children of light."

A marked litstration of the truth of that maxim in the slowness of the Christian religion to take possession of the secular printing press. The opportunity is op fi, and has for some time been open, but the ce-fisiastical courts and the chareless all I be ministers of religion are fer the most part allowing the al courts and the chareless and the ministers of religion are for the inost part allowing the golden opportunity to pass unimproved. That the opportunity is open I declare from the fact that the secular newspapers are glad of any religious facts or statistics that you present them. Any animate I and stirring article relating to religious themes they would gladly print. They thank you for any info m ton in regard to churches. If a wrong has been done to any Christian church ere Christian institution you could go into any newspaper of the land and have the real truth stated. Delication services, ministraid ordinations and pastoral installation, corner stone laying of a church, an eversary of a charitable society will have rea one le space in any secular fournal, if it have previous notice given. If I had some great injustice done me there is not an editoriel or a reportorial room in the United States into which I could not go and get myself at right, and that is true of any well known Christian. Already the daily secular press daring the course of each week publishes as much religious information and high moral sentiment as do a the weekly religious more. Why then does mut one cloripublishes as much religious information and high moral sentiment as dos the weekly re-ligious press. Why then dos not our glori-ous Christianity embrace these mignificent opportunities! I have before me a subject of first and last importance. How shall we se-cure the scular press as a mightler re-en-forcement to religion and the public.

cure the secular press as a mightler re-enforcement to relig on and the pulpit.

The first thing toward this result is cessation of indiscriminate hostility against newspaperdom. You might as well denounce the legal profession because of the systems, or the medical profession because of the quacks, or merchandise because of the swindling argain makers, as to slambang newspapers because there are because of the swindling argain makers, as to slambang newspapers because there are because of the swindling argain makers, as to slambang newspapers because there are because of the swindling arteporters and unclean columns. Guttenberg, the inventor of the art of printing, was about to destroy his types and extinguish the art because it was suggested to him that printling might be suborned into the service of the devil, but afterward he behought himself that the right use of the art might more than overcome the evil use of it, and so be that the right use of the art might more than overcome the evil use of it, and so he spared the type and the intelligence of all following ages. But there are many to day in the depressed mood of Guttenberg with uplitted hammer, wanting to pound to peess the type, who have not reached his better mood in which he saw the art of printing to be the rising sun of the world's filumination. If instead of fighting newspapers we spand the same length of time and the same vehemence in marcheling their help in religious directions, we would be as much wiser as the man who gets carent of the railroad superintendent to fix en a car to the end of a rail who gets cheek to the raid of a rail tendent to fix en a car to the end of a rail train, shows better sense than he who russ his wheelburrow up the track to meet and drive hak the Chicago limited express. The silliest thing that a man ever does is to fight affliest thing that a man ever does is to fight a newspaper, for you may have the floor for utterance perhaps one day in the week, while the newspaper has the floor every day of the week. Napoleon, though a mighty mun, hat many weaknesses, and one of the weakest things he ever did was to threaten that if the English newspapers did not stop their adverse criticism of himself he would with four hundre I thousand bayonets cross the channel for their chastisement.

Don't fight newspapers. Attack provokes attack. Better wait till the exet amont blows over and then go in an i set justice, for get it you will if you have patined and common sense and equip is of disposition. It ought to be a mighty schalive that there is an enormous amount of common sense in the world, and you will eventually be taken for what you are really worth, and you cannot a vertice.

