On April 26th, when off the Westman Islands, Iceland, the captain of the Danish mail steamer Laura threw overboard a letter written in Danish. On May 6th the letter was found in the stomach of a cod caught by a Fren h fisherman of Reykanxs, about 120 miles distant. The man showed it to the French Consul at Peykjavik, who submitted it to the captain of the Laura. It was much de omposed, but still readable,

SERMON.

Text: Thou, therefore, endure hardness. -II. Timothy, ii., 3. Historians are not slow to acknowledge the merits of great military chieffains. We have the full length portraits of the Cromwell, the Washingtons, the Napoleons and the Wellingtons of the world. History is not written in black ink, but with red file of human blood. The gods of human ambition do not drink from bowls hade out of silver, or gold, or precious stones, but out of the bleached affulls of the fallen. But I am now te unroll before you a scroll of heroes that the world has never acknowledged, those who faced no gun, blew no bugleblast, conquered no critics, chained no captives to their chariot wheels, and you in the great day of eternity, will stand nigher than those whose names startled the nations; and scraph, and rapt spirit, and archangel will tell their deeds to a listening universe. I mean the heroes of common, every-day life. Historians are not slow to acknowledge the nations; and seraph, and rept spirit, and archangel will tell their deeds to a listering universe. I mean the heroes of common, every-day life.

In this roll, in the first place, I find all the heroes of the sick room. When Satan had failed to overcome Job, he said to God: "Put forth thy hand and touch his bones and his fleek, and he will curse these to thy fact." Satan had found out what we have found out, that sickness is the greatest test of one's character. A man who can stand that can stand anything. To be shut in a room as fast as though it were a bastle; to be so nervous you cannot endure the tap of a child's foot: to have luxuriant fruit, which tempts the appetite of the robust and healthy, excite our loathing and disgust when it first appears on the platter, to have the rapier of pain strike through the side, or across the temples, like a ratior, or to put the foot into a vice, or throw the whole body into a blaze of fever. Yet there have been men and women, but more women than men, who have cheerfully endured this hardness. Through years of exhausting rheumatisms and excruciating neuralgies they have gone, and through builty distresses that rasped the nerves, and tore the muscles, and nalled the cheeks, and stooped the shoulders. By the dim light of the sick-room laper they saw on their wall the picture of that land where the inhabitants the never sick. Through the dead silence of the night they heard the cherus of the angels. The rancer are away her life from weak to week and day to day, and sho be ame weaker and weaker, and every "good night" was feebler than the "good night" lefore-yet hever sad. The children looked up into her face and faw suffering transformed into a heavenly smile. Those who suffered by the children looked up into her face they have heavenly smile. Those who suffered by the held hospital and in the asylum had fevers which no fee could cool and no surgery cure. No shoul of a comr

In this roll I also find the heroes of toil, who do their work uncomplainingly. It is comparatively easy to doctor the sick when you know that your skill will be appreciated by a large company of friends and relatives; it is comparatively easy to address an audience when, in the gleaming eyes and the flushed cheeks, you show that your sever in the whole garment thrown back on you to be done over again; to build a wall an i know there will be no one to say you did it well, but only a swearing employer bowling across scaffold; to work until your eyes ere dim ani your back aches, and your heart faints, and to suffer.

