LINCOLN, N. C., SEPT. 16 1887.

COTTON FACTORY OUTLOOK.

We have succeeded in finding another gentleman in this town who is willing to put his shoulder to the wheel of progress and aid largely in building up Lincoln's manufacturing interest; and we are authorized to say that he will be one of five or six in forming a company for the purpose of building a fifty or sixty thousand dollar factory in our midst.

Necessity demands a revolution in our town. The laws of progress demand it. The laboring class of the town and county demand it. The schools, the farmers and the intelligent citizens in the town and all over the county, who have the will but not the means, demand it.

ADVANTAGE OF ADVERTISING.

We hope that our readers, especially the citizens of Lincoln, will give the following a careful perusal: A great many people, and some of them our most intelligent and business citizens, do not seem to know or comprehend the great advantages to be derived from advertising their numerous wants and interests.

The South, says that journal, with all its rapid growth, has not learned yet the importance of constantly making known its advantages and attractions. Many leading business men thin when they spent twenty-five dollars towards advertising their town, that they have reached their full limit—in fact, they reached regard even this as extravagance.

The railroads, the land companies and business men generally spent money with great freedom in advertising. The country was fairly deluged with Florida literature—pamphlets, circulars and special issues of newspapers were scattered through the North and West, and also through Europe, with a lavish hand.

What caused the change? Failure to advertise. About the time that the wave of prosperity reached its highest point, the leaders in Florida's development concluded that the State had received such a momentum that it would continue to attract ever increasing crowds.

While every body in Florida was trying to learn what was the matter, they discovered that the railroads and land-owners of California had taken advantage of the decrease in advertising Florida, and the country was suddenly flooded with the most entrancing pictures of the glories of California climate, of the fertility of its soil, and the rapidly accumulating wealth of its people.

What is the South doing to make its attractions known? And the same pertinent question may be asked every day: What are our business men doing without advertising? No person was ever known to open a hotel without a name or to start a store or shoe-shop without a sign-board over the door.

WASHINGTON LETTER. (Correspondence of COURIER.) Washington, Sept. 9, 1887. The event of the season is the meeting of the International Medical Congress, which convened on Monday last with impressive ceremonies and still continues in session.

Next, a business meeting, followed at night by a ball and banquet at the Pension Office, which, it is estimated, was attended by at least six thousand persons. Then, on the next night, the President gave the doctors a grand reception, the pleasure of which was enhanced by delightful music from the celebrated

Marine Band. The Congress meets daily, and each meeting is edified by able disquisitions on some disease, or in the learned discussion of abstruse subjects of medical science. Great and lasting benefits to mankind are expected to result from this interchange of experience and knowledge on the part of the most skillful and talented physicians of the world—a hope that I doubt not will bear full fruition to thousands of sufferers throughout the broad borders of civilization.

The tariff conference is still in progress at Oak View—being participated in by President Cleveland, Speaker Carlisle, Congressmen Fairchild, who was summoned by telegraph from his leave of absence in New York, for this special purpose—the latter circumstance confirming beyond a doubt the report of the important consultation in question. It is said that the tariff bill to be framed by the Administration will be presented to all Democratic Congressmen as a party measure, and that its support by them next session will be required as a test of partisan fidelity.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION.

Communication by One of the Members at Lincoln.

Mrs. Mary Read Goodale, daughter of the distinguished Mrs. Read, of Baton Rouge, a leading educator and philanthropist, will spend October working in North Carolina in the interest of the W. C. T. U. Mrs. Goodale is the wife of a prominent lawyer of Baton Rouge, and comes to us highly recommended by Miss Willard and Mrs. Chapin as a national organizer and faithful worker in the ranks of the White Ribbon Army.

Mrs. Mary Read Goodale gave two addresses that were superb. They were learned without pedantry, logical without stiffness and ornate without meretricious finery of speech. And Mrs. Goodale is withal a very pleasing speaker. A fine face, a countenance that bespeaks a candid, honest soul within, a perfect ease and self-possession of manner, a voice soft and sweet, and yet strong enough to fill an auditorium, a thorough mastery of the principle of the elocutionist's art, an intense flaming zeal in this noble cause which battles for "God and home and native land"—these qualifications make Mrs. Goodale, woman though she is, a foe to be dreaded by the hosts of Bacchus.