word, and you will eventually be taken for what you are really worth, and you cannot be puffed up and you cannot be written down, and if you are the ensury of good so-ciety that fact will come out, and if you are the friend of good society that fact will be established. I know what I am talking stablished. I know what I am talking about, for I can draw on my own experience. All the responsible newspapers as far as I know are my friends now. But many of you remember the time when I was the most continuously and meanly attacked man in this country. Gol gave many attacked man in this country. me grace not to answer back, and I kept me grace not to answer tack, and I kept silence for ten years, and much grace is required. What I said was perverted and twisted into just the opp site of what I dal say. My person was maligned, and I was presented as a gorgon, and I was malici usty say. My person was maligned, and I was presented as a gorgon, and I was malici-usly described by persons who had never seen me as a monstressty in body, mind and soul. There were milions of people who believed that there was a large sofa in this pulpit, although we never hadanything but a chair, and that during the singing by the congregation I was accustomed to lie down on that wofa and dangle my feet over the ent. Lying New York correspondents for ten years misrepresented our church services, but we waited, and people from every neigh or-bood of Christen ion came here to find the magnitude of the falsehools concerning the church and concerning myself. A reaction church and concerning myself. A r action set in and now we have justice, full justice, more than justice and as much overpraise as once we had under appreciation, and no man that ever lived was so much indebted to the newspaper press for opportunity to preach the Gospel as I am. Young men in the min-lstry, young men in all professions and occuistry, young men in all professions and occupations, wait. You can affort to wait. Take rough misrepresentation as a Torkist towel to start up your languid cir ulation, or a system of massage or Sweltch movement, whose pokes and pulls and twists and thrusts are substary treatm in There is one person you need to manage and that is yourself. Yeep your disposition sweet by communion with the Christ who answered not again, the society of genial people, and walk in the sun-shine with your hat off and you will come out all right. And don't join the crowd of people in our day who spend much of their time duming newspapers.

Again, in this effort to secure the secular press as an gibiter re-enforcement of religion and the pulpit, let us make it the avenue of religiou information. If you put the facts of churches and denominations of Christians only into the columns of religious papers, of churches and denominations of Christians only into the columns of religious papers, which do not in this country have an average of more than ten thousand subscribers, what have you done as compared with what you do if you put these facts through the daily papers which have hundreds of thousands of readers! Every little denomination must have its little organ, supported at great expense, when, with one half the outlay, a column or half a column of room might be rented in some semi-omnipotent accular publication, and so the religious information would be sent round an iround the world. would be sent round and round the world The world moves so swiftly to-day that now would be sent found an From the world. Die world moves so swiftly to-day that news a week old is sta'e. Give us all the great church facts and all the revival tidings the next morning or the same evening. My advice, often given to friends who propose to start a newspaper, is: "Don't! Don't! Employ the papers already started." The biggest financial hole ever dug in this American continent is the hole in which good people throw their money when they start a newspaper. It is almost as good and as quick a way of getting rid of money as buying stock in a gold mine in Colorado. Not more printing presses, but the right use of those already established. All their cylinders, all their steam power, all their pens, all their types, all their el toriol chairs and reportorial rooms are available if you would engage them in behalf of civili-ation and Christian'ty.

Again: If you would secure the secular press as a mighter re enforcement of religion and the pulpt, extend widest and highest courtesies to the representatives of journalism. Give them easy chairs and pienty of room when they come to report occasions. For the most part they are gentlemen of education and refinement, graduates of college, with families to support by their literary craft, many of them weary with the push of a business that is precarious and fluctuating, each one of them the avenue of information to thousands of readers, their impression adopted by multitudes. They are connecting links between a sermon or a song or a prayer and this great population that tramp up and down the streets day by day and year by wear with their sorrows by day and year by year with their sorrows uncomforted and their sins unpardoned.

More than eight hundred thousand people in Brooklyn, and leavthous seventy-five thousand the chirches, so that our cities are not so much preached to by ministers of religion as by reporters. Put all journalists into our prayers and sermons. Of all the hundred thousand aermons preached to journalists, and probably not one. Of all the prayers offered for classes of men innumerable the prayers offered for this most potential class will be so few and fare that they will be thought to preached in the property of the service of th and join the other side, for you are the unbelievers who make the wheels of the Lord's chariot drag heavily. The great final battle between truth and error, the Armageldon, I think will not be fought with swords and shells and guns, but with pens, quill pens, steel pens, gold pens, fountain pens, and, before that, the pens must be touverted. The most divinely honofeed weapon of the past has been the pen, and the most divinely honcrell weapon of the future will be the pen, prophet's pen and evangelist's pen and reporter's pen and author's pen, Gol save the pen! The wing of the Apocalyptic angel will be the printed pare. The printing press will roll ahea! of Christ's char of to clear the way.