Heroes of the cellar. Heroes on the attic. Heroes of the cellar. Heroes and heroines. Bless God for them. In this roll I also find the heroes who have uncomplainingly endured domestic injus-tices. There are men who for their toil and anxiety have no sympathy in their homes. Exhausting application to business gets them a livelihood, but an unfrugal wife scatters it. He is fretted at from the moment he enters the door until he comes out of it. The exasperations of business life augmented by the exasperations of domestic life. Such men are laughed at but thay have a heartexasperations of business life augmented by the exasperations of domestic life. Such men are laughed at, but they have a heart-breaking trouble, and they would have long ago gone into appalling dissipations but for the grace of God. Society to-day is strewn with the wrecks of men, who under the northeast storm of domestic infelicity have been driven on the rocks. There are tenser thousands of drunk-ards in this country to-day, made such by rocks. There are tensor thousands of drunkards in this country to day, made such by their wives. That is not poetry. That is prose. But the wrong is generally in the oppose direction. You would not have to go far to find a wife whose life is a perputual martyrdom. Something heavier than a stroke of the fist; unkind words, staggerin; home at midnight, and constant maltreatment which have left her only a wreek of what she was on that day when in the midst of a brilliant assemblage the vows were taken, and full organ played the welding march, and the carriage rolled away with the benedition of the people. What was the burning of Latimer and Ridley at the stake but she will not tell that. Not benedition of the people. What was the burning of Latimer and Ridley at the stake but she will not tell that. Not until the books of eternity are opened on the thrones of judgment will ever be known what she has suffered. Oh! ye who are twisting a garland for the victor, put it on that pale brow. When she is dead the neighbors will beg linen to make her a shroud, and she will be carried out in a plain box with no silver plate to tell her years, for she has lived a thousand years of trial and anguish. The gamblers and swindlers who destroyed ber husband will not come to the funeral. One carriage will be enough for that funeral—one carriage to carry the orphans and the two Christian women who presided over the obsequies. But there is a flash, and the opening of a celestial door, and a shont: "Lift up your head, ye everlasting gate, and let her come in!" And Christ will step forth and say: "Come in! ye suffered compared with this! Those men soon became unconscious in the fire, but here is a fifty years' martydom, a fifty years' putting to death, yet uncomplaining. No bitter words when the rollicking companions at 2 oclock in the morning pitch the husband dead drunk into the front entry. No bitter words when the rollicking companions at 2 oclock in the morning pitch the husband dead drunk into the front entry. I thank you, pretty well." She never will tell you. In the delirium of her last sichness she may voice, and quieting her quivering lip, she says: "Pretty well. I thank you pretty well." She never will tell you. In the delirium of her last sickness she may tell all the secrets of her lifetime,

You say: "The throne of the Lord God Almighty and the Lamb." No doubt about it. What is the next highest throne in heaven. While I speak it seems to me that it will be the throne of the drunkard's wife, if she with cheerful patience endured all her earthly torture. Heroes and heroines.

I find also in this roll the heroes of Christian charity. We all admire the George Peabollys and the James Lenoxes of the earth, who give tens and hindreds of thousands of dol ars to good objects.

They may have only a cup of cold water to give a poor traveler, of may have only picked a relinter from under the nail of a thild's finger, or have put only two mites into the treasury, but the Lord knows them. Considering what they had, they did more than we have ever done, and their faded dress will become a white robe, and the small room will be an eternal mansion, and the old hat will be a coronet of victory, and all the applause of earth and all the shouting of heaven will be drowned but when Col rises up to give his reward to those humble workers in his kingdom, and to say to them: "Well done, good and faithful servant." You have all seen or heard of the ruin of Meirose Atbey. I suppose in some respects it is the most exquisite ruin on earth. And yet, looking at it I was not so impressed—you may set it down to bad taste—but I was not so deeply stirred as I was at a tombstone at the foot of that Abbey—the tombstone placed by Walter Scott over the grave of an old man who had served him for a good many years in his house. The inscription most significant, and I defy any man to stand there and read it without tears coming into his eyes. The epitaph: "Well done, gool and faithful servant." Oh! when our work is over, will it be found that because of anything we have done for God, or the church, or suffering humanity, that such an inscription is appropriate for us! God grant it.

Who are those who were bravest and deserved the greatest modument—Lord Claverhouse and his burly soldiers or John Brown, the Edinburgh carrier, and his wife! Mr. Atkins, the persecuted minister of Jesus Christ in Scotland, was zecreted by Joan Brown and his wife, and Claverhouse rode up one day with his armed men and shouted in front of the house. John Brown's little girl came out. He said to her: "Well, miss, is Mr. Atkins here?" She made no answer, for she could not betray the minister of the Gospel. "Ha!" Cleverhouse said, "then you are a chip of the old block, are you! I have something in my packet for you. It is a nosegay. Some people call it a thumbserew, but I call it a nosegay." And he got off his horse, and he put it on the little girl's hand, and began to turn it until the bones cracked, and she cried. He said: "Don't cry, don't cry, this isn't a thumbserew; this is a nosegay." And they heard the child's cry, and the father and mother came out, and Claverhouse said: "Ha! It seems that you three have laid your holy heads together determined to die like all the rest of your hypocritical, canting, snivelling orew; rather than give up good Mr. Atkins, pious Mr. Atkins, you would die. I have a telescope with me that will improve your visica, and he pulled out a pistol. "Now," he said, "you old pragmatical. list you should catcheold in this cold morning of Scotland, and for the honor and safety of the king, to say nothing of the glory of God and the good of our souls. I will proceed simply and in the neatest and most expeditious style possible to blow your brains out." John Brown fell upon his knees and began to pray. "Ah!" said Claverhouse, "lock out, if you are going to pray; steer clear of the King, the council and fichard Camsron." "Of Lord," said John brown. "since it seems to be Thy will that I hould leave this world for a world where I han love Thee better and serve. in this blessed morning, upon me, a poor, de-enseless fellow-creature—may they, in the Last Judgment, find that mercy which they have refused to me, Thy most unworthy, but laithful servant. Amen." He rose up and suid: "Isabel, the hour has come of which I spoke to you on the morning when I proposed and and heart to you; and are you will-ing now, for the love of God, to let me lie!" She put her arms around him and said: "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away. Blessel be the mam-of the Lord." "Stop that snivelling," said of the Lord! "Stop that snivelling," said Claverhouse. "I have had enough of it. Solliers, do your work. Take aim! Fire!" in! the heal of John Brown was scattered in the ground. While the wife was gatherm the ground. While the wife was gathering up in her apron the fragments of her nusband's head—zathering them up for burial—Claverhouse looked into her face and laid: "New, my good woman, how do you leel about your bonnie man!" "Oh!" she said, "I always thought weel of him; he has been very good to me; I had no reason for hinking anything but weel of him, and I hink better of him now. But there is great excitement in heaven. Why those long processions: Why the booming of that great bell in the tower! It is coronation day in heaven.

