The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this ountry most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart dis-ease, pneumonia, heart failure or _ apoplexy are often ney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell. Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and over-comes that unpleasant necessity of being mpelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized It stands the highest for its wonderfu cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The negro, Martin Vicent, who s believed to be a Springfield refugee, attacked Miss Josephine Ludwig, 16 years old, of 74 West Nineteenth street, at 262 Wabash avenue. He beat and knocked her in an effort to over come her. The girl's screams attracted E. W. Putnam, the elevator operator, and he attempted to capture the negro. Putnam was knocked down by the assailant of the girl, but quickly regained his feet and pursued the negro, calling for help.

The negro sprang upon a moving street car, but Policeman Carney jumped upon the one following and compelled its motorman to drive full speed until it came up with the car on which the negro was riding. Then the negro surrendered. The mob demonstration followed.

How a Young Girl's Hair Should Be Arranged.

THE EFFECT MUST BE SIMPLE Boys from the fireside, boys from the > Anything the Least Bit Artificial Is Inartistic and Incongruous-Ribbon Adornment Eminently Suited to the Fresh Young Faces They Surround.

> When a young girl reaches that nilestone in her career which is marked by the lengthening of her frocks and the turning up of her braids, she is as deeply concerned about the fashion of doing her hair as any debutante is over the question of puffs or no puffs. Candidly, the subject of hairdressing means more to the girl who wears her braids up for the first time than it does to her older sister. She has nothing to guide her in the way of former experience, and she help older sisters might render if they remembered how important the coiffure is to the schoolgirl. Doing the hair up does not mean that the bair is actually arranged on the top of the head. The "up" is used comparatively in contrast to the hanging braids or curls worn by girls under fourteen. In a general way the young girl's coiffure is following in the lead of the one adopted by fashionable women. It suggests ever so slightly a Grecian effect by reason of its fullness at the back of the head.

A simple way to manage this style of dressing is to roll the sides of the hair back from the face, either from a middle part or straight back from the double loop, pinning the coils acros the head in a horizontal line.

Anything the least bit suggestive of artificiality in a young girl's hairdressing is not only inartistic, but borders on the incongruous. Naturalness is the point aimed at, and a marcel wave, no matter how cleverly it is accomplished, stamps any head with artificiality. Almost all girls' hair has a slight wave of its own around the face, and this may F. Hudson's. be encouraged by simple means, but never by the iron.

Fancy hairpins, ornaments and combs are not proper features of girls' coiffures. They wear shell pins and combs to serve a practical purpose, but never in a decorative way. When the hair will be found most useful in keeping the hair in place and in making the dressing simpler. These combs rarely show, however, and when one does get a glimpse of them it is only of a bit of polished tortoise shell rim. Ribbons wound through the pompadour and in and out of the coils make a pretty way to arrange the hair for a party. Ribbons are simple and artistic and eminently suited to the fresh young faces they surround. The double faced kind a little over an inch wide gives the best results. The weaving may start at the back and cross in front through the pompadour, then be brought back to the knot again and the ends tucked under a loop of the hair or the two tied in a girlish bow. AMY VARNUM.

Don't Be Discouraged. Beginning a thing is easy. It's the sticking to it that is difficult. The test of character is the ability to go on and finish. It is a rare virtue and an ever you have set yourself to do, there will surely come a time of discouragement, when you doubt if, after all, it is worth while. Look out for that time-the time when you are tempted to turn back. It is there that the danger lies. It doesn't matter what your work is earning a living or making a home or conquering a besetting sinthe discouragement is bound to come. Don't give way to it. Be prepared for it and make up your mind to keep on