"But" some one might ask, "would you make the Sunday newsonpers also a reenforcement." Yes, I would. I have learned to take things as they are. I would like to see the much scoffel at old furitan Sabbaths come back again. I do not think the modern. come back again. I do not think the modern Sunday will turn out any better men and women than were your grandfathers and grandmothers under the old-fashioned Sunday. To say nothing of other results, Sunday newspapers are killing elitors, reporters, compositors and pressumen. Every man, woman and chiefd is entired to twenty-four bours of nothing to do. If the newspapers put on another set of made that does not relieve the editorial and reporter all room of its cares and responsibilities. Our literary men die fast enough without killing them with Sunday work. But the Sunday hewswith Sunday work. But the Sunday hews-paper has come to stay. It will stay a good d-ai longer than any of us stay. What, then, sha'l we do? Implore all those who have anything to do with issuing it to fill it with moral or religious information; live sermons and facts elevating. Urge them that all divorce cases by decorned, and insermons and facts elevating. Urge them that all divorce cases be dropped, and instead thereof have good a lyice as to how husbands and wives ought to live lovingly together. Put in small type the behavior of the swindling church member, and, in large ype the contribution or some curistian man toward an asylum for feeble mindal children or a setside sanitarium. Ur a all managing or a seaside sanitation. Urge all managing editors to put in access and impority in type pearl or agate, and charity and filelity and Christian consistency in brevier or bourgeois. If we cannot drive out the Sunday newspaper converted. The fact is that the modern Sunday newspaper. converted. The fact is that the industric out-day newspaper is a great improvement on the old Sunday newspaper. What a beastly thing was the Sunday newspaper thirty years ago! It was enough to destroy a man's re-spectability to leave the tip end of it stick-ing out of his cont pocket. What editorials! ago! It was enough to destroy a man's respectability to leave the tip end of it sticking out of his coat pocket. What editorials! What advertisements! What pictures! The modern Suniay newspaper is as much an improvement on the olitime Sunday newspaper as one hundred is more than twenty-five; in other words, about 75 per cent. Improvement. Who knows that by prayer and kindly consultation with our literary friends we may have it lifted into a positively religious sheet, printed on Saturday night and only distributed, like the Americ in Messeager, or the Missionary Journal, or the Sunday School Advessle, on Sublath mornings! All things are possible with God, and my faith is up until nothing in the way of religious victory would surprise me. All the newspaper printing presses of the earth are going to be the Lords, and telegraph and telephone and type will yet amounce nations born in a day. The first book ever printed was the Bible by Faust and his son in-law. Schooffer, in 160, and that consecration of type to the Holy Scriptures was a prophecy of the great mission of printing press was a clergyman, Rev. Jesse Blover, and that was a prophecy of the rethe nations. The father of the American printing press was a clergymun, Rev. Jesse Glover, and that was a prophecy of the religious us; that the Gospel ministry in this country were to make of the types.