Who are those rising on the thrones, with crowns of eternal royalty? They must have been great people on earth, world renowned people. No. They taught in a ragged a hoo! Is that all? That is all. Who are those waving sceptres of eternal dominion? Why, they are little children who waited on invalid mothers. That all? That is all. She was called "Little Mary" on earth. She is an empress now. Who are that great multitude on the highest thrones of heaven? Who are they? Why, they fed the hungry, they lothed the naked, they braigd the alck, they comforted the heart-broken. They never found any rest until they put their head down on the pillow of the sepulchre. God watched them. God laughed defiance at the enemies who put their heels hard down on these His dear children; and one day the Lord struck His hand so hard on His thigh that the omnipotent sword ratted in the buckler, as he said: "I am their God, and no weapon formed against them shall prosper." What harm can the world do you when the Lord A'mighty with unsheathed sword fights for you!

sword fights for you! I preach this sermen for comfort. Go home to the place just where God has put you to play the hero or the heroina. Do not home to the place just where God has put you to play the hero or the beroina. Do not envy any man his money, or his applause, or his social position. Do not envy any woman her wardrobe, or her exquisite appearance. Be the hero or the heroina. If there he no flour in the house, and you do not know where your children are to get bread, listen, and you will hear something tapping arainst the window pane. Go to the window and you will find it is the beak of a raven, and open the window and there will fly in the messenger that fed Elijah. Do you think that the God who grows the cotion of the South will let you freeze for lack of clothes? Do you think that the God who allowed the disciples on Sunday morning to go into the grain field, and then take the grain and rub it in their hands and eat. Do you think God will let you starve? Did you ever hear the experience of that old man. "I have been young, and now am I old, yet have I never seen the righteous forsaken, or his seed begging bread? Get up out of your discouragement. FOR OLD PEOPLE!

In old people the nervous system is weakened, and that must be strengthened. One of the most prominent medical writers of the day, in speaking of the prevalence of rheumatic troubles among the aged, says: "The various pains, rheu-matic or other, which old people often complain of, and which materially disturb their comfort, result from disordered nerves." There it is in a nutshell— the medicine for old people must be a nerve tonic. Old people are beset with constipation, flatulency, drowsiness, diarthes, indigestion, theumatism, neuralgis

A Freak of Nature.

The Cincinnati Enquirer is responsible for the following story from Stoverton, Ohio: "A most remarkable freak of nature is reported from the farm of George Sevingle, who lives near this place. He has among a flock of sheep a lamb over two months old which has lamb over two months old which has the nose and feet of a dog, but is in all other respects a sheep. Instead of having the ordinary teeth of the sheep-kind the animal's mouth, both upper and lower jaws, is filled with long and sharp wolf-like fangs, rendering it extremely difficult to pick grass like the other sheep, consequently it prefers to chew and masticate twigs and shrubs. It is regarded as one of the greatest curiosities ever seen in this neighborhood."

It gives me great pleasure to add my testimony in favor of ALLCOCE'S POROUS FLASTERS. Last October I had a very severe attack of lumbago and suffered untold agony, could not turn in bed or get in any position without assistance, and with pains almost unbearable, the folks suggested ALLCOCE'S POROUS PLASTERS. As soon as possible I had one applied to the small of my back, and to my great surprise I experienced almost instant relief; I continued wearing it until enrirely cured, and am happy to say that I have not had the slightest symptoms of Lumbago since. They are a wonderful and valuable Plaster for lumbazo, and I take much pleasure in recommending them.
