THE REPUBLICANS.

HARRISON AND MORTON

First Day.—Although a fresh breeze from Lake Michigan prevailed all day and made the weather pleasant, Chicago, Ill., was in a fever heat.

It was 12:30 p. m. when Chairman Jones, of the National Republican Convention, rapped the Convention to order. The building was almost fairly lit in its interior with its myriad of electric jets in bunches, in stars and diamonds, and in banners and streamers of a thousand hues,—all making a magnificent spectacle. Nothing could be seen of the front of the desk upon which eight years ago descended the gavel that announced the nomination of James A. Garfield and four years later the success of James G. Blaine. It was one huge bank of roses, and shed its delicate perfume far and wide. From the first balcony portraits of all the Republican Presidents looked down upon the delegates, and the pictures of Generals Grant and Logan were there, wreathed in immortelles.

The Rev. T. W. Gausausius opened the convention with prayer, and then Chairman Jones stepped to the front and read his address. He declared that "the tariff had built up the country," and after giving the Democrats a dig and glorifying the Republican rule and principles, he concluded: "We are again confronted with the same Democratic party, the mother of all evils, from which the country has suffered. The Republican party will resume its authority and successfully lead this great country, with its beneficent institutions, toward the sublime goal which all patriots believe to be its heaven ordained destiny. I have no doubt of the result."

The Hon. J. M. Thurston, of Nebraska, was named as Temporary Chairman and upon being seated, spoke at length. Calls were then made for General Fremont and the first candidate of the Republican party for President came forward and spoke, being warmly applauded.

Fred Douglas said that the Republican party had stood by the colored race, and it would stand by the Republican party. Congressman Wise told the convention that it was William Mahone's trifling with the Republicans of Virginia that had brought about the contest among the delegates of that State.

While Mr. Mahone was responding to Mr. Wise's charge, the latter who was standing behind him on the platform shouted: "You are in my district, and I charge you with the frauds by which I was made a contestant."

Mr. Mahone answered back: "Then your charge is as false as you are foul. I will put the stigma where it belongs instead of talking about it here."

The two men glared at each other, and for a moment it looked as if a personal encounter were imminent, but a Michigan man rose to the point of order and the combatants quieted down.

Some routine business was transacted and at 3:31 p. m. the first day's session was over.

SECOND DAY.—It was half past twelve when Chairman Thurston called the convention to order.

After prayer by Rev. S. A. Northrop, the convention heard the report of the committee on organization, which was adopted.

For Permanent Chairman—Hon. M. M. Este, of California.

Secretaries—C. W. Clisbee, of Michigan; M. Griffin, of Wisconsin; W. M. Huell, of Tennessee, and M. Lynch, of Pennsylvania.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Chas. Fitzsimmons, of Chicago.

A few words of thanks from Temporary Chairman Thurston, a word of introduction and the permanent chairman stepped forward. In his address he said, "I can't even guess who your nominee is going to be, [laughter] though, of course you all know."

Two gavelers were presented, one by Mayor Roche, of Chicago, of silver and gold, and the second one presented was made from a desk which belonged to Gen. Grant.

After a number of committees had been heard from and much talking done the convention at 2:15 p. m. adjourned until evening.

COMMITTEE WAB.

After a continuous session of six hours today the committee on credentials came to an agreement upon the Virginia contest. It decided to recommend to the convention that the four Mahone delegates at large be declared the regular delegates and sent accordingly and the Wise delegates in the second, third, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth and tenth be recognized as the regularly elected delegates. This decision gives Wise 14 of the delegation and Mahone eight.

There were times during the meeting when accusations of lying, fraud, trickery, etc., were hurled back and forth, and Congressmen Hepburn, the chairman, broke a heavy walking stick in half and almost split the solid oak table in his efforts to maintain order.

At the night session it was decided no change of votes can be made after the vote of a state has been properly cast until after the ballot has been announced.

A resolution was adopted expressing sympathy for Germany, and the balance of the evening was taken up in speech making and hearing the report of the committee on Credentials. Adjourned 10:15.

THIRD DAY.

At ten o'clock the convention was called to order by Chairman Estlin and Rev. Thomas M. Green, Episcopalian, invoked the Divine blessing.

When the roll was called for members of the National Committee the following gentlemen responded for their respective States: F. F. Putney, Georgia; W. P. Casaday, North Carolina; E. M. Brayton, South Carolina.