Again, we shall secure the secular press as a mightier re enforcement of religion and the pulpit by making our religions utterances more interesting and spirited, and then the press will reproduce them. On the way to church some fifteen years ago, a journalist said a thing that has kept me ever since thinking. "Are you going to give us any thinking. "Are you going to give us any point; to-day?" "What do you mean?" I asked. He said: "I mean by that anything that will be striking enough to be remembered." Then I said to myself: What right bave we in our pulpits and Sunday schools to take the time of people if we have nothing to say that is memorable? David did not have any difficulty in r membering Nathan's say that is memorable! David did not have any difficulty in r membering Nathan's thrust; "Thou art the man;" nor Felix in remembering Paul's point blank utterance on righteousness, temperan e and judgment to come; nor the English King any difficulty in remembering what the court preacher said, when during the sermon against sin the preacher threw his hand-kerchief into the king's pew to indicate whom he meant. The tendency of criticism in the theological seminaries is to file off from our young men all the sharp roints and make them too smooth for any kind of execution. What we want, all of us, is more point, less hundrum. If we say the right thing in the right way the press will be glid to echo and re-echo it. Sabbath shool teachers, reformers, young men and old in-n in the ministry, what we all want if we are to make the printing press an ally in Christian work is that which the reporter spoken of singested—points, sharp points, memoral le points. But if the thing be deal when nite-rel by living voce, it will be a hundredfold mare dead when it is laid out in cold type.

Now, as you all have something to do with the newspaper press either in issuing a paper or in reading it, either as producers or patrons, either as sellers or purchasers of the printed sheet. I propose on this Sabbath morning, June 17, 1885, a treaty to be signed between the church and the printing press, a treaty to be ratified by millions of good people if we rightly fashion it, a treaty promising that we will help each other in our work treaty to be ratified by millions of good people if we rightly fashion it, a treaty promising that we will help each other in our work of trying to illumine and felicitate the world, we by voice, you by pen, we by speaking only that which is fit to speak. You help us and we will help you. So de by side be these two potent agencies until the Judgment Day, when we must both be strutinized for our work, healthful or liasting. The two worst off men in that day will be the minister of religion and the clifor if they wasted their opportunity. Both of us are the engineers of long express trains of influence, and we will run into a dip to flight or tumble them off the embankment.

What a useful life and what a glorious de what a useful life and what a gorrous as-parture was that of the most famous of all American printers. Benjamin Franklin, whom infidels in the penary of their re-sources have often fraudulently claimed for their own, but the printer who moved that the Philadelphia convention be opened with prayer, the resolution lost because a ma-jority thought prayer unnecessary, and who jority thought prayer unnecessary, and who wrote at the time he was viciously attacked: "My rule is to go streight forward in doing what appears to me to be the leaving too con-equences to Providence, and who wrote this quaint epitaph showing his lone of resurrection, an epitaph that I hundreds of times read while living in Philadelph a:

The Author. That Providence intends the profession of That Providence intends the profession of reporters to have a mighty share in the worl's redemption is suggested by the fact that Paul and Christ took a reporter along with them, and he reported their addresses and reported their addresses and reported the racts. Luke was a reporter, and he wrote not only the look of Luke, but the Acts of the Apistles, and without that reporter's work we would have known nothing of the Peatscost, and nothing of Steeber's markyrlong and nothing of known nothing of the Pentscost, and nothing of Stephen's martyrdom, and nothing of Tabisha's resurrect on, and nothing of the juil at any unjailing of Paul and Silas, and nothing of the shipwreck at Melina. Strike out the reporter's work from the Bible and you kill a large part of the New Testament. It makes me think that in the future of the kingdom of God the reporters are to bear a mighty part.

About thirteen years ago a representative of an important newspaper took his seat in this church, one Sathath night, about five power form their nicht is pulpit. He took tut pench and reporter's pad, resolved to carl. Wasn't saying a word.