Wipe Out the Internal Revenue. The Cincinnati Gazette, republican, very properly says: "The Internal Revenue system should be wiped out absolutely. It was justifiable only as a war necessity. The war being over, and the revenues being in excess of the wants of the Government, it should be abolished. There is a sentiment in favor of maintaining the tax because it is imposed upon liquors and tobacco, but sentiment is not business. The Internal Revenue system has served to cause more perjury and dishonesty than any scheme that ever was or ever could be devised for the collection of revenue. It has demoralized hundreds of thousands of people. It has converted an army of honest men into liars and perjurers. It has in addition, caused a blanket of suspicion to rest upon every man, almost, engaged in the liquor or tobacco business. At the same time it has maintained an army of office-holders. The sooner these are remanded to industrial pursuits the better; and the sooner it is detected, whose business it is to detect some body of rascality, the better for the morals of the country. As to the mere sentiment, there is not in it that the tax on liquor and tobacco does not diminish the consumption a particle. There should be no half-way work about the business. The true policy is to wipe out the Internal Revenue system root and branch. That would dispose of the surplus-revenue very largely, and at the same time wipe out largely the demoralized influences that are cursing the country.

Not all can be spared from the home circle for distant journeys. Yet those whose labors are more circumscribed manifest the same spirit of consecration that characterizes their more widely known co-laborers. In a great variety of the Christian womanhood of this land is working, working persistently, energetically, heroically, to banish from our heaven favored land this vile traffic in human damnation. I thank God that I live in this age when in fulfillment of ancient prophecy he has poured out his spirit upon his "hand maidens" and emboldened them to take their stand in the forefront of this warfare between heaven and hell.

Conspiring Against Carlisle.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The developments of the past few days indicate that a determined fight is to be made against Carlisle by the extreme Protectionists, who hope the allurement that can be held out to new members will induce them to enroll themselves on the side of a rival for the Speakership. Several gentlemen closely identified with the Protection wing of the party have supplied themselves with lists of members of the new House, and are now actively engaged in making a canvass to ascertain the strength of the opposition to Speaker Carlisle. The movement is in no way identified with the effort to have Carlisle elected to the chairmanship of the Democratic caucus to accept the chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee or some other important committee.

The fully of such a course on the part of his friends is freely admitted on all sides. The gentlemen referred to are considering the advisability of putting forward either Crisp, of Georgia, or Burns of Missouri. Crisp was publicly stated that he will not be a candidate, but it is thought that if he can be assured a respectable following in the caucus he will permit his name to be used. Burns has not been approached as yet, but it is thought he would embrace his opportunity to add to his political experience and reputation. It is surmised that this movement is engineered by certain wealthy Protectionists, both Republicans and Democrats, who prepared to go to any length to defeat the measures which are being prepared by prominent revenue reformers.—Charlotte Chronicle.

"Is that family that has moved in next door neighborly?" asked our Sioux Falls woman of another.

"Yes, they appear to be. They've borrowed four of me twice; tea once and sugar three times. Then they have got our tub and the hatching and two lengths of stovepipe and the baby carriage, and the woman empties all the slops over the fence in our yard and I see her coming across now to hang her clothes on our line."

"I shouldn't think you would like to have them borrow things so much and act quite so free."

"Oh, I don't worry much about it. We've got their mop and about half of their dishes and their rolling pin and washing machine and the other day I borrowed ten sticks of wood from them, and each evening our hired girl puts on better clothes than the woman has to her back and walks up and down on the sidewalk, and to-night I'm going to put out for their dog. Oh, we're getting poison along very nicely, and I think the are going to be very pleasant neighbors. This always was a splendid neighborhood.—Dakota Bell.

Married Her Father's Colored Coachman.

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 12.—Miss Mary Tucker, a girl of nineteen, daughter of John S. Tucker, former State Representative, has married John W. Hanchett, her father's colored coachman, and disappeared with him. Miss Tucker was allowed as much liberty as any other girl living in the city, but her parents never dreaming of her intimacy with Hanchett. Hanchett persuaded her to color herself with a liquid. The village minister performed the ceremony and the couple fled. They are being pursued by the girls father and some of his friends. Tucker threatens to shoot Hanchett on the first sight.—Charlotte Chronicle.