The Committee on Resolutions submitted the platform which was adopted unanimously:

It starts out by declaring that Abraham Lincoln was the champion of liberty; states that the memories of Garfield and Arthur, Grant and Conkling will be faithfully cherished; prays for the recovery of land and to soldier, Philip H. Sheridan; sends ### fraternal congratulations to the American people upon the accomplishment of the abolition of slavery throughout the American continent; favors Home Rule for Ireland; and an unwavering support to the National Constitution, and to the indissoluble union of the States; the anatomy reserved to the States under the constitution, the personal rights and liberties of citizens in all the States and territories in the Union, and especially to the supreme and sovereign right of every lawful citizen, white or black, to cast a free ballot in public elections and to have that ballot duly counted. We hold that free and equal representation of all the people is the foundation of our Republican Government, and demand effective legislation to secure the integrity and purity of the public ballot. "We charge that the present administration and the Democratic majority in congress owe their existence to the suppression of the ballot by a criminal nullification of the Constitution and laws of the United States. "We are uncompromisingly in favor of the American system of protection. We protest against its destruction as proposed by the President and his party. They serve the interests of Europe; we will support the interests of America. "We accept the issue and confidently appeal to the people for their judgment. The protective system which we maintained its abandonment has always been followed by grave disaster to all interests except those of the interest and the party. "We denounce the Mill's bill as destructive to the general business, the labor and the working interests of the country, and we heartily endorse the consistent and patriotic action of the Republican representatives in Congress in opposing its passage. "It condemns free trade, favors the repeal of the tariff upon spirits, which is an annoyance and burden to agriculture and the tax upon spirits used in the arts, and for mechanical purposes; and by such revision of the tariff laws as will tend to check the imports of such articles as are produced by our people, the production of which give employment to our labor and release from the duties those articles of foreign production; (except luxuries the like of which cannot be produced at home. If there still remain a larger revenue than is requisite for the wants of the government, we favor the entire repeal of internal revenue taxes, rather than the surrender of any part of our protective system at the joint behest of the whiskey trust, and the agents of foreign manufacturers. "It denounces contracted Chinese labor; declares against trusts; favors public land for actual settlers; restoration of unsurveyed land grants; admission to statehood of States who have requirements of population; favors Home Rule in Territories and the District of Columbia; demands reduction of letter postage to one cent per ounce; favors liberal provisions for education by States and nation; demands the rebuilding of the American navy; favors liberal pension laws; declares our foreign policy is distinguished by cordiality; arranges the present administration for its weak and unpatriotic settlement of the fisheries question; its prohibition of the tender of the essential privileges to which our fishing vessels are entitled in Canadian ports; pledges the party to institute general civil service reform, and reaffirms the plank in the platform of 1854 on the subject; and denounces the hostile spirit shown by President Cleveland in his numerous vetoes of measure for peace and relief, and the action of the Democratic House of Representatives in refusing even a consideration of the general pension legislation.

THE ROLL OF STATES FOR THE NOMINATION OF PRESIDENT WAS THEN CALLED.

Mr. Warner, of Connecticut, nominated Governor Hawley, by simply presenting his name and when Illinois was reached, Leonard Sweet rose and presented the name of Walter Q. Gresham, of Indiana.

New York was the next state to respond and Senator Hiscock won a big cheer by the announcement that New York was united and their candidate was Chancey M. Depeve.

When Ohio was reached there was a scene of enthusiasm and Gen. Hastings, of Pennsylvania, in magnificent form presented the name of John Sherman.

Almost at the start the orator mentioned the name of Blaine, and the effect was electrical. Two-thirds of the delegates jumped up on their seats waving their hats and shouting themselves hoarse.

Governor Foraker followed, throwing the "bloody shirt" to the breeze and wound up by saying, "seven millions of negroes to-day in this country ask you to nominate John Sherman to the Presidency," and I rise to cast my vote for the nomination of the citizen of Ohio, now so grand a citizen of our entire Republic, John Sherman. [Great applause.]

Delegate John C. Darcy, of North Carolina, a young, coal black negro, was the next speaker, and in well chosen language, he paid a tribute to Sherman's love for, and fidelity to the colored race.

Senator Spooner put Gov. Rusk in nomination and at 7:30 o'clock p. m. the Convention adjourned until 11 o'clock the next day.

Mr. Boutelle, of Maine, took the platform and read a telegram:

"Bismarck, June 24.—Boutelle and Mauley: Earnestly request all friends to respect my Paris letter. BLAINE."

The nomination of Harrison was received with considerable enthusiasm. Delegates rose en masse and the cheering was loud and long. The band played patriotic airs.

The roll call was verified and then Governor Foraker on behalf of Senator Sherman in nomination: General Hendon, of Iowa, for Senator Allison; Mr. Boutelle, of Maine, for Blaine's adherents; Mr. Davis, of Minnesota; Mr. Mahone, of Virginia, Delegate Proctor, of Vermont, Judge Thurston, of Nebraska, Mr. Williams, of Arkansas, all seconded the motion and the nomination was made unanimous.