cature the whole scene. When the music began he began, and with his pencil he derided that, and then derided the prayer, and then derided the reading of the Scripture, and then began to deride the sermon. But, he says, for some reason his hand began to tremble, and he, rallying blusself, sharpened his pencil and started again, but broke down again, and then put pencil and paper in his pocket and his head down on the front of the pew and began to pray. At the close of the service he came up and asked for the prayers of others and gave his heart to God: a though still engaged in newspaper work, he is an evangelist, and hires a hall at his own expense and ever? Sabbath afternoon preached Jesus Christ to the people. And the men of that profession are going to come in a body throughout the country. I know huntreds of them, and a more genial or highly elimented class of men, it would be hard to find, and, though the tendency of their profession may be toward skepticism, an erganized, common, sense foospel huvitation would fetch them to the Irontof all Christian endeavor. Men of the gened the help of the Christian religion. In the Iront of all Christian endeavor. Men of the fencil and pen, in all departments, you need the help of the Christian religion. In the day when people want to get their newspapers at three cents, and are hoping for the time when they can get any of them at one cent, and, as a consequence, the atta hes of the printing press are by the thousand ground under the cylinders, you want God to take care of you and your families. Some of your best work is as much unappreciated as was Miton's "Paradise Lost," for which the author received $25, and the immortal 'poem, "Hoheninden," of Thomas Campbell when he first offered it for publication, and in the column called. the immortal 'poem, 'Hob-nimelen,' of Thomus Campbell when he first offered it for publication, and in the column called 'Notices to correspondent's' appeared the words: 'To T. C.—The lines commencing 'On Linden when the san was low' are not up to our standard. Pectry is not T. C.'s forte. 'O men of the pencil and pen, amid your anappreceated work you need encouragement and you can have it. Frinters of all Christendom, editors, resporters, compositors, pressmen, publishers and readers of that which is printed, resolve that you will not write, set up, edit, issue or read anything that debases body, mind or sull. In the name of God, by the laying on of the hands of faith and prayer, orlain the printing press for right-soueness and liberty and salvation. All of us with some influence that will help in the right direction, let us put our hands to the work imploring God to hasten the consummation. A ship with hundreds of passengers approaching the South American coast, the han on the lookout neglected his work and in a few minutes the ship would have been dashed to run on the rocks. But a cricket on board the vessel, that had made no sound all the swell of land, and the Caotain, knowing cricket on hoard the vessel, that had made no sound all the voyage, set up a shrill call at the smeil of land, and the Captain, knowing that habit of the insect, the vessel was stopped in time to avoid an awful wreek. And so, insignificant means new may do wonders and the scratch of a pen may save the shipwagek of a suil.

wonders and the scratch of a peace, the shipwreck of a soul.

Are you all ready for the signing of the contract, the league, the solemn treaty proposed between journalism and evangelism?

Aye, let it be a Christian marriage of the contract and the printing press. The ordination of the printing press. Aye, let it be a Christian marriage of the purpit and the printing press. The ordination of the former on my head, the pen of the latter in my hand, it is appropriate that I publish the banns of such a marriage. Let them from this day be one in the magnificent work of the world's redemption.

Let thrones and powers and kingdoms be Obedient, mighty God, to Thee: And over land and strea a and main, New wave the septer o Thy reign. O. let that glorious an be a swell, Let host to host the tramph tell, Till not one cebel heart remains, But over all the Sev or reigns.

A Colt's Race With a Train

The Gl.be-Democrat describes a re markable race between a three-year-old thoroughbred colt and an express train in Kentucky. The colt belongs to Vince Carpenter, at Limestone Station, in Carter County. When the express train arrived at Limestone the colt stepped on the track in front of the engine, and when the train started the colt started also, keeping some distance in front of the engineer, until a large trestle was reached at Soldier, the next stopping point, a distance of five and a quarter miles from Limestone. The colt started over the trestle, but fell down, and the race came to an end; the engineer stopped, a rope was attached to the colt, and it was removed from the erthe track. The race of five and a quarter miles is reported to have been made in the short time of thirteen minutes. The colt jumped several cow gaps, crosse numerous small trestles and ran around one or two bridges. When the colt left the track to go around the bridges the engineer gave his engine full speed to try and pass the cost, but it succeeded in getting on the track in front of the eagine again and the race was renewed. At Enterprise a number of men tried to scare the colt from the track, but it passed around them and got back on the track before the train could pass it. The engineer says that several times he gave his engine full speed, trying to pass it or run over it, but it was toc swift for his engine. In the fall on the trestie the colt was not injured much.

