieces. One man was killed and three were injured by the rush of horses. As an offset a waggoner had lassoed two I had five, and two more had hobbled themselves with tent ropes. In the course of a day we got all our animals back but one old mule, and managed to repair damages. Our captives were the finest wild horses ever seen on the plains My lot included three stallions, and I sold one of them right there with the noose around his neck for $200. The others I kept until our return to Texas, taming them a little every day, and then got $1,000 for the four. The span of got $1,000 for the four. The span of stallions went to St. Louis after a bit, and one of them proved himself the fast-est trotter of that decade.

In the old palace of Catherine the In the old values of Catherine the Great at Tsarska-Selo, near St. Petersburg, there is a room which is lined, walls and ceiling, with the finest amber. As the room is half as large as the great East Room in the White House at Washington, its value is purely a matter of speculation. This amber was a gift from Frederick the Great to Catherine II.

Cornelius (forgetting himself)-You will be a sister to me! A $10 sleigh ride this afternoon, a box at the opera tonight, supper at Delmonico's, and a cab home! A sister to me? Great Scott! what kind of a fool human being do you

TELEGRAPHIC TICKS-

L. Heilbroner & Bro., of Tarboro, have made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, R. L. Lang is assignee. The liabilities are $28,000. Assets estimated at $10,000. Preferred debts aggregate about $15,000.

A car load of cotton in transit, con-signed to the Henrietta mill, was discovered on fire four miles from Shelby. The train was run to a tank and the fire extinguished without great damage. Pieces of exploded pyrotechnics were found in the car.

The entire force employed in the construction of the Wilkesboro Hailroad have struck for an increase of 25 per cent in wages. The railroad authorities offered to allow the increase, but demanded twelve hours work instead of ten, as heretofore. Meanwhile work is at a standstill pending negotiations.

There was a destructive fire at Reidsville. The losses are estimated at $25,-000, and are as follows: G. S. Kenodle store, $10,000, insurance $5,000; Williamson Bro. & Co., stock of merchandise, $12,000, insurance $6,000; H. J. Martin, livery stable, $1,000, insurance $400; Reidsville Times office $1,500, in-surance $400. Several small buildings

In Cabarrus county, some time ago, the barn belonging to Dr. Rufus T. Shimpock was set on fire and burned with much valuable forage and corn, together with reapers, mowers and other farm machinery. The loss was heavy. Henry Glover, a white man fifty years old, and his son, aged twenty-one, were talking with a man whom they thought a bitter enemy of Dr. Shimock, and among other things they said: "We gave it to his old barn." This led to their being suspected of having burned the barn. They are now in jail at Concerd.

While Hiram Cowan was plowing on his farm in Rowan county he heard the report of a gun, and at the same time report of a gun, and at the same time felt a stinging sensation of shot entering his body. Medical attention was summoned, and over twenty No. 6 shot were in his body, three of which had penetrated the lungs. Twelve shot struck the house. According to Cowan's statement, his oldest son was in some bushes part where he was playing and the gun near where he was plowing, and the gun went off accidentally. His son was very much prostrated by grief and sorrow over the occurrence. He is eighteen years old.

SOUTH CAROLINA. Governor Richardson has appointed

Col. J. Q. Marshall Secretary of State, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the Hon. W. Z. Leitner.

A few days ago Mr. Robert Gifford, of Hampton county, South Carolina, was violently thrown from his buggy by a runaway mule and instantly killed, not far from his residence. He leaves a family and a large circle of friends.

Mr. Wing, the sawyer at Moses & on the Central Road, was severely injured by the smashing of an emery wheel. His face was badly bruised and Peter Watson, a negro, was drowned in the Catawba river where it traverses Fairfield county. He and a white man were crossing the river in a bateau, which suddenly capsized and threw both out. The white man swam to the shore but the negro soon sank. A negro named Albert Dass, in at-empting to jump from dredge to a tug. near Port Reyal, missed his footing, fell between the boats and was crushed, and before aid could reach him fell into the water and sank. His body has not been recovered. An insane negro named Ward Martin, who was lodged in the jail of Spartanburg county preparatory to being brought to the lun-tic asylum, committed sui-cide by beating his brains out against the wall of his cell. He had been in jail weight. only a few hours, and it seems it was not shought necessary to take precautions At Sistrunks, one negro was killed and two negroes and a white man were wounded. Later it was learned that B. cut in the ordinary mode. Lee Jeffcoot was retailing whiskey to negroes on the road, when they were fired into from ambush. One negro was killed and three wounded. Jeffcoot was hit between the eyes and is in a critical condition. The coroner and sheriff are at the scene of the affray.