The convention then proceeded to nominations for Vice-President. The following were the nominations and the number of votes for each man:

The ballot was completed at 5:20 and the nomination of Morton was made unanimous. After a committee of one from each state was appointed to notify the candidates of their nomination, the Convention adjourned.

THE CHARITY OF THE BIRDS.

A gentleman living in Brooklyn, N. Y., keeps a number of pigeons, which during the great storm of March 1. th and 1.5th suffered extremely from the severity of the weather. When their owner was able to reach them, he found the poor birds quite stiff and benumbed with the cold, and carrying them to the house tried to resuscitate them by a warm fire. This he succeeded in doing, and while working over them was astonished to hear a low "peep, peep," proceeding from some unknown source that he could not account for. On examination, however, he discovered that beneath the wings of each pigeon was nestled a tiny sparrow which had taken refuge there from the fury of the blast, and which the larger bird had kindly sheltered and warmed, thus displaying a sagacity and friendliness not expected in the feathered denizens of the air.

The great "blizzard" proved very destructive to the sparrows. From Sunday to Wednesday or Thursday they were practically without food or water, and they succumbed to cold and starvation by the million. The city streets had really a deserted look without the busy throngs of birds chirping and fitting about from morning to night.—American Agriculturist.

Hazel Twigs as Divining Rods.

The use of hazel twigs, or current twigs, as divining rods, to discover underground springs of water, is still in general practice in England, and on some parts of the continent. It is not seldom that professors of the art are also found in this country. Of late several English nobles have been experimenting with the rod, and in some cases rather startling results followed. It seems to have never occurred to these hunters of springs that, over large tracts of country the ground is everywhere permeated with underground water veins and you can carelessly dig anywhere without touching it. In olden times this same hazel twig, cut in a V form, was used as an astringent guide to witch—which is the possible reason for its being called the witch hazel. Witch hunting was a profession. Led into a company of women, he forked end of the rod, held in the professor's hands, bent toward the person who was guilty. Thousands were thus sent to the stake. The whole thing is a delusion, unworthy of our age. The very fundamental principle of science is to believe only in causes adequate to results. Let them point out spots where, by digging, water cannot be found.—Wobles-Democrat.

No Pickings for Lawyers Here.

Dr. Everett Wagner, of Metcalfe county, Ky., recently died, leaving an estate worth $12,000 and a most peculiar will. To his brother, Napoleon Bonaparte Wagner, he bequeathed his left arm; another brother was to receive his right hand and arm. Among various other relatives he divided his legs, feet, teeth, ears, nose, gums, etc. His entire fortune he left to charitable institutions. Dr. Wagner was perfectly sane when he made the will, and wished to punish his relatives to the indifference of what he considered the indifference of his body was buried some time before the will was read, his executors are in a quandary as to how they shall carry out his instructions. Times-Democrat.

Work of the Flames.

Greensboro, N. C. [Special].—Sunday morning a little after two o'clock, our citizens were awakened from a quiet repose, by the cry of "Fire! Fire!" It was the burning of the large wooden block of buildings on the northwest side of the R. & D. R. freight depot. Immediately the general alarm was given. The fire department was promptly on the spot, but it was evident from the start that it was impossible to save the buildings as the timbers were so dry and inflammable, and the fire gained such headway before the firemen could get to work. Efforts were then made to save the adjoining buildings which, after an hours hard work, were crowned with success.

The following are the losses: Thos. Bailey, $1,750; Thos. D. Garrett, $1,500; VanCannon & Hiatt, $900; Mrs. McDonald, $750; Wm. A. Day, $600; W. K. Buchanan, $4,500; A. H. Dudley, $500; M. Larky, $950.

Four Men to Hang.

At Durham, N. C., Friday, Judge Merriman sentenced York Gibson, Dan Simmons, Henry Battle and John Justice, all negro men, to be hanged on the 3rd of August for rape upon a young colored woman named Emiline Brodie, three weeks ago. This is the first instance in the criminal history of North Carolina where four committed the same offence upon the same person. The circumstances were particularly aggravating. The Brodie girl, in company with a man to whom she was engaged to be married, was passing a stable in which the above named men were employed. They stopped her and her lover, and attacked him, when he attempted to defend her. After beating him insensible all of them outraged the girl.

A Sea Captain's Obituary.

This is the novel way that a San Francisco nautical paper gives notice of an old sea captain's death: "Captain B. B. Sharp, the veteran navigator, has gone aloft, where he can now live among the stars he loved to speak about. No more lunar observations, nor plain sailing will the old man lay out to aspiring young captains or mates. He has let go his explains or lay, and the cable is all out to the bare end, and that has slipped through the hawse-pipe."