The Origin of "Uncle Sam." The sobriquet "Uncle Sam" arose at the time of the last war between Eng land and America. A commissiarat contractor named Elbeht Anderson, of New York, had a store at Troy. A Government Inspector named Samuel Wilson, who was always dubbed "Uncle S-m," superintended the examination of the provisions, and when they were passed each package was marked with the letters F. A .- U. S., the initials of the contractor and of the United States. The man whose duty it was to mark the casks, being asked what the mitials meant, replied that they stood for Elbert Anderson and Uncle Sam. This was considered a good joke and soon got abroad, and long before the war was over the name had become fixed, and applied just as John Bull is applied to England .- Courier Journa'.

A Six-Hundred-Dollar Dog.

Mrs. Joseph Lotz, of this city, has disposed of her magnificent &t. Bernard dog to G. B. McDougall, of San Francisco. The price paid was $600. This dog was secured in France from the kennel of Ea on Rothschild by Miss Matilda Lotz, the artist, and was brought here in Sepiember, 1886, when she presented it to her brother's wife. The dog is a handsome specimen of his species. He was very much attached to Mrs. Lotz, and always accompanied her in her walks, He is supposed to be the only thoroughbred on this coast. He is called Jumbo II. and was born in November, 1880, at Eastwell Fark, Kent, England. He is by Champion Cadwa lader, out of Abess VI., both of whom have first class pedigrees. - San J s. (Cal.) A Chicago police justice has made a funny legal blunder. He has built a fine house on an ther man's lot, and the mar will neither buy it nor let him remove it. The surveyor got the wrong line, and the owner of the property The Buxom Queen of Tahiti.

It is a fete night on our arrival at Tahiti, says a correspondent of the Chicago Time, and a band of music is government house, over which waves the tri-color of la belle France announcing the protectorate. Pomare V., the native king, preferring to indulge in his brandy and soda and other excesses in a smaller edifice a little distance off, gives up all vo'ce in the management of the g ment for a consideration of 50,000 francs per annum. Her Ma esty, the Queen, also receives a compensation for abdicating the throne, although a much smaller one, and lives quietly and unostentationsly in a snug little cottage adjoining that of her sister, who is married to the ful figure, clad in a loose flowing gown, may be seen as she moves among the as-semblage in the beautiful grounds directly in front of the palace, leaning her richly-jeweled, dusky arm, a little heavly, perhaps, on that of her honored cavalier, who happens to be a captain of a man of war now in port, as she strolls hither and thither in the tropical sum-mer moonl ght with a slow and undulating motion peculiar to women of her race, and she every inch a queen, although, withal, a merry one.

The Beault of Merit.

When anything stands the test of fifty years among a discriminating people, it is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. Few, if any, medicines, have met with such Few, if any, medicines, have met with such continued success and popul rity as has marked the progress of Brandbert's Pills, which, after a trial of over fifty years, are conseded to be the safest and most effectual blood purifier, tonic and alterative ever in troduced to the public.

That this is the result of nierit, and that Brandberth's Pills perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest.

Brandbert's Pills are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar conted.

The National Temperance Hospital in Chicago is demonstrating the fact that distilled and fermented liquors are not necessary for the cure of disease. Typhoid fever is treated there with uniform success without wine; consumptives are built up without whisky; collapse from shock overcome without alcohol.

The Grant Club of Chicago—a social or-ganization—has voted to exclude the sale and drinking of intoxicants from its rooms.

At the time when Columbus started in search of the New World, nearly every min, woman and child in Europe insist d that ther was no New World to discover. When he came back-crowned with success, a large proportion of these good pe ple adhered to their theory; and if they were alive to-day many of them would doubtless insist that America had never been discovered at all. A mar had never been discovered at all. A man will give up everything in the world more readily than a pet theory. For example, look at the individua's who still maintain that consumption is incurable Dr. Pierce's Gold-en Medical Discovery has cured thousands of cases, and will cure thousands more, but these people can't give up their point. Nev cribeless the "Discovery" will cure any case of consumption, if taken in time.