Charles P. Hoffman, postmaster at Blythewood, was brought before the United States Commissioner at Columbia charged with detaining and destroying mail matter left for delivery. He bound over to appear at court for trial. It is alleged that on the occasion specified in the warrant he burned a whole barrel full of mail matter left at the of-fice to be dispatched. Other irregularities are also charged. Hoffman denies the charge and says he is the victim of a

NORTH. EAST AND WEST

Forty persons were killed and about ive hundred injured by a tornado at Dacca, India.

The Burlington Road has restored rates on freight. This means an end to the freight rate war. The city clerk of Bucyrus, Obio, W.

S. Welsh, has been arrested on the charge G. D. Allen & Bros., large land and cattle owners of Hartland, Kansas, have failed. Liabilities, $190,000. At Terre Haute, Ind., the State Normal School building was burned to the ground. Loss, $189,000. The upper Mississippi and its tribu-taries in Wisconsin and Minnesota are at flood tide, and doing a good deal of mis-

Sam Wolff, of the firm of B. Wolff & Bro., the largest firm of furniture dealers in Montgomery, Ala., committed

NEWS AND NOTES FOR WOMEN.

Bangle bracelets are coming in again. Faris walking dresses are gray with silver braiding or steel passementeric. Peculiar shades of green, plum, brown and tan are shown in the new goves.

It has become the proper thing for musical young ladies in society to play the harp.

Dressy short wraps are made of changeable velvet glace silks and are all the rage.

"Woman-who-goes-out -of - the-house five-times-a-day" is the name of a Dakots Indian woman.

Black grenadines for summer wear have armure grounds with large designs closely woven in silk.

Mrs. Bonanza Mackay will be in New-port next summer, and intends to entertain on an elaborate scale.

The lapping front prevails in polo-naises, and the skirt falls open to the waist alike in back and front.

Coral has come into popular favor again for earrings and necklaces. Only the most delicate pink is worn. The wife of Judge Stallo, our Minister at Rome, Italy, talks very little English, being a German by birth.

Mi-s Laura Winkler, of Iowa, though totally blind, is one of the most successful temperance workers in the State. One of the notable features of fashion this year will be the gradual disappearance of bridesmaids from weddings.

Dressy mourning bonnets are made entirely of loops of narrow watered ribbon, each pointed and finished with a bead.

There are one hundred women studying in the Harvard Annex this year, There is an endowment fund of $100,000. Some of the newest picce laces show arabesques and geometric designs, and gold threads are interwoven with them. More black lace dresses are being made just at present over princess slips of black satiu or surah than of colored silks. The Greek ladies of "The Phanar," at Constantinople, have for centuries been renowned for their ability and require-

Bonnets grow smaller and the ribbons, aigrettes and bows on top are held in place by flower sprays, instead of big plumes.

The poppy, the peony and the hibis-cus run riot in the new brocades, and quite put out of countenance less majestic

Mrs. Hicks Lord, the wealthy Washington society-leader, says she shall devote her unexpected legacy of $100,000 to charity. The wide ribbons which now adorn brides' and bridesmaids' bouquets are often drawn togeth rat the ends and finished off with tassels, Striped ribbons are to be used on huts and bonnets the coming season. They may rightly be called rainbow ribbons and are gay without being pleasing to the

The lady who posed to her husband as painted in the dome of the Capitol at Washington, now keeps a boarding

The English fashion of silver finger rings prevails, in New York at least, to a large extent and among both sexes. These rings are for the most part fanciful in design.

A young woman who was taken into an insurance office in Philadelphia on trial could not properly sharpen a lead pencil at the end of six months and was there fore discharged. A pretty blouse, and one which is both becoming and comfortable, is that which is tucked to form the yoke, the fullness falling from this, and belted in at the waist with a narrow sash ribbon, and

The pinked taffetta silk gowns for summer wear carry one back half a century to the time when taffeta was the silken fabric par excellence and when it wore excellently in spite of its light

The long full skirts without drapery are very stylish, and are so arranged as to simulate an under and overdress. The panel is still a favorite mode of

Cut steel in all sorts of devices is used on millinery as well as on dress trimming. Cut steel and colored beads together make a very attractive combination in passementeric and is very apt to be seen on black as a background. Mrs. Margaret Dutton, of Shelbyville, Ind., was a great smoker until she reached the age of 100 years; then fearing that the practice might shorten her life, she gave it up. She is now 102, and bids fair to live many years. Flain white muslin is used where there is a transparent effect desired in embroidery. Curtains are made very at-tractive in this way. An all over design in Italian coloring is especially appro-priate for this sort of background. That curious freak of nature, the black pansy, is imitated by Parisian flower makers, and appears as a flower for bonnet trimming the coming season. Carnations in different hues perfectly copied from nature, are also favorites. Susan King, the female real estate speculator, is a New York woman who worked her way up from the financial ground floor to somewhere near the roof. she is understood to be out of active business now, but once she was one of the best known women in the city.

The ineffable and mysterious expression observed by so many poets in children's eyes -as, for instance, those of "Philip, my King"—has become of late a studied effect with innumerable young ladies, as photo and chromo-lithographs bear witness. It is called the "Baby Stare."

Incorrigible.

"That fellow, Jones, is incorrigible," remarked Robinson. "He gets everything on credit."

"You don't say so?" "Yes; he even sleeps on tick."-New

The new Scotch ginghams and sateens show large designs. Stripes are "The Champion of Low Prices."

HAS JUST RETURNED FROM THE NORTH WITH THE LARGEST AND

Joseph Edwards,

BEST SELECTED STOCK OF GOODS THAT HAS EVER

BEEN BROUGHT TO THIS CITY.

---:0:---I WILL GIVE YOU A FEW PRICES, WHICH WILL TELL THE TALE.

LADIES' DRESS SILKS, in all shades, former price $1.10, now 40c. a yard. NUN'S VFILINGS, all wool, in the latest shades, double width, former price 60c., now at 42 1-2c.

ALBATROSS, the latest of the season, former price 65c., now selling at 16 1 2c.

A FULL LINE

Of Ladies' Dress Goods, Scerauckers, Ginghams, Henrietta Cloths, Poplins, all kinds of Embroideries, Hamburg Edgings. Of these goods we deduct 35 per cent, from the usual selling price.

100 Pieces of Straw Matting

Just direct imported from China, from 20 to 30c. a yard, actu I value 75c.

Clothing, Clothing!

FOR MEN, BOYS AND CHILDREN.

A fine quality of CORK SCREW SUITS, former price $20 00. we are now elling at $6.85.

500 MEN'S SUITS, all wool Casaimere, worth $15 00, we are now driving at

BOOTS AND SHOES, HATS AND CAPS, GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS, FURNIURE. We take off 35 per cent. from the usual price this season.

WE ALSO REEP A FULL LINE OF

Heavy Groceries,

Such as Meat, Flour, Sugar, Coffee, Molasses, etc., the regular supplies for farmers. which will be sold to responsible parties ON TIME, until next Fall, for CASH PRICES

Since my return home the rushes have been so immense that I would beg our city patrons to do their shopping outside of Saturdays in order to be able to give octter attention to their wants and desires.

Remember the sign in front of my store:

Joseph Edwards,

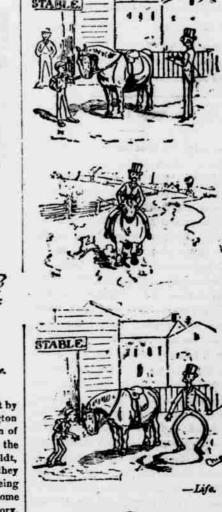

"The Champion of Lov Prices."

The Latest Novelty in "Dude" Collars. What Came From Riding a Fat Horse,

One of the valuable postessions left by the late Mr. Corcoran, the Washington philanthropist, was a large collection of autograph letters. They contain the signatures of Webster, Clay, Humboldt, and nearly all the Presidents, and they are mostly of a social nature, being written to Mr. Corcoran himself. Some few of them contain unwritten history.

Professor Goldwin Smith, in the Lozdon Tine, predicts that if the movement to secure commercial union between Canada and the United States fails, it will be followed by anne ation. He believes that the day will come when the English speaking race on the American continent will be one people.

Two Illinois farmers, living near Tuscola, went to law over a $3 pig more than three years ago, and the case was appealed until it reached the Circuis urt. That court has decided that one of the litigants shall pay for the pig and the other pay the costs. Altogether, in costs and attorneys' fees, the pig has cost the two men $1250.